New York, J-une 1 The Popcorn

A nice old gentleman strolling up and down before the Plaza hotel the other evening seemed vaguely familiar . . . He was watching the statue of General Sherman with a meditative eye; suddenly I had it-why, he was General Pershing . . . Most touching moment in a hot week: the award, by ladies of the Outdoor Cleanliness society of a prize to the owner mest Third avenue push

In the same mail come two postcards from Bob Ripley-one from Capetown, South Africa the other from Miami, Fla. . . Flash: Phil Spitalny riding a bicycle in Central Park . . . I think the funniest man on the screen is Frank McHughthat is, among those who mean to be funny . . .

Thermometers rise a little instead of fall after a brief, heavy rain on a scorching day in the asphalt lanes. . On the window the change wicket at the Fourteenth street entrance to the BMT subway is a small label: "Keep Smiling" . . . The lady who makes change there has never smiled at me . . . Mark Twain's old bedroom, in lower Fifth avenue, is for rent . . .

TALE WITHOUT MORAL

In Liberty street there was a store for rent. A trick sign had advertised it for months-"Real Money Can Be Made in This Location." Some of the words of the sign were spelled out in real money-pennies and half dollars.

The other day, perhaps due to the novelty tug of the lettering, the store was rented. Painters descended upon

In the midst of the renovating, an unshaven young man walked in and said: "I don't suppose you need a For Rent sign any more."

"No," said one of the painters "I suppose not."

So the young man walked off with the sign-and $1.97 in Real Money.

FUNNY FOLKS

A denizen of the Broadway jungle sends me news that a theatrical fellow he is trying to get into print has the largest collection of typographical errors by newspapers in the world . in his letter eight words were misspelled. . .

Jack Lait's newest movie yarn is the biography of a $1,000 bill from the time it leaves the mint until it returns for destruction . . . I have read so many exciting tales about pieces of string, vases pearl neck laces and mummies that I am beginning to believe inanimate objects have a better time in life than we do . . Incidentally Jack is starting a movement to name the Poet Laureate of

New York. I can never keep Charles R. Rogers, the movie producer, and Charles Rogers, the bigeyed acting lad, straight in my mind . . . Does anybody care? . . . Funny how news like this is incapable of making any. body lose sleep, though perhaps it should; in ten years there won't be enough water to drink in Manhattan unless immediate steps are taken to corral'a new supply . . .

"The feeling of confidence and courage which we happily have today -and justifiably so, I believe-would not be abroad in the land," he assert-

"The loose talk of a dictator in Washington," he continued, "reminds us how different our situation is today from that of an actual dictatorship. If there were an absolute dictator in the White House the newspapers in our country would all be regimented. None would dare to oppose what the administration is doing. It wuld be a crime to question any of the acts of the administration just as it is a crime in Berlin and Moscow today to challenge the policies of Hitler and Stalin.

Between 65 and 70 applications have already been received by the com mission from cities and towns over the State to be set up as independent administrative units. Under the new law, the school commission has the power to fix the boundaries of these administrative units and to enlarge them sufficiently to enable some cities or towns that otherwise might not be able to be classed as an administrative unit to be classed as

Since under the present law all the schools are operated by the State and all teachers an dsuperintendents employed and paid by the State, the new school commission must approve the appointment and employment of all city and county superintendents. Some of the superintendents evidently did not realize this a tfirst and started an attack upon the new school law and indirectly upon the commission. But when they learned that one of the first acts of the com-Keyes, soft-spoken office manager of mission was going to be the examination of the names of all superintendents appointed before approving their employment, most of these complaining superintendents quieted down. Most of them are now cooperating wholeheartedly.
