The Delineator

Each twelve months offers the well dressed woman of the country a wonderful library of ideas in woman's dress. It is a guide to the woman who desires to dress a dollar as far as possible. The constant aim of the editor is to have the delineator suit the needs of various departments to every woman's purse.

Each issue is inserted except at a distance between an artist and a dressmaker. It will prove invaluable to the thoughtful reader of the Delineator that to learn of the actual cost of the material to be used. Each issue is prepared there is a discussion over each paragraph throughout its pages. A pattern undergoes the same process before being printed. The thoroughness of detail has been now proving its merit to the women of the land for over twenty-seven years. What is the result? The Delineator is found in five hundred homes each month. It is a woman's indispensable magazine. Single copies for sale and subscriptions taken by

HE IS WANTED IN TENNESSEE.

THE EXTRADITION OF BAXTER SHERWELL TO BE AROUSED.
Governor Russell will hear the case next Monday—Charged With Fraudulently Obtaining $4,500.
Raleigh Morning Post.

Next Monday Governor Russell will hear counsel on the question of honoring the requisition from the governor of Tennessee for the extradition of Baxter Sherwell, of Asheville, who is wanted in Knoxville, Tenn., on the charge of having defrauded the National Bank of that place out of $10,000.

Ex-Judge Spencer B. Adams, counsel for Sherwell, was here yesterday to see the Governor in his client's behalf. Sherwell is also represented by Locke Craig, of Asheville and Frank Robbins, of Lexington. The Bank of Knoxville is also represented by counsel.

Governor Russell stated that he would hear both sides before honoring the extradition papers, and Monday was the day agreed upon for opening to state the contentions of their clients. Mr. Sherwell is a man of wealth. He owns large drug store and is engaged in the manufacturing business. Several years ago he killed Dr. Payne of Lexington and was acquitted on the grounds of self defense.

The case in which he is connected at present is an interesting one. The Bank of Knoxville charges that Mr. Sherwell secured the payment of a note by fraud, and this allegation is stubbornly denied by him. The facts in the case, as stated here yesterday, are these: It is stated that Mr. Sherwell is engaged in the manufacture of bud springs, and he claims to have sold the exclusive right to sell the springs in certain territory in Missouri. A Mr. Maynard gave a note for $10,000 for this privilege, which was secured by a large tract of land, so it is alleged. The note purports to have been credited with payments amounting to $5,500.

Not very long since a man named Sorrell turned up in Knoxville and presented himself at the National Bank, inquiring for Mr. Sherwell. His story was that Mr. Sherwell had promised to meet him there that day. He said that the land given by Mr. Maynard as security for the note adjoined property of his own, and that he was anxious to purchase it. He left $500 with the bank stating that he had to go to Birmingham, Ala., on business, and requested that the bank take up the note at its face value in the event of the arrival of Sherwell. Sherwell arrived the next day, and the bank promptly took up the note at its face value—$1,500. It is stated that Mr. Sherwell was given $1,000 cash $3,500 in New York exchange. Two or three days later Sorrell put in appearance at the bank. He was told by the bank people of the purchase of the note. Sorrell then told them that he had made purchases in Birmingham with the money he had brought to buy the land, and that he would have to go home and secure the desired amount. The bank people say that Sorrell disappeared a few minutes later, and has never been seen since, and that he cannot be located.

The Knoxville bank contends also that Sorrell was a dummy, and that no such man as Maynard exists. The whole transaction is alleged to be one of fraud.

The contention of Mr. Sherwell will be, so it is said, that the bank people have not made a sufficient examination and investigation to negative the transaction.

The case was to have come up before Judge Stevens today on a writ of habeas corpus, but has been postponed pending a decision by the governor.

RYAN'S LATEST MOVE.
Special Masters Appointed by Judge Waddill.
Norfolk, Va., March 21—Judge Waddill today appointed Hon. Geo. E. Bowden, clerk of the court, and Hon. R. T. Thorpe, special masters to take evidence in the injunction proceedings of Thomas F. Ryan, of New York, against John Skelton, Williams, et al.

It will be remembered that Judge Waddill some time since refused to restrain the defendants from proceeding with the consolidation of other roads with the Seaboard Air Line system, and the testimony to be taken by the special masters, who will require about sixty days to complete their work, and are empowered to compel attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, etc., will be used in rendering a final decision upon the supplemented and amended bill of the plaintiff which disputes the legality of the consolidation.

Grand Opera Arrangements
New York, March 21—Maurice Grau, of the Maurice Grau Opera Company, and Henry W. Savage, of the Castle square Opera Company, have perfected definite and positive arrangements to give grand opera in the English Metropolitan Opera House. The agreement lasts for ten years. The company will be known as the Metropolitan English Opera Company. The chorus will number seventy youthful, well schooled voices, largely drawn from Castle Square choruses and American choruses of the Metropolitan. The orchestra will comprise forty of the best musicians in New York, to be increased when necessary.

When you start to buy carpets, matting, art squares or rugs it will pay you to take a look through our line. Thacker & Brookmann.
