Speed Train Set for Texas Run

Railroad officials inspected this new two-car, stainless steel, air-conditioned, pneumatic-tired, gasoline-driven train in Philadelphia and pronounced it okay. It will leave shortly for Fort Worth, Texas. Weighing only 130,000 pounds, this latest development in railroading has a maximum speed of 75 miles per hour and will accommodate 70 persons. Two 200-horsepower gasoline engines will furnish the "steam."
