[Newton Enterprise, Dem.] The absurd assertion (of Mr. Walker) that there are but two parties in this country; the liquor and non-liquor party, and that one man in Washington city, in the pay of the liquor dealers, absolutely controls the acts of Congress, was a most fatal blemish. To assert that a man, who is so obscure that we doubt if any one who heard him, can recall the name, could bribe enough members of Congress to control Legislation, was so ridiculous that we really felt a pitty for the speaker. Walker will never see the day that he can convince any honest North Carolinian that Zeb Vance or Matt Ransom, or any member of the House could be bribed at any price.
