

REVIVAL SERVICES SUNDAY ARRANGED

Afternoon and Night Meetings Announced; Preaching Tonight Also

Two services, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening, have been arranged for the citywide union revival meeting tomorrow, and were announced last night at the Friday night service. Rev. H. C. Caviness, the evangelist who is conducting the meeting, is to preach at both services. It was also stated that there would be regular services tonight at the usual hour.

On Monday there will be no services at all, that being the day off in the campaign which is to continue for two or three weeks more.

Rev. Mr. Caviness preached last night on the subject of prayer, and the sermon was considered by some to have been perhaps the best of the revival so far. The need of prayer was emphasized, and the preacher stated that if this country could raise up a strong Christian leader to call the nation to its knees, reaching both high and low, rich and poor, that it would do more to rid the people of their troubles right now than anything else could do.

Rev. Mr. Caviness preached on "Preaching Prayer" last night. He said in part: "We often mistake delay in answer to our prayers for denials. God does not hold us off till he gets ready to answer, but he does hold us off until we get ready to receive. Sometimes we pray for things that we need, but at the same time we have not come really to desire them. Thus our prayer is merely an idle talk, and God knows it. The Scripture says, 'Whosoever you desire, when you pray believe that you receive.'"

"We read in the Bible about a mother who brought her girl to Jesus and prayed him that he would heal her. She said the girl was possessed with devils. We call it lipstick and cigarettes now, but this mother called it evil. At any rate she came to headquarters to get the medicine, and she turned over the patient to a doctor who never lost a case. These praying mothers who bring their children to Jesus Christ are the only mothers that children can afford to have. The others will carry them to the amusement halls and to the uplift societies and to the culture centers, but the children need to be introduced to Christ and the mothers are the ones to do it."

"In answer to our prayers, Christ comes to live with us in our houses and in our shops. When he becomes a participant there, the houses become homes and the shops are run straight. We can pray the devil from our churches. The churches have formed in many cases an unholy alliance and as a result are trying to run this holy institution after the program plan employed by this world. The church has come thus to think that two and two make four, when, as a matter of fact, two devils and two saints make nothing."

"The church can best be tested by its prayer life. The Sunday morning crowd evidences the popularity of the church; the Sunday night crowd evidences the popularity of the preacher; but the prayer meeting evidences the popularity of God. We have prayed so little and mapped so many programs that the church is suffering from high blood pressure and the most active members are having running fits."

It Isn't Just the Easter Bonnet That Brings Joy This Easter Morn

Joyfully the strains of an Easter anthem peal to the vaulted ceiling of the church, the heavy fragrance of madonna lilies pervades the air, and broad beams of sunlight stream through the stained-glass windows on the faces of the congregation—it's Easter Morn! The choir boys put their young souls in their songs and eager faces are up-raised to hear anew the old story of the resurrection.

Fashion's latest decrees are displayed as youth and beauty join in the famed Easter parade. Milady wears the smartest possible creation, purchased far in advance in anticipation of this particular occasion, and she proudly pins to her shoulder a fresh spray of flowers, the gift of a gallant admirer.

But, it's not the Easter bonnet that brings true happiness to the heart. The costliest little hat and most perfectly designed gown may be worn by one young and lovely, whose heart is heavy, as she wishes the exotic orchids clustered on her shoulder were the gift of another, and that he were at her side.

Blithe and gay, the little clerk at the five-and-ten, who labored hours refurbishing her flimsy last spring's hat, may have the most radiantly happy face of all as she walks beside her sweetheart, caroling joyously as she greets the smiling day.

It's not the Easter bonnet that brings happiness to the heart.

Appropriate Costume for Easter

As the Easter rabbit soon is to make its appearance, Miss Heather Angel of New York, dons a rabbit costume so that her friend "Rabbit" will feel more at home. To prove it observe the white bunnies lingering around waiting for Easter egg day.

An Easter Fable

Appropriate Easter Music To Be Given In Churches

Congregations attending church services in Henderson tomorrow morning will be treated to unusually elaborate musical programs appropriate to Easter Sunday, according to announcements today.

In some instances a number of anthems and hymns have been prepared by choirs and instrumental numbers will also have a prominent place in the musical arrangements. The congregations will join the choirs in the singing of hymns commemorating the resurrection of Jesus, around which the whole Easter ceremonial centers.

Sermons treating of the resurrection will be preached by the ministers in the various churches.

Because of the citywide union revival now in progress, the churches participating in that campaign will have no individual services in the evening, and their congregations will join in the services at the Big Henderson Warehouse in the evening, as well as on Sunday afternoon.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

Prepared by The Rev. Gains Glenn Adkins, D. D. Copyright 1933. Sponsored by The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

THE STONE AT THE DOOR OF THE SEPULCHRE

And all seemed finished. The Cross had done its work, pity had taken decent care of his broken body, the tomb was sealed and broken-hearted love was left watching in the shadows. Life seems like that sometimes. Love and goodness, tenderness and healing power, the hope of better ways and better things, radiant personalities about whom great expectation has played like light in a din a sepulchre with a great stone at the door and what is thus shut in seems more precious than anything left outside. Ah that great stone at the door, it seems so terribly final. It is not final; it is futile. No sepulchre can finally contain what is most Divine. Do not mourn too much over the apparent defeat of your bravest hopes, do not allow any sepulchre the victory over faith or love or goodness. They have in them an unconquerable force. Wait for the next dawn. You will see the stone rolled away and radiant presences instead.

PRAYER: Deliver us from timeless sorrow when what we love seems lost or what we hope for defeated. Teach us anew to believe and wait. We praise Thee for the unconquerable power of every life in which Thy spirit dwells and especially cause blessed of Thee, and especially we bless Thee for the gift of Thy love in Jesus Christ our Lord in Whom love and hope find their timeless assurance. In His name Who made the tomb an open road. Amen.

EASTER DAY, APRIL 16 (Read Matthew 28:1-8)

"HE IS NOT HERE—"
"Vain the stone, the watch, the seal"—Jesus Christ could not be held on of death. Those who sought Him on Easter found only an empty sepulchre. "He is not here; He is risen as He said." The empty tomb has become the source of the Easter faith and hope. Jesus Christ is universal this morning in praise and power. A new and slowly changing world of brotherhood has arisen with Him, a broadening day of peace and goodness. The horizons of life have been
