(By United Press)
Berlin (By Courier to Paris, March 25)—The Spartacans are planning to launch their third revolution before the first of April.

This revolt it is learned from the Spartacans themselves is intended as a signal for a general Bolshevik uprising through central Europe.

The Russian Bolsheviks have been asked to start the invasion and to insure the revolution's success.

The Spartacans expect to open hostilities without warning since the general strike which preceded the last revolution gave the government time to prepare.

They are now gathering their weapons, ammunition and food which they are storing in numerous secret rendezvous.

Ministers of City Are Holding Now Religious Service

The ministers of Greenville are holding religious services at the Training school at the twilight hour each day at the request of the Y. W. C. A. Once during the day the girls gather in groups for prayer services in preparation for the evening service.

Rev. W. H. Moore, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church, conducted the first service last evening. His theme was "Salvation", and his text was from the 80th Psalm, "And now Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in Thee". He preached an earnest forcible sermon, showing that any life is incomplete without Christ, but especially that of a teacher; she can never hope to reach the soul of the child unless her own soul life is full and rich. He made his congregations see Christ the teacher, saying there was far more said about his teaching than about his preaching.

He gave the reasons why one needs Christ, and proved that each one would have to come to him on her own initiative, and after his invitation waited for the move to come from the girls themselves. His sermon left the girls thinking seriously.

WIRELESS PHONE MAY SPAN THE OCEAN

(By United Press)
New York—"Hello! Hello! Is this New York? Yes? Well, how's every little thing along Broadway?"

"Ah, hello, there, cousin! How's dear Old Linnon?"

A telephonic conversation between London and New York? Yes, certainly. And at no very far distant date, either.

At least, that's what the Marconi wireless experts are saying in New York. And they ought to know—for the experts have been making some very exhaustive experiments.

Roy A. Weagant, Marconi's chief engineer, announced shortly after the armistice was signed that his new discovery would quite eliminate the interference of static electricity from radio graphic currents. At first the scientific world was skeptical. They didn't think it could be done.

Nevertheless, Weagant was correct in his deductions, according to the Marconi company, and as a result plans are already under way for the installation of a wireless telephone system between New York and London. Statics, or "strays", as they are known in the bewildering language of the wireless experts, are loose, uncontrolled electrical elements. Weagant told the members of the New York Electrical society, and these statics stray into the wireless messages sent through the air. They cause such a din at times that the messages are drowned. He had discovered the natural law which causes statics to travel in a vertical path. Weagant added, while the wave links of a radio message take a path parallel with the earth.

Weagant's discovery makes it possible to catch the statics going one way and the wireless going at right angles. In this way the two are kept from coming into contact and practically all of the trouble is thus eliminated.

In commenting upon the discovery, Marconi officials said that the elimination of atmospheric interference perfects the wireless to such a degree that trans-Atlantic telephony is a comparatively simple matter. As a result, the wireless telephone will soon conquer the ocean, the experts maintain, and the human voice, speaking in New York, will quickly find an echo in London.

Wasn't it S. F. B. Morse who asked, "What hath God wrought?"

"My Honolulu Girl" company arrived in the city this morning from Washington where they played last night. They will be the attraction at White's theatre tonight.

Lack of Clothing Among Europeans Becomes Serious

(By United Press)
Washington.—Lack of clothing in the liberated countries of Central Europe is regarded by Herbert Hoover, European relief commissioner, as fully as serious as the shortage of food. In a cablegram urging the American people to contribute liberally to the collection of clothing being made this week by the American Red Cross, Mr. Hoover said in some of the war devastated countries a considerable portion of the population was unable to leave their homes because of insufficient clothing while new-born babies in Serbia were wrapped in paper because cloth was not available.

"Illness, sickness and death are directly attributable to a condition which is unimaginable to anyone who has not seen it.

My Honolulu Girl White's Theatre This Evening

"My Honolulu Girl," the prettiest, most tuneful and by far the best musical comedy set en-tour this season by those whose business it is to produce, will be the attraction at White's theatre this evening. With a company of 35 artists, including one of the most captivating choruses ever gotten together, the production offers additional inducements in its scenic vesture. Neither money nor work has been spared to make the stage pictures just like Rembrandt's or Corot's. The first act, showing the Royal hotel at Honolulu was painted by Charles Gordon Ford, whose stage conceptions are as popular as Charles Dana Gibson's girls. The second act, showing the beach on the island of Hilo with a volcano in the distance is from the brush of Chatsworth Tylor, a pupil of the famous Buckram Fender.

There is a plot in "My Honolulu Girl", not a very deep one—just strong enough to keep you wondering what is coming next. Interspersed throughout the play are some beautiful song numbers in which the beauty chorus distinguishes itself.

NOW GETTING BACK TO A PEACE BASIS

Washington.—Washington is getting back to a peace basis rapidly. Uniforms are daily becoming more scarce on the streets and in public places.

There are not so many automobiles on the streets either. Where motor cars whose owners could not find garages were once parked throughout the residence section, such a sight is now a rare one.

Theatres formerly were sold out from footlights to gallery. Now there are frequently vacant seats.

The long lines outside the popular priced restaurants have disappeared, too, and one can get a meal without fighting for it.

Washington, N. C. Daily News of yesterday:

Washington is getting ready for the big day when Battery B and other boys who have been in service shall parade down the streets of the city and be accorded the kind of reception that their actions and deeds have merited.

This morning, under the guidance and direction of Edmund Harding the four pillars which will support the victory arch at the corner of Main and Market streets were erected. The arches will be put up tomorrow. A decorator will arrive here from Raleigh tomorrow and will proceed to drape the entire city with flags and bunting. Captain Leach advises that oysters and other delicacies will be provided in "ample sufficiency".

There will be a number of boys in the battery who are not natives of Washington and it will be necessary to provide accommodations for them. All citizens who can care for one or more boys in their homes for one night are urged to telephone their names immediately to R. Lee Stewart, either at his home or at his store.

The band from the State college and a local drum corps will furnish music for the big parade. A series of choruses representing the different allies will also be a feature of the big event. All boys who have been in the service and who have been discharged are especially urged to be in the parade. They will compose one of the most important divisions.

Although the date of the arrival of the battery is not known it is deemed possible that the boys will arrive here Friday. The Daily News has made arrangements to be informed just as soon as authentic information is given out at Camp Jackson.
