Robinson's Big Circus Expected Early Tomorrow

Awe inspiring sights seem to be the order of the day since Uncle Sammy took a hand in the war that has been devastating Europe for the past four years, but there are few, if any, more inspiring sights than the lineup after the grand entree of The John Robinson circus which will show at Greenville tomorrow.

As usual, the grand entree brings before the audience an army of entertainers. After circling the "big top" the entire assemblage lines up and to the patriotic strains of the National Anthem, they present a sight that is not often witnessed in army reviews. As a member of President Wilson's official family at Washington stated after witnessing the performance in Cincinnati, "that demonstration seems to supply you a thousand reasons—irrefutable reasons—why you should be proud you are an American," and his words seem to express just the feeling all other experience.

The John Robinson circus is the only big show of the road this season making a special American demonstration at the beginning of every performance, and making it in a real, whole-hearted manner. Old Glory is always in profuse evidence about the John Robinson show.

The big free mile long street parade is scheduled to leave the show grounds promptly at ten thirty in the morning of show day. Five bands, three calliopes, hundreds of mounted people, numerous glittering dens and cages of wild animals, beautiful tableaux and floats and a herd of 25 elephants are shown in this wonderful pageant. Two performances will be given, rain or shine, under the huge waterproof tents. The first performance is at 2 and the second at 8 o'clock.

Under Orders is Attraction Here Tuesday Night

In describing "Under Orders", the famous dramatic novelty which A. H. Woods will present at White's theatre tomorrow night, Munsey's magazine referred to it as a gem, and said furthermore that it was one of the few powerful plays which the war has given us. This statement was endorsed by the press of New York and the eastern cities where the play was presented last season, and by the thousands of playgoers who found this gripping and human dramatic document the most extraordinary novelty which they had ever seen. The very originality of the piece promises to make it a fascinating entertainment. It is said to be technically as remarkable a play as has come to the attention of the American playgoers in recent years. Seats are now on sale at White's music store.
