Gaston W. Ward,

JOHN R. WEBSTER'S SPEECH.

Delivered at The Unveiling of The Gillies Monument Yesterday.

I esteem it a great honor to perform. the part assigned me in the exercises of this memorable day. It is always a pleasure to visit this historic field, reclaimed and beautified by the Guilford Battle Ground Company, under the leadership of Judge David Schenck, at once the brainiest and most patriotic man in the state, whose defence of their calumniators and made this spot, long the scene of their sur the North Carolina militia has silenced the delight of all patriotic hearts.

There are others who could discharge the task assigned me more creditably and satisfactorily than I can hope to do, but none gan speak from a fuller heart or with more sincere admiration for the noble spirit of | ican sailors were wounded instead of patriotism displayed by the young eleven, as was originally cabled. Not people who have chosen to add a new a single American sailor was killed. treasure to this hallowed spot. Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have I give you.

The pleasing office of voicing the sentiment of the donors and telling the story of the brave bugler boy has been wisely conferred upon another and it falls to my lot to express the appreciation of the alumni of Oak Ridge Institute of the noble action of the literary societies in linking the name of theiralma mater with the memory of one whose story the world will not let die. They are proud of the school and rejoice in its prosperity. Whatever of success they are achieved so far in life and whatever of hope they have for the future, they attribute in large measure to the thorough and conscientious training they received at Oak Ridge. Next to their own homes they regard it as the dearest spot on earth and feel toward it as the psalmist did when he said:

If I forget thee, oh Jerusalem,

Let my right hand forget her cunning If I do not remember thee,

Let my tongue cleave to the roof of My mouth, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy.

boys and feel the sacrifice made by agely attacked the fort, repeatedly them to perpetuate the memory of the driving the crews from the heavy guns. little hero who gave his all for liberty is a guarantee that they have in them the stuff of which patriots are made.

It is to the glory of Oak Ridge Institute that its ambition is to make men and not partisans. It asks the support of no party or sect as the propagator of their peculiar views, but stands upon its own intrinsic merits. It knows no Baptist physics, Presbyterian mathematics, nor Methodist book-keeping. It inculcates a patriotism as broad as the country and a religion as deep as human need. It envies the success of no other institution either State, ecclessiastical or private, but would join heart and hand with all of them in banishing ignorance and lifting humanity upon a higher

The exercises of this day attest the patriotic sentiment that pervades the atmosphere of that institution. They proclaim in eloquent tones that love of country and admiration of the true and noble are being instilled into the minds of its pupils. It is the law of our nature that we become like those whom we habitually admire, and the importance of setting before the youth of the Battallion Officers of of our country correct models of virtue and patriotism cannot be over estimated. These young people have been inspired to make a noble sacrifice, putting their money into a memorial that will teach a lesson of heroism to coming generations, by reading the story of the bugler boy. His was a humble part in the drama of Extra mountain honey, 12 blood that emancipated a continent, but we shall never know till the books are opened in the final day how much the world owes to the modest hero. Great battles are often decided by a trifling incident, just as the flutter of a bird's wing at a certain point of the Rocky Mountains may send one drop of water toward the Pacific ocean and another toward the Atlantic. No doubt the martial blast of the bugler boy whose monument we dedicate this day nerved many a soldier for the fight and inspired the noblest deeds of Eleven Spanish Ships Destroyed Completely-256 Wounded Spanlards Are Held Prisoners.

Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

Hong Kong, May 7-Flag Lieutenant Brundy is now engaged in cabling Commodore Dewey's complete report of the battle of Manila to the authorities in Washington. Only six Amer-

DELAILS OF THE BATLLE.

The battle began just as day was breaking last Sunday morning. Commodore Dewey took his entire fleet of six vessels through an expanse of water that had been heavily mined and on past Fort Correjo without any disaster. The challenge of battle was issued by the Spanish flagship Reina Christina and the challenge was immediately answered by Commodore Dewey from the flagship Olympia. This was quickly followed by the entire American fleet firing at the Spaniar is. The Spanish fleet replied by a heavy fire and was followed by Fort Cavite, which opened a murderous and raking fire on the Americans.

FLAGSHIP TAKES FIRE.

The Spanish flagship Reina Christina under the steady fire from the American fleet soon caught fire. Admiral Montijo transferred his flag to the transport vessel Isle de Cuba, which he used as a flagship. Ten minutes later the Spanish cruiser Castilla was completely wrapped in flames.

LINE OF BATTLE.

Commodore Dewey's line of battle was formed as follows: The flagship Olympia led the battle line with the cruiser Raleigh a cable's length behind and these were followed by the cruisers Baltimore and Boston, the gunboats Concord and Petrel and the revenue cutter McCullough. By easy manoevering the American fleet approached the Spaniards under Admiral Montijo.

PLAN OF BATTLE.

The Spanish ships were formed into two two lines flanking the flagship Reina Christina. They remained in this position during the entire action. The American warships continued their manoeuvering about the enemy. One after another of the Spanish boats were either burned or run aground to save the crews.

ELEVEN VESSELS DESTROYED.

Commodore Dewey totally destroyed eleven vessels of the Spanish fleet. The list of the vessels is as follows: Flagship Reina Christina, steel cruiser Velasco, iron cruiser; Don Antonio Ulloa, protected iron cruiser; Don Juan de Austria, protected iron cruiser; Isla de Cuba, protected steel cruiser; Isle de Luzon, protected steel cruiser; and the steel gunboats Quiros, Vellalobos, Elcano and Mileno.

ENTIRE FLEET DESTROYED.

Commodore Dewey continued his heavy and destructive firing until the last of the Spanish vessels had been destroyed and the batteries at the forts had been quieted and reduced. He then dispatched the revenue cutter Hugh McCullough to Hong Kong with the news of the victory.

KILLED AND INJURED.
