NEWS ITEMS FROM AYDEN

(Special to the Daily News)

AYDEN.—Our town was filled with strangers this week from various parts of the State, the occasion being the Methodist District Conference. Among the other visitors was Rev. H. E. Tripp of Bethel, who held a pastorate at this place for four years, and is still held in loving memory by his many friends here.

Mr. Barnett Eakes tells your correspondent that his section was visited by a rain last Wednesday that he would call a "frog-strangler."

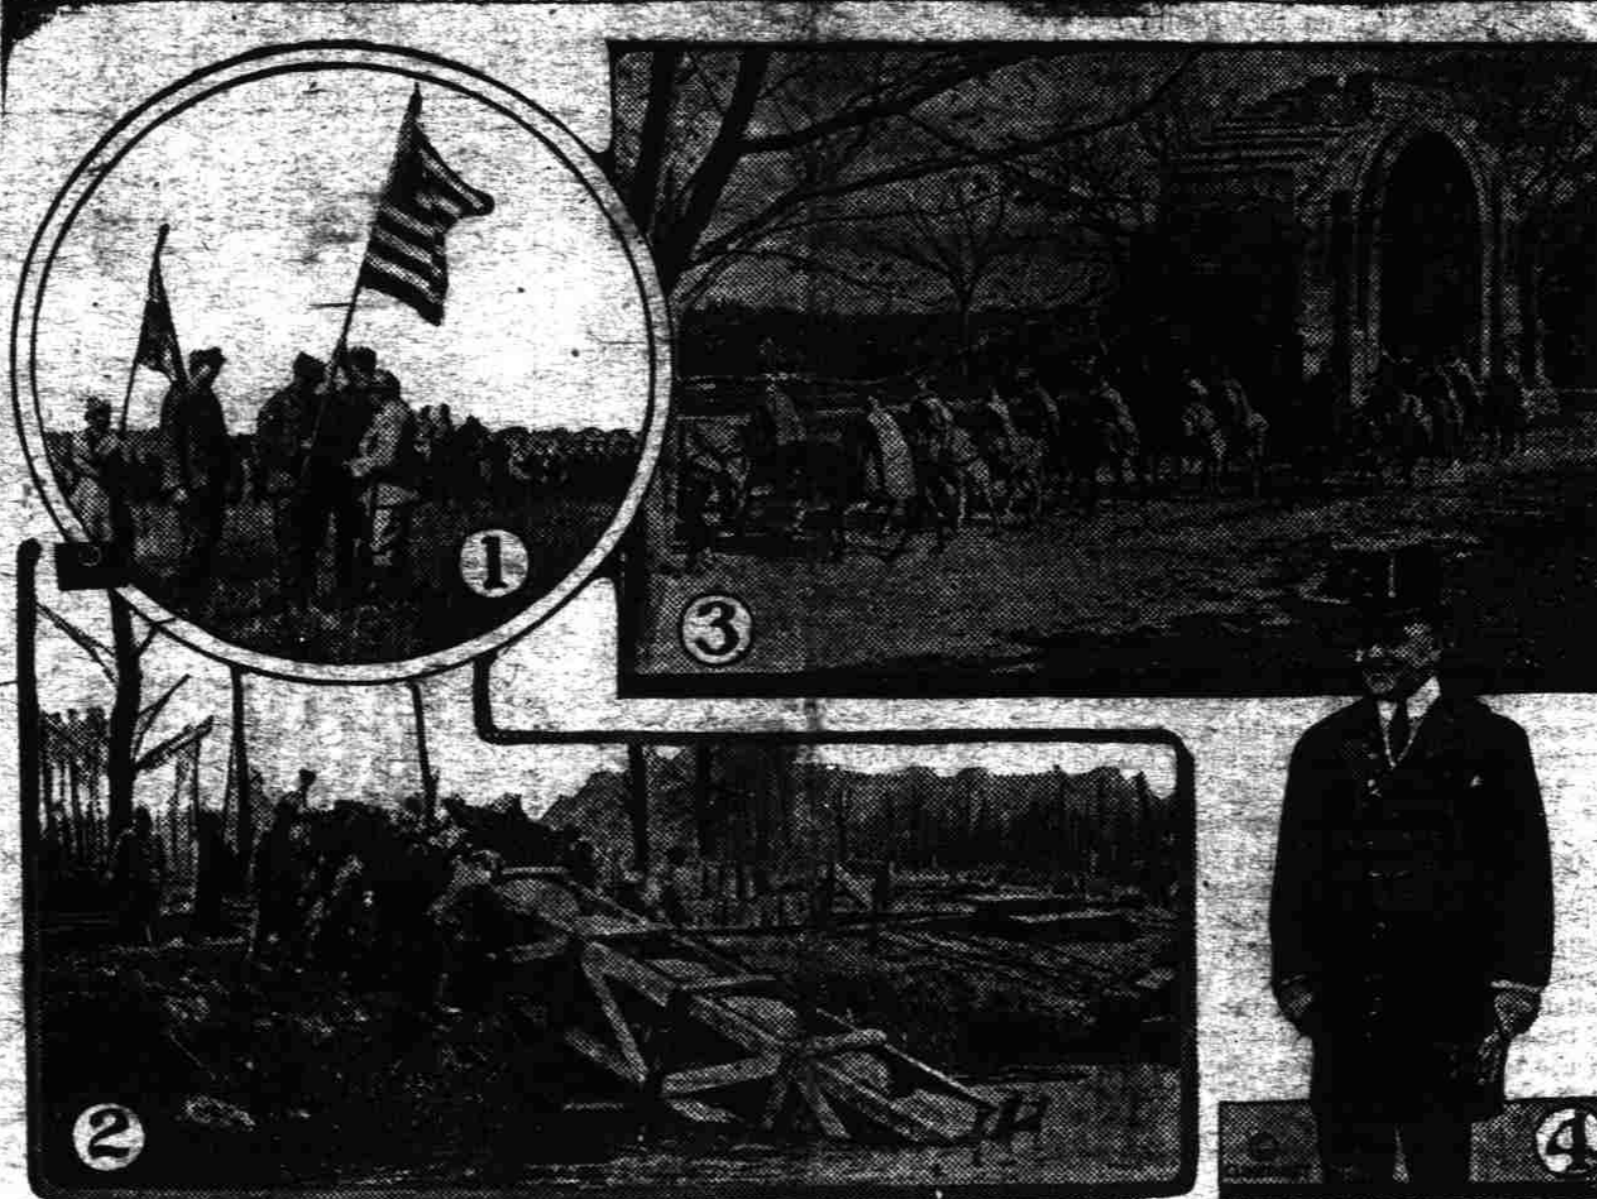

The recent rains, together with the new-made roads, have made travel almost impossible. Royce Allgood, a small boy living near town, is reported to have pulled 19 automobiles out of the mire near his home with the assistance of his mule and cart. He was liberally rewarded by the tourists.

Mr. Joyner Wingate Dead.

Mr. Richard Wingate received a telegram last night announcing the death of his father, Mr. Joyner Wingate, at St. Luke's Hospital in Richmond, Va., where he had undergone an operation a few weeks ago. Mr. Wingate was one of Ayden's most substantial farmers, held in high esteem, loved and highly respected by all who knew him, and was a member of the Masonic order. His remains will arrive here Saturday night, and will be in wait at his residence until Sunday at 4 o'clock, P. M., at which time they will be taken to his farm three miles west of town, and buried with Masonic honors.

Must Ascertain for Themselves Whether or not They're Drafted

WEBB MILLER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—The American men of military age will themselves be responsible for ascertaining whether or not they are drawn in the big human lottery that will soon begin to grind out the names. Hence the War Department asks that during the next few days every one be alert to read the newspapers announcements of the draft requirements. When in doubt ask the local Exemption Boards.

Briefly this is what the eligibles must do:

"First go to your Exemption Boards and find out what your red-ink serial number is, as soon as the Boards have finished numbering the cards for the lottery. Then watch in the newspapers for the drawing of the numbers in Washington. Then find out whether your number was drawn, and if it was, find out the order in which you must appear. Finally, learn when and where the physical examination will be held.

Every one of the boys has paid his fee and dues.

Ten of them reported promptly this morning to begin the work, and by eleven o'clock had completed the task and thereby earned about fourteen dollars for the order, as the Telephone Company paid them two cents apiece for distributing the books.

The boys are planning to have a real outing some time this summer. The details have not yet been worked out, but it is certain that they will decide upon something that everyone will enjoy.
