PARADISE REGAINED. By Dora Hepner Motter. God first made man, and as a help-meet then. Gave him a wife, and Eden was complete. But after many morns and eves had passed. There came another need God had to meet. With loss of Paradise went loss of love. And woman's heart went groping through the wild. And tangled desert waste, till God leaned down. And placed within her empty arms a child. Then she was glad again, and young and gay. With her new love, gazing in his eyes. She saw reflected lights of glory shine. And found in Motherhood her Paradise.

Books On Washington Featured At Library

Among the new books which the H. Leslie Perry Library has for circulation there are a few fiction, a number of interesting non-fiction books in various fields and books for children of all ages. Any number of books have been written about George Washington for the Bi-Centennial celebration this year. Bernard Fay's biography "George Washington: Republican Aristocrat" published the latter part of 1931 is considered one of the outstanding books of the year and the best work on George Washington. "Can Europe Keep The Peace" by Frank H. Simmonds is a picture of contemporary Europe, written from first hand observation. The problems which are agitating European countries and endangering peace, are discussed and the attitude of the people toward war and internationalism is given. One writer has said of Edgar Albert Wiggam, "He can explode more of your pet theories without making you mad than any writer living." In his new book "Sorry But You're Wrong About It," he explodes many popular notions such as: the ostrich hides its head in the sand, the mother can birthmark her child, the beautiful are dumb and many other ideas that are generally accepted. The play "The Barrets of Wimpole Street," by Rudolf Besier which was so popular in England and has had such a long run on Broadway is now at the library. Louis Untermeyer's new anthology "American Poetry to Whitman" gives a short sketch of each poet's life and work and his better known poems. The latter part of the book on "Native Ballads and Folk-songs" is particularly interesting as it gives negro spirituals, cowboy songs and songs seldom included in anthologies. In recent years there have been many books written on Russia. Some of the older books particularly the Russian novels give the reader an insight into Russian life and affairs. A recent biography of Dostoevsky by Mirshky not only gives a competent account of his life but also a careful analysis of his novels and their sources. A volume of "George Washington Anniversary Plays" is available for persons preparing programs at this season of the year. "Small Town" by Bradra Field depicts life and character in a small Canadian town near Montreal. Another novel with the setting in Canada is Arthur Stringer's "Mud Lark." An English girl of good family leaves England to come over and marry an unknown Canadian wheat farmer. "Albatross" by John Presland is the story of a distinguished explorer who is disgraced by events attending his Antarctic expedition. The commander is the only survivor. A book which all the boys will enjoy is "Down Goose Creek" by William Seeman. William is a boy ten years old, son of one of the professors of Duke University, who explored a North Carolina river from its source to its mouth. Mrs. R. E. Crowder gave this book to the library. "Scalawag: The Story of A Little Dog" is a delightful story for the younger readers and for the older readers who love dogs. The first principles of physics and dynamics are briefly and clearly given in "What Makes the Wheels Go Round" by George Bock. Although this is a book for boys around twelve

Honor Dinner on Birthdays Given

Mesdames Uly Woodlief and Clarence Newman entertained last evening at a six o'clock dinner to honor Mrs. Frank Pardue and Clarence Newman, whose birthdays were observed yesterday. The dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Woodlief, on route four. The table was graced with an attractive centerpiece of spring flowers a color scheme of green and yellow and decorated in candles of the same color. Following the dinner, coffee was served in the living room. In a contest, Mrs. Newman won the prize, which she gracefully presented to Mrs. Pardue. Those present included members of the Woodlief and Newman families, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pardue of Charlotte, brother-in-law and sister-in-law of the hostess.

Cardui Had Helped Her During Girlhood

"I WAS tired all the time - had misery in my back and sides that kept me feeling bad," writes Mrs. E. H. Penn, 839 Front St., Portsmouth, Ohio. "I was in a nervous and weakening condition. I lost in weight. "During girlhood, mother had given me Cardui, and it had helped me so much then that I decided to take it again. I took several bottles and my strength began to return and I gained in weight. I soon lost that tired and weary feeling. "Cardui has done me a great deal of good since then. I have taken Cardui several times . . . and have been benefited. It does me lots of good, and I am always ready to recommend it."
