Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.-Already the speakership of the next House of Representatives is being discussed. If the republicans retain a majority, and organize the lower House of Congress it is presumed Speaker Reed will be re-elected. There is, however, considerable opposition heard just now against his election as Speaker, and it is said that several members of the New York republican delegation in the House may vote against his nomination in the republican caucus Among New York republicans in the city there is said to be such resentment against the Speaker on account of his refusal to take part in the campaign for Roosevelt, and to the Speaker's course is attributed the defeat of several of the republican candidates for Congress.
