SENATOR BUTLER'S SPEECH.

Mr. Butler said in his speech at Newton Saturday that he was "out speaking at this time to warn the people of the movements of the politicians." Is that not refreshing? It has been many a day since we have run upon so cool a piece of self assurance.

If folks in this neck of the woods were asked to point out a politician in this State, nine out of ten would extend their index fingers Butlerward. How else does Mr. Butler account for his being in the United States Senate? Were his qualifications for that exalted place so manifest that an unanimous outburst of popular acclaim simply have him into it? Well hardly.

Mr. Butler should not despise the ladder by which he climbed. It is not good taste to deny the calling by which one's bread is earned. He became Senator by a piece of shrewd political scheming—just as most other men do in the South, where they are still too poor to "take by purchase."

We do not in the least blame Mr. Butler either for the scheming or being elected. On the contrary we have always thought it rather neatly done; but when he attempts to pose as a guileless patriot; to be "like a star and dwell apart;" to constitute himself the unselfish guardian of the "poor people;" he becomes the least bit ridiculous.

The Senator started out with a great flourish of his tongue to outline the policy of his party, but so far as we can gather, the only policy yet propounded is in the sentence where he says "he will be found in the middle of the road appealing to the people to follow him;" which, being interpreted is, the Senator will continue to do business at the old stand. He has always evinced more or less fondness for having the people follow him; it is second only to his fondness for appealing to them to do so; the latter is a passion, a mania with him. The Senator simply has a bad case of "stage-struck" and has mistaken it for the spirit of patriotism moving mightily within him. He should diagnose his ailment more carefully. He is likely to find, when he goes a strolling in the middle of the road, that a delighted public will not cast at his feet a big bouquet labelled "second term."

North Carolina will want men to represent her in future who stand on something more than the middle of the road; something a little more specific. Glittering generalities and promises impossible of performance will have very much less weight in the late, than they had in the early nineties. Moreover the middle of the road is not in very good repute just now. It would be well for the Senator to sorter edge off toward one side, out of the August sun, and cease calling for awhile.

When wheat is striving to get between the dollar mark and the dot is not an auspicious time for calling anyway. Instead of enthusiastic cheers he might be rewarded with a big, chilly horse-laugh.

It is whispered that Mr. Hanna worked some of that surplus "providence" on the Ohio Populists. Maroons is nothing if not an indicator of booms. The love of his profession is so strong that he gave even Coxey a boost.

THE Andree expedition has started a great number of balloon hoaxes. The latest is the man who will take provisions to Klondyke and bring back dust by means of one. We presume it would be proper, in the slang of the day, to say that balloons "are in the air."

It was very short-sighted in Mr. Dingley not to have put a clause in his tariff bill imposing a duty on Klondyke gold. We should not allow so much of a British product to come in free—it will damage our infant mining industries.

A GOOD JOKE.

But Mr. Ennis Was Equal to the Emergency.

Mr. P. C. Ennis, of Raleigh, an old newspaper man, by the way, is located in Greensboro and is working in the interest of the A. and M. College at Raleigh.

He was down in Randolph county, near Asheboro, one day last week and learning that two prominent gentlemen would address the voters at Asheboro on the local tax question, concluded he would go over and hear them.

When he reached Asheboro he found the speakers had not arrived. Quite a crowd was present, and a freeholder thought he recognized one of the speakers in the person of Mr. Ennis.

"Pink" knows how to appreciate a joke, and when he was asked to address the waiting crowd he consented to do so, with the understanding that he be allowed to choose his subject.

Mr. Ennis says the opportunity was too good to let slip, so he improved the time by talking A. and M. College to the crowd for a whole hour.

We have not learned with what enthusiasm the address was received. We understand that Mr. Ennis tried the same game at Randleman.

In a Deplorable Condition.

There was one man in Greensboro who was not in a satisfactory frame of mind for worship yesterday, and it came about on account of a little thieving, of which so much has been done in and around Greensboro recently.

R. W. Filator, who boards at the Monroe House, on Buchanan street, went to his room late Saturday night to take a bath. When he went to the wardrobe in search of clean linen, he was surprised to find none. He knew that all the underwear he had was left in the wardrobe. After searching considerably and finding none, he came up street and bought a supply for Sunday, swearing vengeance on the thief, who had visited his apartments.

It's tough on a fellow to lose anything at the hands of a thief, but when it comes to stealing a man's wearing apparel—well, it puts an awkward feeling on a person, to say the least.

His Hands Full.

Rev. Horace Weeks Jones, the popular rector of St. Barnabas Episcopal church, had as much as one man could well attend to yesterday. At 8 o'clock in the morning he administered holy communion at St. Andrew's church, and at 10 o'clock he preached and administered holy communion at St. Barnabas. He went to Burlington on the noon train, where he preached in St. Athanasius Episcopal church last evening.

Good Work.

Sam Browne, superintendent of the street force, in addition to the other good work he has done, has recently made a great improvement on Gorrell street. The street has been cut down, graded and otherwise improved.

Gorrell promises to become one of the most desirable residence streets in the city.

Nearing Completion.

The new front to the store of the Greensboro Hardware Company is nearing completion. Contractor Smith has finished the brick work. When completed it will be an ornament to the main street of our city.

1897 THE SUN, 1897

Baltimore, Md.

The Paper of the People; For the People and with the People.

Honest in Motive, Fearless in Expression, Sound in Principle, Unswerving in its allegiance to Right Theories and Right Practices.

The Sun publishes all the news all the time, but it does not allow its columns to be degraded by unclean, immoral or purely sensational matter.

Editorially The Sun is the consistent and unchanging champion and defender of popular rights and interests against political machines and monopolies of every character. Independent in all things, extreme in none, it is for good laws, good government and good order. By mail fifty cents a month, six dollars a year.

THE BALTIMORE WEEKLY SUN.

The Weekly Sun publishes all the news of each week, giving complete account of all events of interest throughout the country and world. As an agricultural paper The Weekly Sun is unsurpassed. It is edited by writers of practical experience who know what farming means and what farmers want in an agricultural journal. It contains regular reports of the work of the Agricultural Experiment Stations throughout the country, of the proceedings of Farmers' Clubs and Institutes and the discussion of new methods and ideas in agriculture. Its market reports, poultry department and veterinary column are particularly valuable to country readers. It also contains stories, poems, household and puzzle columns, a variety of interesting and instructive selected matter and other features, which make it a welcome visitor in city and country homes alike.

One dollar a year. Incitements to getters up of clubs for the Weekly Sun. Both the Daily and Weekly Sun mailed free of postage in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Payments invariably in advance. Address A. S. ABELL COMPANY, Publishers and Proprietors, Baltimore, Md.
