OLD GLORY EVERYWHERE.

Pageantry and Oratory the Order of the Day.

A VAST CONCOURSE PRESENT

Speeches of Judge Douglas and Mr. Taylor—A Historic Day in Many Ways—The Road Races.

Yesterday was a day of pageantry and patriotism, a day of pride for the past and rejoicing in the present. It is doubtful if in the history of Greensboro, at least, there has been a Fourth of July when every one was so glad to be an American citizen and so fully cognizant of what American citizenship means.

From year to year, through the patriotic and untiring efforts of Judge David Schenck, the Guilford Battle Ground celebrations have grown in excellence and popular interest. Yesterday, in public and in private, he was the recipient of many congratulations upon the splendid success of his efforts.

At ten in the morning a magnificent parade, led by young ladies on horseback, representing the states and followed by carriages decked in the national colors and filled with prominent speakers, by the fire companies with their apparatus and the marshals of the day on horseback, wended its way through the streets.

Besides the large number who went out on horseback, on wheels and in carriages the special trains over the C. F. and Y. V. railway, at intervals of forty minutes, were filled to the full capacity of standing room. It is estimated that between 7,000 and 8,000 people were present when Col. Joseph Morehead arose to introduce Rev. L. W. Crawford, who opened the exercises with prayer.

The orator of the day, Judge Robt. M. Douglas was next introduced. The speaker delivered a most polished and eloquent address upon the "Life and Character of Governor Alexander Martin." The address, in full, was too lengthy for publication, but the opening remarks were so timely that they are given.

It is hard to realize that only one hundred and twenty-two years have passed since that starry flag was first given to the free air of its native heaven. Today it floats on every sea, representing a nation whose material power dominates the western hemisphere, and casts its broadening shadow across the world.

A careful study of the birth, growth and decline of the great nations and peoples within historic times, which seem to have been regulated by some fixed laws whose nature we cannot comprehend, but whose existence we are forced to admit, plainly indicates that we are yet far from the meridian of our national life.

Already the magnificent empire of Spain has gone to decay and her imperial power lies with her sunken fleet in Manila bay, both mere memories of the past.

Whatever may be the results of this war, as to territorial expansion, it was entered into with evident reluctance by the American people, and only for the highest sense of national duty and self protection. Once in, we know but one way out.

Terrible as war must always be it has its compensations in the patriotism it engenders and the heroism it develops. In spite of our sorrow, we cannot but feel a mournful pride that North Carolina, ever last in the quarrel and first in the fight, offered up the first sacrifice upon the altar of our re-united land.

Nations, like individuals, have their infancy as well as their manhood; and the patriot who guards the cradle of a new born state deserves fully as much as the hero who follows its conquering banner in the full tide of its imperial power.

The glorious victory of Manila, in its completeness, was not as important in itself or in its effect upon the destinies of mankind, as the battle of Guilford Court House. Had there been no Guilford Court House there could have been no Yorktown; and had there been no Yorktown there could have been no Manila.

Since the devoted labors of Judge Schenck but little is left to be said about the battle itself; and so it has become usual for the annual orators to select some revolutionary personage as the subject of his address.

As the old Romans thought the duty of eulogy rested upon the nearest surviving relative, under the idea that he was best qualified to speak of the virtues of the deceased; so it is thought that those who proudly claim the kindred blood will make the greatest effort to collect from the scattered and exceedingly imperfect records of that period the necessary facts to perpetuate the memory of our illustrious dead.

After Judge Douglas has received the congratulations of his friends, Mr. Z. V. Taylor, was introduced and presented a fine portrait of Washington in behalf of the artist, Mr. David L. Clark, of High Point.

In speaking of the heroism of that little band under General Ramsour which protected Lee's rear while he was retreating from the fatal field of Gettysburg, Virginia Dabney in singling out the North Carolinians by name declares that he does it not more on account of their valor than their modesty.

That modesty is to me hard to understand, but if it be hard to understand how utterly incomprehensible is that spirit—sometimes miscalled modesty—which sits calmly by and hears the fair names of its Revolutionary heroes blackened by slander without raising a voice in protest.

That spirit of malicious envy which seems to have been the curse of all nations and of all times, and which naught delights so much as to be able to cast a smirch upon the character of true manhood and virtue, in those days pointed the finger of reproach at men whose shoes they unworthily to loose and our own people have not only made no effort to refute these falsehoods, but in many instances have given credence thereto by quoting with approval.

Mr. President, those of us who remembered this spot as it existed a few years ago—a tangled forest—and see it now in all of its beauty, have cause to remember with gratitude your patriotic devotion to your country's history. Our bosoms swell with pride when we see here and there dotting these slopes the symmetrical monuments, erected by your tireless energy.

WAR DEPARTMENT SILENT.

Refuses to Make Public Despatches From Shafter.

TEN THOUSAND MORE TROOPS.

Being Hurried to Santiago—Sampson and Shafter Ordered to Co-operate and Take the City.

Washington, July 5—Despatches were received this morning from Gen. Shafter which the officials refuse to divulge.

The various departments are waiting with the greatest anxiety for news of the bombardment which Shafter announced would begin at noon today. The arrival of Pando and his troops and their entrance of the city, despite the efforts of Garcia to keep them out, adds greatly to the uncertainty of the situation.

Great relief will be felt in all quarters here when news of a successful onslaught on the city is received. Greater haste was shown this morning in sending reinforcements and ammunition to Shafter. Garretson's brigade of the third army corps will be sent to Santiago from Charleston tomorrow by the fastest ships available, probably by the Harvard, Columbia and Yale.

The sixth Massachusetts and sixth Illinois regiments will embark from Charleston. The Grand Duchess Bons has been secured to transport the first Rhode Island and it will embark at once on that vessel. The officials expect to have 10,000 additional troops under Shafter by the end of the week.

Washington, July 5—Secretary Alger states that he has tabled Admiral and General Shafter to hold a conference and formulate a plan to co-operate in the attack upon Santiago. The feeling prevails that the siege of the city will be prosecuted with the utmost vigor since the refusal of Linares to surrender.

Madrid, July 5—General Blanco reports to Sagasta that Admiral Cervera broke through the center of the American blockading line and escaped. The last official reports admit that two torpedo boats were lost.

San Francisco, July 5—In accordance with the wishes of the war department General Otis, in command here, proposes to hasten the fourth Manila expedition with all possible despatch. General Otis now has four ships ready to transport troops and so soon as the stores and equipment are secured the expedition will sail via Honolulu.

London, July 5—Despatches from Gibraltar state that in anticipation of the arrival of the American fleet under Watson the German battleship Oldenburger has been sent to Tangier to protect German interests. The Americans can take Tangier without difficulty and use it as a naval base for operations against the coasts of Spain.

Gibraltar, June 5—The Spanish Cruiser Alfonso XII lately arrived from Cuba, is afloat. The vessel had been used as a troop ship. The dispatch seems to indicate that the fire was accidental.

Washington, July 5—At the navy department it was said this morning that it was not expected that Sampson would be able to get into the harbor to aid Shafter immediately. The forts and batteries on shore are in good condition and there are 120 mines still intact in the channel leading to the inner harbor. It is not probable that the fleet will attempt to go into the harbor at present or until the channel can be cleared of its mines.

Port Said, July 5—The Spanish fleet under Camara, with the exception of the torpedo boats has entered the Suez Canal.

Kingston, July 5—The British warships Pallas and Alert left here this morning for Santiago to bring off the British subjects there before the bombardment by the Americans begins.

New York, July 5—The Mohawk and Mississippi cleared from this port this morning for Tampa under hurry orders from the navy department. At Tampa they will take on reinforcements for General Shafter.

An Answer to Inquiries.

A number of people have enquired as to why the Telegram did not issue an extra yesterday. There were two reasons:

In the first place there was a specific agreement made with the Daily Record at ten o'clock in the morning that neither paper would issue an extra.

In the second place the Telegram had agreed with the public to give the news as bulletins and with its tired compositors and pressmen to give them a holiday.

A PLEASANT OUTING.

The City Editor's Cruise Down Deep River.

On Tuesday morning, June 28, the city editor and manager of the Telegram, in company with J. M. Phillips, started from Ramseur in a canoe for a cruise down Deep river. The boat was built specially for this trip and was admirably suited for the purpose.

The weather was exceedingly favorable and the rain on Sunday preceding had raised the water so that going down stream traveling was made quite easy.

After two days of rowing through the lakes and bounding through rapids, dodging huge boulders and dangerous whirlpools, we reached the Phillips plantation about dusk of the second day. It was a delightful trip. Rough? Well, yes, in some places it was rough; but yet we liked it. We expected rough places, went prepared for them and were not disappointed.

We found plenty of shooting along the way; but did not stop to hunt until we reached the end of the journey where we visited old familiar haunts, and several beautiful nut crackers fell at the crack of our rifles. The fish did not suffer to any very alarming extent and there are almost as many in the river as there was before our trip. There are fewer snakes and ter-rapins.

Watermelons are not yet ripe along the river, the orchards are too far away and roasting ear corn is not yet in silks, and consequently the farmers have little cause to complain of deprivations along the way.

It is impossible, however, to make a trip like this without running the risk of getting into trouble. While in the old Howard or Moffitt mill pond a water bird of gigantic proportions made a splendid mark on the north bank of the river among some limbs and a rifle ball was sent whirling by him. At this point the river runs in a northeast direction. A little further on the river makes a sudden bend in a southerly direction. Just beyond this bend and on the south side of the river was a negro plowing a blind mare and two negro women hoeing corn.

We were hailed by the man: "Say, dat you men shootin' up de river?" "Yes," I answered, "what of it?" "Well, dat bullet come awhizin' 'long by heah an' lak ter hit dis mare. Ef she hadn't a seed it acomin' an' dodge 'er head it 'ud er hit her, sho'." And both the women testified that his statement was correct.

This incident is worth your attention a moment. A bullet fired in a northeasterly direction traveled due south, was seen by a blind mare who dodged her head in time to avoid being killed.

The University of North Carolina will offer Spanish to all of its students in the modern language department, beginning with the fall term. The course of modern language in most colleges consists of French and German only, but Spanish is the North American language and next to English is spoken more largely than any language on earth.

SAMPSON IN THE HARBOR?

Signal Officers Cable General Greeley That He Is.

SANTIAGO WOULD NOT YIELD.

Bombardment Began at Noon—Shafter Expects an Attack on His Position—Fighting at Manila.

On Sunday the Spanish fleet, under Admiral Cervera, ran from the harbor of Santiago by the sunken collier, Merrimac and attempted to escape to the open sea.

The Cristobal Colon, Cervera's flagship led the way, closely followed by the Almirante Oquendo, Infanta Maria Teresa and Vizcaya, and two torpedo boat destroyers, the Furor and the Pluton. They passed out under full steam and were immediately engaged by the United States battleships Iowa, Indiana, Oregon, Massachusetts, Texas, Brooklyn and the converted yacht Gloucester formerly the Corsair.

The Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the harbor and all the others were blown up, burned or sunk within twenty miles, except the Cristobal Colon which succeeded in getting about sixty miles away, but was run down and captured with the Spanish Admiral on board.

A despatch from Commander Watson says that 350 Spaniards were drowned or killed, 160 wounded and 1,600 captured.

American loss, one man on board the Brooklyn, Chief Yeoman Ellis, and only one man wounded.

Santiago was summoned to surrender at noon on yesterday and given twenty-four hours to surrender. The bombardment probably began at noon today as appears from despatches below.

SAMPSON IN THE HARBOR?

Washington, July 5—Gen. Greeley, chief of the army signal service corps, received despatches from signal service officers at the front just before noon today stating that Sampson had forced the channel and was then in the inner harbor of Santiago.

FIGHTING AT MANILA.

London, July 5—Advices received from Manila via Hong Kong state that the Spanish leader, Gen. Augustin, made a sortie in force for the purpose of repairing the aqueduct which supplies water to the city. The insurgents concentrated their forces and after several hours of fierce fighting drove the Spaniards back into the city. Both sides suffered severe losses in the battle.

SAMPSON TO AID SHAFTER.

Washington, July 5—Advices have been received from Admiral Sampson stating that he has endeavored to explode the mines in the channel leading to the inner harbor of Santiago but had succeeded in detonating a few of them only. The Spanish batteries at Smith Island, Morro Castle and La Socapa are still active and are manned. They fired on the American ships this morning when near the mouth of the harbor.

The administration, despite the batteries and mines, expects Sampson to force the channel and co-operate with Shafter from the inner harbor in the attack on Santiago. It is stated this morning that the Spaniards, probably encouraged by the arrival of Pando with five thousand reinforcements, have refused to surrender in reply to the demand of Shafter who has expressed a determination to begin the bombardment of the city at noon today in accordance with his notice.

READY TO OPEN FIRE.

Siboney, via Kingston July 5—6 a. m.—Already the men are at the front and manning the batteries planted on the ridges frowning down on Santiago. The gunners are eagerly awaiting the signal to open fire on the doomed city. After the receipt of Linares' refusal to surrender the city, General Shafter decided that no time was to be lost in carrying into effect his threat to bombard and lay siege to the city. The respite of twenty-four hours was granted at the request of the foreign consuls in Santiago and was a keen disappointment to Shafter, especially as it gave Pando time to arrive with his troops.

Since the arrival of reinforcements it is expected the Spaniards will make a sortie in a desperate attempt to dislodge the American troops from the positions they have secured or to break through the American lines and so escape. General Shafter has no fear that such an attempt will succeed.
