Judge Tuttle

Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, above, sitting in Detroit, declared that "depositors whose money is tied up in closed banks don't deserve all these tears." The judge, in refusing to grant an order restraining the conservator of the First National bank of Detroit from paying 30 per cent to depositors who also are stockholders, said: "These depositors ought to be congratulated. Where would they be if they had bought real estate?" Judge Tuttle is president of the People's State bank of Leslie, Mich., which is in the hands of a conservator.
