KILLED HIS WIFE.

Tragedy of a Kansas Farm Life. Husband in Jail.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—W. H. Klensmire, whose wife was yesterday found murdered near his home, at Holton, Kans., buried in a shallow trench, was arrested in Kansas City, Kans., today. Marks on the body, which is believed to have been buried since May 19, indicated that her skull had been crushed with a club, and suspicion was directed against the husband, who disappeared on that date.

Klensmire made the following statement:

"My wife and I disagreed frequently, but I usually let her have her way. Just before her death she was very angry because I wanted to sell some land to which she had signed a deed. She said she would leave me. But I did not want people to know she had left me, and told her to say she was going away on a visit. We had a few words on Sunday (May 12) about it. She went away and later I saw her body hanging from a rope in the barn.

"I took her body down, but was afraid of the disgrace and hid it in the straw. The next day I buried it. I told the children she had gone to Texas and the telegram I had sent saying that she was dead was intended to keep them from knowing she had killed herself."

All this was got out of Klensmire in short, hesitating sentences. Asked about the circumstances of his wife's crushed skull he said:

"Maybe the dirt falling on it mashed it in. I wouldn't strike her."

There was not more than two feet of dirt over the body when it was found. Klensmire is a German farmer, forty-eight years old and uneducated. He talks with hesitation, and appears dull of mind. The possibility that he would be tried for murder seemed secondary to the disgrace that would result from the publicity of the affair. Klensmire was born near Holton, and has always lived in that vicinity. His mother and several brothers and sisters live there and are prosperous and respected.

A Small Runaway.

Messrs. W. T. Powe and D. A. Hodgins, of the Odell Hardware Company, started out to the Carpet Mill this morning in a buggy, but they didn't get there, not that trip. While driving on Elm street, the spindle on the front axle broke. This scared the horse, a high spirited animal, and he ran for a short distance, but was checked by the occupants of the buggy. No other damage was done.

SUNDAY COLFERS ARRESTED.

YONKERS CLERGYMEN PUT A STOP TO THE SUNDAY GAME.

A Prominent Golfer Arrested While Playing With Ladies, But the Ladies are Not Disturbed—An Old Man Calls in Question Which Day of the Week is the Real Sabbath.

Yonkers, N. Y., June 2.—Benjamin Adams, a member of the Board of Education of this city, was arrested here today for playing golf at the Saegkill Golf Club links on North Broadway. He was accompanied to the links by Walter W. Hodgman, secretary of the Otis Elevator works, who, however, was not arrested, but went to the police headquarters with Mr. Adams to bail him out. The latter was released on bail to appear before the police Magistrate tomorrow morning. At about the same time that the police were arresting Mr. Adams Mr. John C. Havemeyer was preaching from the pulpit of the Central Methodist church of this city denouncing the practice of desecrating Sunday with games and by working. He was vigorously denounced by an old man in the audience, who stated that he had come from New York to answer Mr. Havemeyer, as the millionaire had been advertised to speak from the pulpit.

The arrest of Mr. Adams is the result of the petition presented to the Police Commissioners by a number of Yonkers clergymen protesting against the Sunday baseball playing in Yonkers and demanding that the police enforce the law impartially and said that golf playing must be included in the prohibited sports. When this announcement was made it raised a storm of indignation among the ball and golf players and a number of the latter served notice on their pastors that they would sever their connection with their churches unless the ministers disavowed their signatures to the petition. The result of this was that two of the ministers wrote to the local papers and stated that they had only signed to the petition at the request of a fellow minister and did not even know where the ball grounds were situated. Last Sunday the ball players went out of town to play, but the golf players posted lookouts to watch for the police. In this way they managed to successfully elude the police. Today they were not so successful. Detectives Welsh and Robinson surprising Mr. Adams in the act of playing.

The case will be taken to the highest courts in the event of a conviction. Mr. Adams will be defended by J. Livingston Morse of the Palisade Commission, who is a resident of this city. The arrest of Mr. Adams was made while he was at play with a number of women members of the club. They, however, were not subjected to the ignominy of a ride in the patrol wagon as was Mr. Adams. The names of the women are all withheld by the club members.

As a result of the agitation here John C. Havemeyer of the multi-millionaire family of sugar kings today occupied the pulpit in the Central Methodist church to discourse on the "Desecration of the Sabbath." Mr. Havemeyer took the ground that not only were Sunday sports a violation of law and order, but also all forms of Sunday labor. He made the statement that the people should not patronize trolley or steam railroads on Sunday because it tended to encourage corporations to keep their men working on Sunday, thus violating the Fourth Commandment.

The speaker made an earnest address and he was eagerly followed by a congregation of many of the most prominent citizens of the city. At the end of his address Mr. Havemeyer asked if any one present desired any information on any point that he had not fully covered. A venerable looking man arose and said:

"My good sir, will you tell me by what authority you call the first day of the week the Sabbath when the Scriptures tell us that the Sabbath was on the seventh day?"

Mr. Havemeyer made answer, but hardly had he completed when the aged man was on his feet in reply.

"Where can you refer me to, any book or paper that will prove your assertions," he asked. "I challenge you to produce them and know that you cannot. In the name of God Almighty and Jesus Christ I call upon you to repent of your sins and stop desecrating the real Sabbath."

Mr. Havemeyer cut his questioner short by refusing to discuss the question further.

After the services a number of persons crowded about the elderly man as he was making his egress from the church. He would not reveal his identity and when questioned about himself simply said:

"I do not belong in Yonkers, but I came here today to disprove the assertions of this wealthy man."

Comment was made by the congregation on the fact that Mr. Havemeyer had hired a stenographer to be present at the church and take stenographic notes of his address. Typewritten copies were to be made for him today. Surprise was also caused by the appearance at the church door of Mr. Havemeyer's coach with the hired coachman on the driver's seat.

A SQUANDERED ESTATE.

An Incident Illustrating the Enormous Cost of Litigation in New York.

Chicago Tribune.

Samuel Wood, a Long Island millionaire, who died several years ago, provided in his will for the establishment of a college of music in New York City, and set aside over half a million dollars for that purpose, his idea being that in a few years the fund would increase so as to give the people one of the finest colleges or that kind in this country. There was much talk at the time about the generosity and public spirit of the donor and the great good his benefaction would confer upon musical students. Then the talk died away.

Many years have gone by and at last some curious person, remembering the provision of this will and wondering whether the fund was not big enough by this time to be applied to the purpose contemplated, has made some inquiry about it, with the result of discovering that prolonged litigation over the estate has eaten up the property and that there is no prospect of the musical college will ever be founded. The money which should have been used for it is in the pockets of the lawyers.

Commenting upon this incident, the New York Tribune says: "At some time in the future the people of this State may perhaps demand that the Legislature shall take some action to diminish the excessive cost of legal proceedings in disputes over wills and estates." But why should there be legal proceedings at all? If Samuel Wood, instead of waiting until he died and was no longer here to look after the college while he was living, it would have been built and have benefited the public. Now the only beneficiaries are a lot of lawyers. He is not the first who has made this mistake. It is strange that so many wealthy persons, instead of giving their money while living, like Carnegie, Rockefeller, Morgan and Pearsons, and looking after its application, take the risk of defeating the project they have set their hearts on by exposing it to the greed of lawyers. It is not sensible or business-like. Do yourself what you wish gone.

Has Duel With a Burglar.

Columbus, Ga., June 2.—At 1 o'clock this morning Officer Herman Reynolds surprised a man in the act of burglarizing the Sixteenth street school building. Officer Reynolds heard a noise in the rear of the building, and went into the yard to investigate. As he turned the corner of the building he distinguished the form of a man in the shadow of the building.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

Almost instantly the would-be burglar, who was scarcely a dozen steps off, began firing at the officer. Reynolds replied and eight shots were fired in less than a minute's time, each of the men firing four times as fast as they could work their pistols. At the fourth shot the man broke and ran. The officer fired two more shots, by which time his six-shooter had been emptied. He is satisfied that the man was not injured, as he was running like a deer. The officer lost sight of the burglar in St. John's alley. Officer Reynolds could not tell whether the man was white or black.
