SAFE FROM ALL EVIL: The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

THE JOY OF THE BELIEVER: Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous; and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

GOING FULL BLAST: To the thoughtful consideration of the citizens of this community we commend the following appearing in a full page ad of the New York Times.

My New York by JAMES ASWELL

Demille Comeback: There was a crowd, composed principally of young newspapermen, around the director when he revealed this thrust.

NOVEL SETTING: This reporter has horned into some odd festive gatherings in this town, held amid various and sometimes bizarre surroundings.

NEW FOREIGN COUNTRY: Sign glimpsed from a taxi speeding along Astoria boulevard: Genuine Imported California Grapes.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT: My mail, like that of most others who scribble in the asphalt of Manhattan, groans with mimeographed sheets giving me the lowdown on various forthcoming movies.

PEEVES: Radio spellers who talk intimately about their "friends" among the great of the world, and then mispronounce the notables' names.

Many Opportunities In Domestic Bonds Remain

But Investment Should Be Made With Utmost Care; Money Plentiful for Safe Investment and Is Pressing For Useful Employment Right Now

By ROGER W. BABSON, Copyright 1932, Publishers Financial Bureau.

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 26—Investors should bear in mind the influences at work for better bond prices.

From May 31 to date the domestic bond average has advanced 15 points. Still it is 20 points below the high of 1931 and 25 points below 1930.

While the extremely high yields of 7.5 per cent and more on sound bonds which prevailed last spring are now reduced to around 6 per cent or under, the return is still very attractive considering the extremely low rates on short term loans and deposits.

Both from the income and profit standpoints, therefore, well-selected bonds now offer excellent opportunities.

Supply of Good Bonds Reduced. In the securities markets as in commodities the law of supply and demand must be reckoned with.

Actualities of the supply of good corporation bonds has been substantially reduced in recent years.

This has occurred in three ways: (1) Through heavy redemption calls in 1929 and 1930 (2) Through maturities (3) Through lack of new issues.

Whereas from 1927 through 1929 there were $11,456,091,000 of corporate bonds issued, there have been only $6,642,793,000 issued from 1930 through 1932—a decrease of 42 per cent.

Market conditions have lately been such that new financing was virtually impossible.

This means that when bond buying again starts in earnest the sound bonds that are now going begging will be eagerly snapped up.

There will be a shortage of suitable bonds just as there will be a shortage of goods.

With improved business many second grade bonds that have survived the trials of the depression will score remarkable advances.

This applies to some rails as well as utilities and industrials.

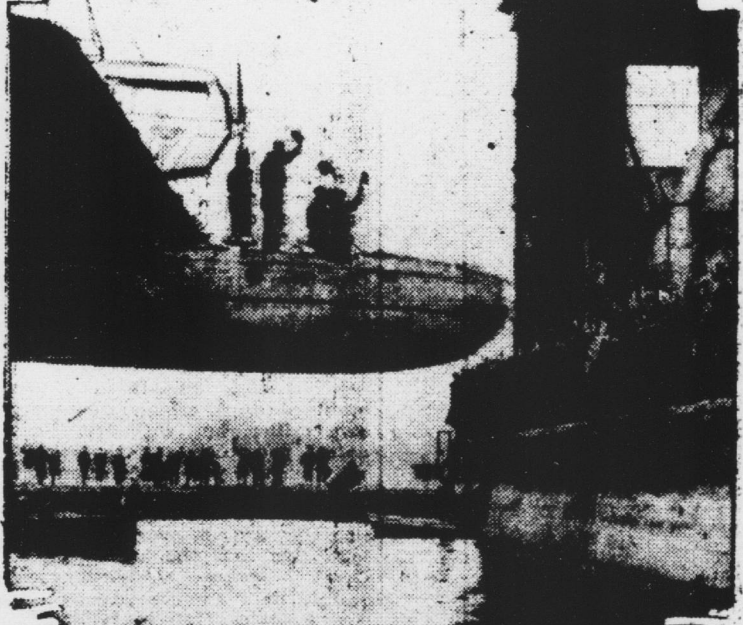

It is in the only type of bond that is in oversupply will be U. S. Governments and municipals; and domestic corporation bonds will average much higher than at present.

Fears of inflation are probably much exaggerated. Even if there should be a moderate inflation, corporation bonds now selling largely on the basis of earnings would stand to benefit even though Governments and other gilt-edge securities should decline.

Furthermore, the new administration will be very careful about tinkering with the currency, and any inflation that we have would be one of credit rather than "greenbackism."

The bond advance may be interrupted from time to time as difficulties incident to balancing the budget and the necessity for new government financing create uncertainty. However,

Globe-Circlers Welcomed Home

Back home after their successful flight around the world, Captains Wolfgang Von Gronow and his intrepid crew of three are shown in the cockpit of their flying boat as they arrived at Friedriehshafen, Germany.

More Engineering Problems!

This room, too, has been reconstructed. Panel work runs around the perimeter. In this paneling are pictures of all the masters of the house since its organization.

Work is believed to have begun on the original courthouse in 1728, six years after the legislature ordered a county seat established at Phelps Point, which is now the town of Hertford.

Here is a deed dated March 1, 1861, transferring a parcel of land on the Perquimans river to Albemarle Sound, preserved in a register of deed's office.

1830—George C. Eggleston, jurist and author, born in Vevay, Ind. Died in New York, April 11, 1911.

PERQUIMANS COURT HOUSE REMODELED: Hertford, Nov. 26 (AP)—Remodeling of Perquimans county's 200-year-old courthouse has been completed, but its antiquity has been preserved.

The building, erected about 1721, was in a dilapidated condition when work was started several months ago after an anonymous donor gave $10,000 for the work.

All door locks on the old building were sent to factories for exact reproduction. Throughout the building, wood work is new, but is an exact duplication of the paneled design of the original work.

Since 1881 one room in the building has been used as the Masonic Temple.
