

Club Is Formed For Baseball Here During Summer

Henderson Team Will Be Known As The Athletics For The Coming Season

Patterson President, P. A. Smith Secretary, Otto Pahlman Manager

The Henderson Athletic Club has been formed with A. D. Patterson, president, P. A. Smith, secretary, and Otto Pahlman manager of the baseball club. The team will be known as the Henderson Athletics.

Signed contracts have been received from Ash Cook, "Red Oak" Edwards, and Millard Parrish. All report they have been working out at home when the weather permits and are anxious to get into action against the Piedmont clubs.

Mr. Pahlman is dickering with a high class second baseman, ex-collegian, he says and expects to have his signed contract in the strong box before long.

Next week the spring schedule will be published, and the fans will find some choice exhibitions in store for them.

Two separate House of David teams will play here during the month of April. The first of these teams will be here around the middle of April, featuring Moose Swaney Joe Savant and Jumbo Barrett. The next House of David club which is managed by Grover Cleveland Alexander, former big league pitching star, will be here the last of April. The dates of these games are to be announced later.

SECOND PRIMARY FOR U. S. SENATE BELIEVED LIKELY

Morrison's friends maintain he is already so well out in the lead that the three other candidates combined will not be able to keep him from getting the nomination in the first primary. They maintain that Morrison's position with a majority of the Democrats in the State is so secure and his Democracy so unimpeachable that he cannot be defeated in spite of his wealth or his wife's wealth. They point to how Morrison has stood by the party in times when he was not seeking office or had no dream of seeking office and that he has always been uniformly loyal in his support of the party platform and party ticket. They recall the trying days for the Democratic party in the State in 1928 and to the assistance which Morrison gave to many a county Democratic committee when the chances for carrying even the State ticket looked dark. They maintain that all of this will be remembered by a majority of the Democrats when they go to the polls on June 4 and that Morrison will be nominated by a good sized majority.

But the supporters of Reynolds, Grist and Bowie are by no means in accord with the contentions of the Morrison supporters. They point to the mistakes Morrison has made—his vote approving the appointment of Frank A. McNinch to the Federal Power Commission, his eulogy of the Duke Power Company in the Senate, and his apparent friendliness to the "big interests" since he embarked upon the sea of matrimony and became a plutocrat.

Morrison dealt in some detail with these charges now being made that he is too wealthy to represent North Carolina as its senator.

"When I was running for Governor in 1920, they said I was too poor and too backward to be governor, that I wouldn't know how to act either in the governor's office or in the Mansion," Senator Morrison said. "Now, because my wife happens to have some money, they say I have too much money and that I won't know how to represent the common people. When is it, then, that a man has neither too little nor too much money to run for office? I would like to know.

Yet the Reynolds followers maintain that he is making strong headway in all sections of the State. His friends here in Raleigh and Wake county maintain he will carry this county against Morrison, despite the fact that Morrison has some of the most influential Democrats in this section actively supporting him. It is generally conceded that Reynolds has some very material strength in many of the eastern counties between Raleigh and the coast, as well as in his own section of the State, and that his opposition to prohibition is gaining him the support of many of the younger and more liberal Democrats.

Indications here are that Grist is not making the progress either he or his friends expected and that his speeches, in which he has been attacking Morrison, the "big interests" and "special privilege," have not been making a very deep impression. Morrison's friends insist Grist has been helping Morrison more than he has been injuring him. Grist continues to appear confident he will defeat Morrison, however.

Nor does Bowie seem to be setting the woods on fire, from reports reaching here. He has a following in his own section, but does not seem to have taken root in other parts of the State.

JIMMIE GUTHRIE WRITES OF STORM

O'Neil Property Safe, But Rose's Yacht Ashore At Harker's Island

By JIMMIE GUTHRIE
I think it was last October about 21 or 25 that a terrific storm struck and finally swept the entire United States, the best I can recollect it first struck the state of New York, near by, or maybe on Wall Street, this storm, as we all know took the form of a so-called crash on the stock market.

However, in the wake of this storm most everything was laid to waste and ruin, everywhere could be seen darkness and gloom, every place where this storm of October 24 or 26 visited has been desolate from that great money storm.

Four months has gone by since its first appearance over the northern states, though a storm may be ever so dangerous it took with it, as storms usually do, warm weather.

Really I had no thought of it striking the coast down here, but one evening in January it sidled down here and struck the banks, leaving not a shred or a threat, placing the buildings in utter darkness as such storms do. Well still we had a hope and encouragement that such a storm could never visit our shoreside. That we were sure enough in the extreme eastern end of Carteret county and North Carolina where the gulf sends its clear blue breakers to ward off market storms.

All this time though, I knew that March had not got here yet. I was living a quiet life but it was in the most dreadful form, "cause" March was still to come. I've seen every March that came since I've been living and they are all bad.

However, Sunday at early day break the wind was very mild though in a southeasterly direction, increasing by seven o'clock to a 45 mile gale, some excitement by this time was eminent and the saving of boats was a difficult job, till ten o'clock, the wind had grown to unbearable proportions.

At noon the wind was blowing a 65 mile gale with all boats dragging anchors for shore. The tide was come in more than reasonable, placing boats high up on the wooded land.

Every owner of a boat took to the cold water as though June had flown here. After all efforts was exhausted three o'clock in the afternoon had come finding everything scattered, trees blown down, boats on shore and all nets entangled in the sticks. The most severe storm ever experienced here. Yet no very great damage has been reported, the O'Neil's suffered no damage, but Mr. Rose's yacht, the Rova, dragged on shore, while some trees of Mr. Leggett's of Tarboro were blown down and his wharf washed away.

Mr. B. C. Vanwyne of Cincinnati, Ohio suffered minor damage at his summer cottage but nothing to speak of. One time about noon, I thought I would not live always, I ask not to stay "cause" storm after storm was rising dark here that day.

Oxford Decides To Put Semi-Pro Baseball Club Into Field This Season

Oxford-Granville County Association Formed at Meeting in Court House in Oxford Last Night; Otto Pahlman Outlines League Program Proposed

At a meeting held in the court house in Oxford last night by the Oxford-Granville County Fans Association, it was decided to put a strong semi-pro baseball club in the field this summer, according to word received here today.

The meeting was in charge of F. W. Broyal, last year's manager of the Oxford baseball club, who made a talk to the assembly. W. L. Peace, postmaster at Oxford, made a few remarks, and Otto Pahlman, manager of the Henderson baseball club, was present, and told of what was being done here for summer baseball.

Mr. Pahlman laid before the meeting his plans for a six-club league, which will include Oxford, Henderson, Roxboro, Chase City, Va., and two other neighboring towns to be decided on at a later date. His plan was received with much enthusiasm, and it was decided to build along the lines presented by Mr. Pahlman, and plans were immediately laid for the formation of the club at Oxford.

A call is being sent out to all ball players in Granville county to get in touch with F. W. Broyal and a thorough trial will be given to each one that makes an effort to make the club.

Good work has been done by Mr. Oakley in collecting subscriptions promised by different merchants in Oxford, it was said.

Much interest was taken in the meeting by the 50 or more fans present last night, and many comments were made on the friendly rivalry in the past years between Oxford and Henderson. If present plans go through, this will be renewed, and it begins to look as though there will be red hot times in store for the baseball fans this summer. Everybody will put their shoulders to the wheel as they did in the good old days not so long ago.

Practice will start in Oxford within the next week or so on the high school grounds or either West Oxford grounds. At a later date, if enough interest is shown, a fence will be put around one of the parks. This can be paid for by the sale of advertising to the merchants of space on the fence inside the park, it was felt.

All fans are invited to attend the next meeting, the announcement of which will be made soon.

The committee, it goes without saying, will have to be given the usual virtually unrestricted hand and wide latitude; the precedent for it is fully established. It is easy to see how under regular G. O. P. domination, it may operate quite differently from its two predecessors.

STATE GARDEN PLAN ADVOCATED BY U. S.

Copies of Program in Great Demand in This and Nearly All Other States in Nation
 Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Sir Walter Hotel, By J. C. BASKERVILLE.

Raleigh, March 16.—The North Carolina Garden Plan, planned and published by the Governor's Council on Unemployment and Raleigh, has been sent to the other 47 states of the United States and recommended by the President's Organization on Unemployment Relief, according to word received in Raleigh from Washington. According to authoritative information received by R. W. Heminger, executive secretary of the North Carolina organization, the officials of the President's organization thought so highly of the plan that its adoption by all other states has been urged.

The North Carolina Garden plan was sent out to all counties in North Carolina several weeks ago, in time for the painting of spring and late winter gardens. Its contents include plans for organization, time to plant vegetables and amount of seed and space to be occupied by each vegetable. The publication, in mimeographed form, was largely worked out by specialists of the North Carolina State College Extension Service and changed from the bulletin gotten out by the Governor's Council last season. The plan also takes in various methods of obtaining seed within a community, so as to supply such seed to persons wishing to put in a garden and yet without resources of their own.
