"GIVE US A REST."

THE case of those protection organs that claim the business revival has come through the Dingley law is very much like that of the man who came down from the joist to tell how "me and Betsy killed the b'ar." As a plain matter of fact, the whole Republican administration was up a tree until the misfortunes of others created a diversion in its favor and allowed it to descend. It should defer its claims for glory until the ridiculous figure it cut while it was up has passed from the public mind. Can any sane man fall to see that dollar wheat could no more come through the Dingley bill than "all the king's horses" could pull up a well? The tariff is not and can never be, in its benefits, more than local. It helps, simply and solely, the man protected. It has not now and has never had the opinion of one single political economist of respectable reputation, in this country or elsewhere, to support it. It will start up a few protected industries, here and there; add many millions to incomes already quite large enough; flush a few new England manufacturing towns with a hectic prosperity; tax the great majority for the benefit of a few; but not one iota can it ever contribute to the commonweal of the many. It is hard to feel grateful to a real benefactor when he continually boasts himself such; the man or party that claims to be a benefactor when he is not, only excites weariness and disgust. The Republican party is beginning to add to its many virtues the last and consummate one of being the most gigantic and all perforating bore that has afflicted sensible people in modern times. The only reply that all this self-gratulation is worthy of is the old slang phrase: "Oh, give us a rest."

It is pleasant to know that the Briton has recovered his spinal column at last and, speaking through Premier Salisbury, has declared that Graeco-Turkish affair must be settled and Thessaly must be given up. Turkey will yield, of course, as the insolent always do when faced by an equal or superior.

THE dispensers of pensions should now pause while an admiring public applauds. They have at last refused a pension. It is true the man, whose family applied, was killed in a drunken brawl. But they did actually refuse the pension. This grand stand play should be properly rewarded.

THAT party of poets who sat down to a Chinese dinner in New York the other day, and attempted to use chopsticks for the first time, can appreciate the difficulties of the luckless reader who has been driven to seek a mental dinner in a volume of their verse.

THE authorities are having the debris cleared from the lot on South Elm to which attention was called in Friday's TELEGRAM. That is the proper move.

THE band will probably play "Put me off at Buffalo" when the President arrives there tomorrow.

WHAT can be wrong with the Chicago Times-Herald? Why does not Mr. Kohlsaat speak out in his high-almightiness tone and brand the citizens of Chicago as irredeemable barbarians because a man has been lynched there? It took the mayor and all the police force of Albany to keep a mob from hanging Blake, the abductor; they had to be scared from the patrol wagon with drawn revolvers. Have the northern papers commented upon these evidences of lawlessness? Possibly; but we have been unable to find them. The south has been abused and reviled for twenty years for just such offences against law and order. When they occur at the very doors of those papers that have been most mouthy in this respect, they are passed over in silence. Lynching is to be condemned here or elsewhere; but we call attention to the fact that it is the southern press only that has done this. It is time that it was being noted that the southerner is more obedient to the law than the northerner; it is equally true that he is, despite contrary assertions, more liberal and just, less narrow and less prejudiced than his northern brother. This attitude of the northern press has done us a vast deal of harm in the past, by keeping away from us men who would have been of great benefit in aiding our industrial advancement. It is useless to expect aught else for the average northern editor believes himself infallible.

GENERAL NELSON A. MILES' report of his military travels in Europe to Secretary Alger, reads like a letter that Alice writes to papa, in the Sunday school story, when she has gone to visit, for the first time, Uncle John in the great city.

IS IT due to our excellent sanitation that our physicians have not yet reported a case of Klondyke fever?

DOTS FROM EDITORIAL QUILLS.

Ben Tillman is to deliver an address in New York on "Democratic Duty." He ought to follow that up with a paper before the Philological institute on the Babylonian Cuneiform inscriptions. He knows as much about one as the other.—Atlanta Journal.

The columns of the Gazette are open to short letters from Senator Pritchard and representative Pearson to explain to a too confiding constituency the misunderstanding between them and Mr. McKinley as to the diameter and circumference of the civil service law.—Asheville Gazette.

The Republican press is trying to give William McKinley the glory for instead of attributing it to God. It's a way they have. If the Republicans don't get the people down to hard tack it will be a providential interference.—Jonesboro Progress.

Pension getting seems to be the chief object of the Grand Army of the Republic. Its original motive was good, but, judging from some of its acts and the utterances of many of its members, it is fast degenerating into a grand army of strife breeding beggars for pensions.—Tarboro Southerner.

When the Count of Turin returned to Rome after puncturing Prince Henri a couple times, the populace of that burg went wild with rejoicing, reminding us very much of Boston's greeting to J. L. S. when in his halcyon days he sent some other bruiser to grass and returned to receive the plaudits of his admiring fellow-citizens.—Wilmington Star.

Should a newspaper that is intended for circulation in homes and is made to read by the family circle print the disgusting details of a revolting crime? Even if the details were in evidence in a court trial, have they any place in print? It is time a protest was made against the publication of the details of monstrous crime, for, whether the publication is through inadvertence or to bring public condemnation upon the criminal, it is demoralizing and disgusting.—Charlotte News.

General Bradley T. Johnson has it just right in what he says about the proposition to have the Grand Army of the Republic meet in Richmond next year. It means the whooping up of a crowd and the getting in of the cash. The handshaking and all the rest of it are pure bosh, as the General says. The late soldiers of the Union and the Confederacy who fought each other on principal doubtless have very sincere respect for each other, but the gushing, in each section, over the troops of the other, is forced and affected. When it comes to re-union, encampments and the like, each had better shinner on his own side.—Charlotte Observer.

1897 THE SUN, 1897

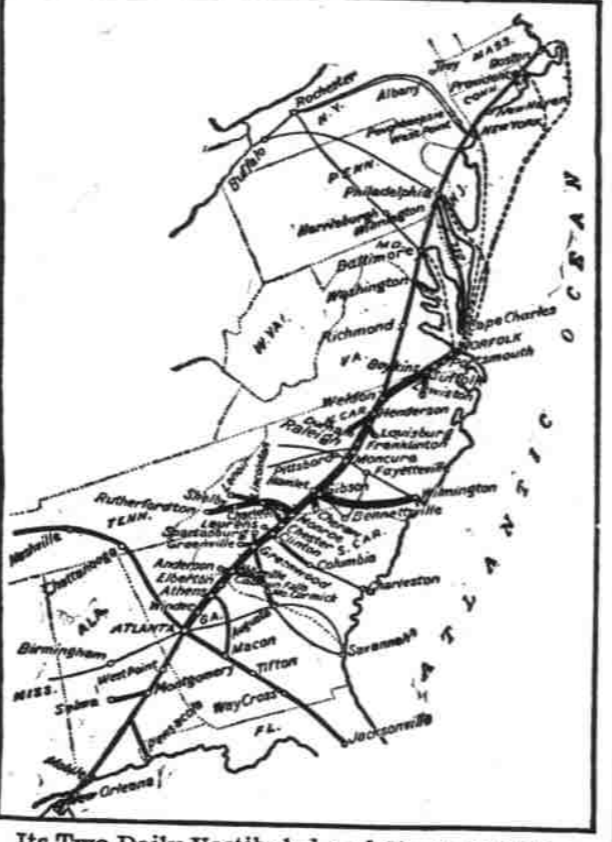

Baltimore, Md.
The Paper of the People.
For the People and with the People.
Honest in Motive.
Fearless in Expression.
Sound in Principle.
Unswerving in its allegiance to Right Theories and Right Practices.

The Sun publishes all the news of the time, but it does not allow its columns to be degraded by unclean, immoral or purely sensational matter. Editorially The Sun is the consistent and unchanging champion and defender of popular rights and interests against political machines and monopolies of every character. Independent in all things, extreme in none. It is for good laws, good government and good order. By mail fifty cents a month, six dollars a year.

THE BALTIMORE WEEKLY SUN.
The Weekly Sun publishes all the news of all events of interest throughout the country and world. As an agricultural paper The Weekly Sun is unsurpassed. It is edited by writers of practical experience, who know what farming means and what farmers want in an agricultural journal. It contains regular reports of the work of the Agricultural Experiment Stations throughout the country, of the proceedings of Farmers Clubs and Institutes and the discussion of new methods and ideas in agriculture. Its market reports, poultry department and veterinary column are particularly valuable to country readers. Every issue contains stories, poems, household and puzzle columns, a variety of interesting and instructive selected matter and other features, which make it a welcome visitor in city and country homes alike. One dollar a year. Incitements to getters up of clubs for the Weekly Sun. Both the Daily and Weekly Sun mailed free of postage in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Payments invariably in advance.
