

MAKING bread in a Bedouin tent on the deserts of Arabia is quite a different proposition from baking bread in our modern establishment—a difference the people of this community appreciate.

Our Bread

has that delicious flavor that gives it a place distinctively its own in homes where "good eating" is appreciated. The same thing is true of our pies, cakes, doughnuts and all other forms of pastry.

Possible Origin of Khaki.
There are many versions of the origin of khaki, but one that is new to me comes from a veteran of the Mutiny who followed Nicholson through the breach at Delhi.
During the siege there, he tells me, it was noticed that the white drill uniforms of the regiment, then known as the old "Dirty Shirts," the first European Bengal fusiliers of the old company's service, proved excellent marks in the moonlight for the Sepoy mutineers who held the city.
The men were told, therefore, to darken them by any means they could find. Their method was to boil the uniforms in the "dixies" or regimental kettles in which tea was made, together with bark stripped from the trees in the neighborhood, which made a fairly satisfactory brown dye.
Time does not seem to have brought any improvement on the "Dirty Shirts" idea, though it may have improved their methods.—Westminster Gazette.

Poverty in China.
A wealthy Chinese money lender in Manchuria was convicted of making false declarations regarding robberies of his caravans by Mongolian bandits. His conscience troubled him to such an extent that he offered to contribute an annual sum of $750 for the relief of the poor. This money was made the basis of a fund for feeding the helpless at Kungchuling.
Manchuria is terribly poor, despite the mineral and agricultural riches extracted from its soil and rocks, all of which products are shipped abroad. There are probably thousands of industrious natives unable by unremitting toil to earn more than a meager living. When to their natural difficulties are added the ravages of bandits and the evils of misgovernment, such as prevail in many parts of China, abject poverty and starvation must be the lot of people who in the best of times are only half fed.—East and West News.

"Rockets and Blue Lights."
Charles M. Schwab, the steel master, owns the famous painting "Rockets and Blue Lights," by Turner, the noted English colorist, for which he is said to have paid a quarter of a million dollars.
The painting represents a storm or heavy weather at sea. The high sea is breaking on a sandy shore, in which the lights are reflected. Two steamers are rolling in the tumultuous ocean and are almost hidden from view by the great waves and showers of mist and spray.
The vessels are warned by rockets of the shoal water from the end of a pier, while beyond at the left the harbor is fairly discernible. In the foreground a group of fishermen appear looking intently out upon the sea.
"Rockets and Blue Lights" is considered one of the artist's masterpieces.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Monkeys Are Fighters.
"Most persons will guess lions or tigers are the most dangerous animals to train," said an animal trainer, "but they're wrong. Give a lion one good licking and he'll remember it. He hits back only when his man is down or has his back turned, but a monkey will fight against any odds, and you never can tell when he'll hit back. Even a medium small monkey can strike a blow that will reach through a coat, vest and two shirts, and he leaves a nasty wound. The most daring thing I ever did was to go into a monkey cage and take a baby from its mother. The ordinary house cat is the most stubborn animal under training, but the monkey is the most dangerous if you work the larger kinds."—New York Sun.

"Oh, Tom, why can't you ever come into the house without bringing a tale of trouble with you? I'm so sick of hearing about how hard you have to work to keep the bills paid."—Chicago Herald.

Locating the Gurgle.
"I like this poem of yours to a brook. It fairly gurgles. You evidently wrote it by a rippling rill."
"Not exactly," said the poet, "but I did write it with a fountain pen. Maybe that accounts for it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
