DIED.—In Falkland township, March 16th, 1894, Mrs. Licy J. Moore, in the 72nd year of her age. She was an estimable lady and a consistent member of the Primitive Baptist Church.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." H. S. Tysou.

Our military boys will excuse us for placing them on 4th page. The truth is they have been standing at parade rest on our galley for over a month and must be put in action. Our smaller locals crowd out greater subjects, on local page. The truth is we are just bound to have a bigger paper.

Mr. Warren Cobb is a hustler. He drove to Tarboro after 3 o'clock Monday evening—Tuesday morning he was selling goods before sunrise—Tuesday evening he drove to Washington and Wednesday morning he was having Cobb's store brushed up as if nothing had happened. This kind of grit and energy will overcome any panic.

We learn from the Sun that Capt. T. P. Thompson, of Robersonville, has recently become heir to $3,000,000 his portion of the Jennings estate, which has just been decided in England after 20 years litigation. He got a check for $2,000 Monday to pay his expenses to England, to receipt for the legacy. Capt. Thompson is now a long ways the richest man in North Carolina. What has become of the Edwards' heirs.

THE REVIVAL.—There is no question about it, you will be greatly benefited by attending the series of meetings being conducted by Mr. Schofield in the Methodist church. Commencing last Sunday the church has been crowded day and night with attentive, earnest listeners and the effect of the meeting is manifested in the numbers who are professing Christ. Mr. Ramsey is conducting the song service with great success. How could it be otherwise with those Queens of Song, Mrs. J. B. Cherry, Mrs. L. E. Cleve, and Mrs. Georgia Pearce, ably assisted by Mrs. F. G. James, Mrs. G. E. Harris, Misses Annie Sheppard and Della Marshall and Messrs. J. C. S. Benjamin, L. H. Pender, J. T. Matthews, W. F. Burch, Wiley Brown, W. S. Rawls, W. H. Ragdale, R. L. Humber, — Hyman, D. J. Whichard, J. L. Sugg, Dr. C. J. O'H. Laughinghouse in the choir.

Obituary.

The death of Martha Selma Warren, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Warren, just as she was budding into womanhood, is one of those events that cause a whole community to mourn. Sick but one week, that prescience which comes to th about to die seemed hers, for, several days before, she called her sister a said, "Take care of my pets when I die," at another time, "Call please by my side when I am dying."

In tones as voiceless as the steps thought, the angels came and bore this lovely flower home. And while her virtues will ever bloom in fragrant memory about her tomb, the child of those kind parents hearts will never gladden their fond gaze on earth again. She was loving, gentle, tender and true. Possessed of bright intellect, she was a star in her home, and shines resplendent down from Heaven now. Glorious comfort this should be to the dear afflicted left behind.

A friend at Falkland sends these appropriate verses:

Dear lovely child, now thou art gone
To dwell with Christ above,
And in affliction we are left,
To mourn for one we love.

But tho' thine eyes are closed in death
Thy voice is heard no more,
We would not call thee from that home,
Where all thy pains are o'er.
