Duke Goes Into Lead In Big Five Conference

State Victory Over Tar VANDY ACELEADING Heels Aids Blue Devils CONFERENCE CAGERS

1932 Winter Queen

Two Stiff Games Faced Dur-ing Remainder of Week By Duke University

Duke's Blue Devil cagers, idle for the night, saw themselves shoved in-to top place in the Big Five cage circle last night as a battling bunch of N. C. State Red Terrors staged a come ack in the final period of their game with the North Carolina Tar Heels to give the Chapel Hill team their first defeat of the season. Prior to the game Carolina and Duke were in a tie for the lead in the Big Five but the defeat of the Heels last night gave Duke undisputed first place. The Red Terrors were on the short end of a 14 to 8 score at the end of the half, but they made things merry in the last half to run the score to 19 to 18 at the final whistle and win the contest. The State quintet made a poor showing during the first half and five minutes of the game elapsed before they were able to cage their first goal. When they did start off in the final half, however, they combined their shooting with some close guarding to go into the lead before the final whistle. Morgan. State center, and Gurneau forward, led the Red Terrors in scoring while Hines, Weathers and Alexander were the leaders for the Tar Heels. The work of Allen Nelms at guard for State was one of the features, and often brought an end to mempred scoring threats.

Although on top of the conference for the time being, Duke will face two siff tests this week and will have to fight to remain there. Davidson will come to Durham on Friday night for a battle with the Blue Devils and on Saturday the Devils will be in the in Can at Chapel Hill in an effort w upset the Tar Heels.

down on Ocracoke Island than he tipped off Dr. McAtee (big shot) of the biological survey who in turn sent wardens down to make a survey. It all happened in less than 36 hours from the time the message reached Washington. That is action for you.

It all started when natives along the coast, and old natives, too, declared that they had never witnessed the like of geese starving to death. the situation? It was a cinch that the derson scoreless. At the opening of government could not replace the bottom grasses that are so scarce and which furnish food for the wintering something though to save the situation is the honest belief of natives who coast for three score and ten, maybe four score years.

Getting in touch with U. S. Game

Warden, William L. Birsch of New Bern, (a member of the biological survey) Dr. McAtee instructed him to come down to the island and make survey. State Game Warden England gave similar instructions to Charles J. Moore of Washington who holds a similar position with North Carolina that Warden Birsch has with the federal government. So they came down and made a tentative survey of the situation. It was a tentative one too. They stayed on the island about two hours interviewing natives the majority of whom had viewed the wildfowl straving down the banks and gave them a clear idea of it all. They (the wardens) have probably by this time returned to Ocracoke and Hatteras sections to make an actual survey on the feeding (where they were) grounds in questions.

They will arive along the island roads and paths and see brant and geese feeding far from salt water. Something unheard of until this year. hausted from starvation that they water or ground again, not a natural driving?-No.

Investigat-columnist — sometime correspondent ing the grasses they will find only black dead grasses where it should be green. And if they look over a small area they will find a dozen or more dead geese which if multiplied by the number of square miles that the birds use for feeding grounds will prove that there are approximately hundreds dying. What Can Be Done? No one knows the answer to this question.

Warden Moore got a laug hfrom the natives when he expressed the opinion that the birds might by the use of airplanes be driven to feeding rounds where there is food. (Like Mattanuskeet across the sound some 30 miles, or more away is said to have such a bottom.-Fowl there are plump and fat they say. But could they drive the brant or geese eihter away from this side of the sound? That is the question. Natives of the island declare that the geese (due to starving conditions) could not fly that far without dropping exhausted. And that is some thing to think about. Corn?

Corn is cheap and the government has the jack necessary to buy it. Wild geese could be induced to eat corn. Plenty of clubhouses along the coast have baited ponds that attracted the geese during the gunning season Brant learn to eat corn after being kept in capacity. That has been proven but they may not eat it the first day it is thrown out on the shoals or points. Geese, it is believed, would, so about the only answer to the question is to feed them corn. Never Before

As previously stated in this script such conditions have never been known to exist on the coast before. Back in the winter of 1917-18 (the big freeze) when ice covered the Pamlico sound so that wagons and teams could be driven upon it game was forced ashore. But as soon as the Walking along the marshes and shores thaw came they went back to their they will find brant and geese so ex- natural feeding grounds. DEFEAT WARRENTON

Fourth Conference Contests Are Added By Both Girls And Boys

Cage teams of boys and girls of Middleburg added two more victories to their record on Monday night when they took games from teams of the Warrenton high school. The boys won by a score of 44 to 13 while the girls piled up a 42 to 3 score. This gave the two Middleburg teams four straight victories in their conference play of the season.

The Middleburg teams got off to a good start at the opening of their games and the final result was never in doubt. Ellington, star of the girls game caged 32 points for the Middleburg team.

The Warrenton boys were unable to stop the fast passing of the Vance county team, although the visitors made several attempts to halt the Middleburg attack. The two teams go to Littleton on Friday night for a double header with the high school team sof that place.

Olympic Hope

From the per of nances to date of Uncle Sam's decathlon stars it appears that the foreign invaders will have to step some to garner any honors in the event in the coming Olympics. Frank O'Bryan, allaround athlete of the University of Nevada, who is shown above working out, recently scored 7,652 points in the ten-event classic. The world record is 8,100 and O'Bryan seems assured of a place on the U.S. Olympic team.

MAJOR FLEMING STAYS

AT MILITARY ACADEMY West Point, N. Y., Jan 27 (AP)-Definite word was received yesterday that Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the Miltary Academy, would be assigned to West Point for another year.

The Major was to have been relieved this June for other duties, his place to be taken by Capt. Lawrence (Biff) Jones. The transfer of Captain Jones to Louisiana State University where we will coach football, removed that possibility and the decision was made to continue Major Fleming here.
