

Mitchell to Run on a Fusion Ticket

(By United Press.)
NEW YORK.—All opposition by Mayor Mitchell to the candidacy of William Bennett on the Republican mayoralty ticket was dropped when Mitchell and Bennett appeared before Justice Goff of the Supreme Court and asked for an order declaring Bennett nominated.
It was announced, however, that Mitchell would run for mayor as a fusion candidate.
In a statement issued today Mitchell said that he would run "to keep the city out of the grip of Tammany Hall, and clean of influences."

Bad Wreck in Okla. Kills More than 27

KELLYVILLE, Okla. — Twenty-seven persons are known to have been killed and more than a score injured in a head-on collision late last night between a westbound St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train and an empty train which had been used for transporting troops one mile southwest of Kellyville. At 9 o'clock the bodies of seven white men, three Indians and seventeen negroes had been taken from the wreckage of the passenger coaches, three of which were telescoped.
The passenger train is said to have been ordered to wait at a siding here for the empty troop train to pass, but for some reason pulled out of the station meeting the eastbound train head-on at a bridge over Pole Cat Creek. Search of the wreckage for additional dead or wounded continued late.

SOUTH CAROLINIAN AND TAR HEEL GIRL IN SALISBURY JAIL

SALISBURY.—A young girl, giving her name as Mrs. Jennie Kennedy of Draper, and Dee Shaw of Waldo, S. C., are in jail here tonight with good prospects of facing a white slavery charge. The girl is only 15 years old and good looking. She says she was married in March to Kennedy, who left her, and that she came here from Danville with Shaw, who is about 23. The Federal authorities will investigate the white slave features of the matter.

To Open a New Store Here About Oct. 10.

Mr. Ed Cohen, of Norfolk, Va., will open a ladies' and gents' ready-to-wear store in Greenville about October 10. He was in the city this week making arrangements to this end, and has secured as location the building now occupied by H. Bentley Harris, next door to V. E. Stator, which will be fitted up for the new business.
Mr. Cohen will carry a complete line of goods for the trade in Greenville and surrounding territory. He has an announcement in this paper today in which he invites you to call on him when he has opened up and inspect his line before buying.
He has been successfully engaged in business in Norfolk for some years, and has decided to come to Greenville. The Daily News welcomes him to the city.

Heavy Sales Again on Tobacco Market

Another week of heavy sales has passed for the Greenville tobacco market. Yesterday's sales were blocked, the last house finished this morning. Probably a little more than 200,000 pounds were sold for an average of 30 cents, which is evidence that most of the cheaper grades are sold and the better tobacco is coming in.
While all the factories and storage houses are taxed to their capacity, there is every indication that Greenville will take care of everything that is brought here. Farmers need not worry over the probability of a drop in prices, either, for the wheel is going to sell good, and it is within the bounds of possibility that more money can be gotten here for tobacco than any other market in the State.
All the warehousemen are pulling to that end.

CECIL DeMILLE WAS BORN IN WASHINGTON, N. C.

When the name of Cecil DeMille, appears on the screen, as being the author of the soul stirring picture that is to follow, it does not make the impression on the Greenville audience that it otherwise would if it was generally known that both his father and grandfather were once residents of this city and have near relatives living here now. Cecil was born in Washington, N. C.
Henry DeMille, father of Cecil lived here when a child in the house on Washington street known as the Old Cherry house. This building has since been cut in half and two houses made of it. Henry grew to manhood after leaving Greenville and became quite famous as an author and playwright. His two sons, William and Cecil have followed in his footsteps and are today recognized as leading playwrights and authors.

Ed Hearne Writes to the Red Cross

The Daily News herewith publishes a letter from Ed Hearne, a local boy, now at Camp Sevier, Greenville, S. C., to the Pitt County Chapter Red Cross, Greenville, in which he expresses thanks for a comfort bag sent him. The letter was turned over to this paper yesterday too late for publication.

Red Cross Association, Greenville, N. C.

Dear Ladies:
If you will excuse, pencil which is a soldier's luxury, I wish to write a note of thanks for the comfort bag you so kindly sent me a few days ago, cannot begin to thank you as much as I should but I just want you to know that I appreciated the bag, and the thoughts from the depth of my heart. It is such a useful present and I really don't know how I got along without it before for I have used it every day since it arrived. There was a regular sewing circle in our tent the day it came, for we had been putting off that stunt until last button was off of every uniform we had. We each would say, "Well, we must get some needles, buttons and thread when we go in to town this evening," but each time we come back without it, for you know how forgetful men are. But we sure mustered those needles into service immediately upon their arrival. So you see there were eight glad hearts, and mended suits, instead of one. It is very kind of you ladies to work so hard for our comfort and we deeply appreciate all that you do—and each of us fully realize that it would be impossible to win a war without the help of the women at home. Its their prayers and their work that makes our road easy, and we all realize the fact. I'll always think of all the dear ladies at home every time I use the bag (and that is every day) and although when my boat pulls off from shore, and America fades away in the distance I may never see her shores again nor may never again hear the voices of loved ones at home, but some future day the final reveille where there will be no more parting, shall sound and we'll all meet again, "no more wars nor rumors of wars" and where right and justice shall reign supreme.

We are kept very busy now learning new drills and new exercises introduced by French and Russian officers that were in the Battle of Verdun. You know they are interesting. When they tell of their wonderful experiences a thrill just goes all over you making you anxious to start for "No Man's Land," where the greatest war for humanity's sake now rages. Again thanking you for the comfort bag and with very best wishes, I am Sincerely,

ED. HEARNE.

COL. NICHOLS OF RALEIGH COMMITS SUICIDE FRIDAY

RALEIGH.—"Old, poor and blind. What is the use of living?" Leaving these reasons for his deed in a note found on his desk, Col. John Nichols, former member of Congress and for nearly twenty years a United States commissioner in Raleigh, shot himself through the head with a 32-caliber pistol at fifteen minutes to six o'clock yesterday afternoon. He died just as his body was being carried into Rex Hospital, less than half an hour afterwards.

Colonel Nichols had just returned to his office in the Federal building after an early supper at a downtown cafe. Wiley Latham, negro janitor in the Federal building, was in Colonel Nichols' office when the shot was fired but when he heard the report, he ran out of the office without looking to see what had happened. Calling Major Leo D. Hearnt, whose office is next to that of a second and found Colonel Nichols, the janitor returned, Nichols stretched out on a sofa.

Red Cross in Worthy Undertakings

(BY GEO. MARTIN)

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON.—The American Red Cross has begun an army of step-fathers and mothers for the families of the country's fighting men at the front it was learned today.

The idea was recently announced. The plan is now in progress of execution. Thousands of men and women are being recruited to take up the six weeks course which will fit them to man the domestic listening posts in every city and town in the country.

Seventy-five thousand soldiers' families will have been aided in the conduct of their personal affairs by these Red Cross helpers during the first year of the war, it was estimated today by Director General of Red Cross.

The aid will run the gamut of family affairs, from the giving of legal or medical advice to keeping up the insurance and seeing that the mortgage is not neglected. The Red Cross experts will even assist financially in bringing some of the more ghastly chasms of unavoidable debt. This help will take the form of temporary loans.

"The problem of financing dependant families outright, however, said the Red Cross, is too big a problem. It should be cared for by the government. When the soldiers and sailors return, from the war" said Director General Persons, "the families entrusted to the care of the Red Cross should be found to have maintained, as far as possible, the essential standards of home life."

"This work will demand more than a grant of money or a temporary reference to a doctor, a lawyer, or some other adviser. It will frequently require a long-continued acquaintance with the family, a systematic understanding and appreciation of its ideals, its ability to attain them, the obstacles in the way, and the application of a practical common sense psychology of stimulating and encouraging the family to surmount its difficulties and achieve success."

The Red Cross has established institutes in conjunction with twenty or thirty universities throughout the country where six weeks of intensive training will be given to these volunteer workers who wish to enlist in its service.

Renaming Indians.
Some years ago, in order to make their inheritance of land more simple and secure, our government commissioned Dr. Charles A. Eastman, a Sioux Indian, to rename more than 15,000 Sioux with their family names. The task was a tremendous one and full of difficulties.

Where possible Dr. Eastman kept the original Sioux name of some member of a family, as in bestowing the name "Matoska," meaning "White Bear," on the family of that chief. Sometimes the combination of wife's name and husband's name has produced a musical result, such as "Winnona Otana." The favorite name for women means "she who has a beautiful home," which Dr. Eastman has Anglicized in the patronymic "Goodhouse." But by far the hardest task was in finding new names for the surnames of Indian nomenclature. "Bobtailed Coyote" was a young Indian who has come to prefer himself as "Robert T. Wolf." After a long struggle with "Rotten Pumpkin" Dr. Eastman at last recorded the owner of the name on the tribal records under the noncommittal title of "Robert Pumpkin."—Los Angeles Times.

A Test of Civilization.

The remarkable people of this world are useful in their way, but the common people, after all, represent the nation, the age and the civilization. Go into any town or city; do not ask who lives in that splendid house; do not say, "This is a fine town; here are streets of houses with gardens and yards and everything that is beautiful the whole way through. Go into the lanes, go into the back streets, go where the mechanic lives; go where the day laborer lives. See what is the condition of the streets there. See what they do with the poor, with the helpless and the mean. If the top of society bends perpetually over the bottom with tenderness, if the rich and strong are the best friends of the poor and needy, that is a civilized and a Christian community; but, if the rich and the wise are the cream and the great bulk of the population skimmilk, that is not a prosperous community.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A Notable Day's Work.

Robert Burns composed his masterpiece, "Tam o' Shanter," in one day in the open air. Burns went out of the house in the morning and, not returning, his wife joined him in the afternoon with her two children. Seeing that he was "crooning to himself," she forebore to interrupt him, but stayed in the fields at a distance, where she could see him. She observed him wildly gesticulating and at times faintly leaping with joy. She said to Allan Cunningham, the poet, after her husband's death, "I wish ye had seen him; he was in such ecstasy that the tears were happing down his cheeks." He committed the poem to writing by the riverside and went into the house and read it to his wife at the fireside with great triumph—one of the most notable day's work ever done in Scotland!

Only One Cost System.

The only cost system which is worth the use of paper and ink is that one which is an integral part of the general books of account. The day of the memorandum cost system has definitely passed. There is no way of proving cost results except through the general ledger, and since figures not known to be accurate are worse than worthless, being dangerous because misleading, it naturally follows that without adequate general ledger control the cost system is a menace to those who rely upon it.—Stephen Gilman in Industrial Management.

Splendid Test of Patriotism.

One of the most remarkable subscriptions ever raised in Great Britain was the one initiated by Pitt in 1799, in which year England rejected Napoleon's proposals of peace. Pitt appealed to all who could afford it to contribute voluntarily toward the expenses of the war. It was a splendid test of patriotism. Over £2,000,000 was actually raised in this way—a much more imposing sum than it looks when one considers that the population, largely poverty stricken, was then only about one-fifth its present size.—London Chronicle.

Compulsory Cleanliness.

"I don't believe in compulsory military training," said Meandering Mike. "A man should not be compelled to fight."
"Dat ain't de point," rejoined Plodding Pete. "If you get into trainin' you don't know whether you'll ever have to fight or not. But it's a sure thing dey'll make you use soap an' water regular, which is contrary to personal liberty."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

To Impress the Neighbors.

Mr. Wigsby—See here, my love, there is some mistake. The expressman left seven trunks on our front porch. Mrs. Wigsby (who has just returned from the mountains)—Imbecile! Don't you understand? He's coming back after dusk for the extra five.—Boston Transcript.

Embarrassing.

Judge—I find you guilty of beating your wife and fine you $10.
Prisoner—Could you trust me for it till tomorrow? I hate to brace her for it right now.—Vancouver Province.
