PROFITEERING REACHES APEX THROUGHOUT CENTRAL SIBERIA

(By Associated Press)—Profiteering has reached its apex as "a fine art" throughout central and western Siberia where no speculator is satisfied with less than 100 per cent profit and often gouges as much as 1000 per cent out of his hapless customers, according to stories coming in here. These traders, many of them smugglers, who, taking advantage of the shortage of everything except the products of the country, the unstable value of the ruble and the difficulties of transportation, contrive to get through with a few pairs of shoes, particularly ladies' shoes, a few bolts of silk or dress goods, a few cases of tinned fruits, or in fact, any foreign made product whatsoever, reap rich harvests. Before a regular express service was inaugurated the many special trains coming up from Vladivostok and Harbin were the targets of the speculators. By connivance with the porters and unknown to the other occupants, nearly every special brought in its complement of merchandise stowed away under berths and in obscure corners, to

CHAPLAIN CELEBRATES MASS GREAT COLOGNE CATHEDRAL

(By Associated Press) Cologne (Correspondence of The Associated Press)—A British army chaplain celebrated mass recently in the Cologne cathedral at the altar of the relics of the Magi, the skulls of the three wise men who came from the East to visit the newly born Saviour at Bethlehem. A number of American officers and men from the Coblenz area attended the services, and were permitted to view the relics. Tradition says that the Empress Helena procured the bones and took them to Constantinople, whence they were removed to Milan. In 1164 they were presented by Frederick Barzarsosa to Archbishop Reinold von Dassel, who brought them to Cologne. At first they were kept in the chapel of the Magi, the central chapel of the seven flanking the choir, but since the war they have been put away in the cathedral treasury, near the organ.

The bones are kept in a golden reliquary, a costly specimen of Romanesque craftsmanship in the form of a basilica, said to have been made about 1000 A. D. In the Cologne coat of arms three crowns are represented, the ownership of the Magi relics having suggested the design.

SMITH & SUGG MARKET REPORT

On account of block sale Friday we will have first sale Monday, 8th. While the market has been congested during the past week, we look for everything to clear up Monday. The large sales have not upset prices in any respect. Instead of prices getting weaker as they have on some of the other markets they have gotten stronger. Those selling last week at the Star were more than satisfied, a great many receiving $100.00 more for their load than they expected. See our ad in this paper today showing some averages for entire loads.
