BATTLE LINES LAID FOR CONSTITUTION

Stacy and Maxwell Defend and Brummitt Attacks New Proposal

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Sir Walter Hotel, BY J. C. BASKERVILLE.

Raleigh, April 14.—Battle lines were laid here Friday afternoon for the fight over the proposed new State Constitution to be waged next November, when 150 or more county officials and other citizens from every section of the State gathered in the hall of the House of Representatives and heard Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy and Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell advocate the proposed changes, while Attorney General Dennis G. Brummitt upheld the opposition.

The meeting was under the direction of Albert Coates, of Chapel Hill, director of the Institute of Government, who said in opening the session that the subject of revising the State constitution was the most important public question of the generation. By a unanimous verbal vote, which followed the severer speeches, plans for disseminating information throughout the State, on a neutral basis, concerning the proposed constitutional revisions, were approved by those in attendance.

he plans include distribution with in the next month of pamphlets giving non-partisan interpretations of the amendments, and a two-day meeting somewhere in North Carolina after the June primaries of all who wish to attend and discuss the issue. The scene of the proposed meeting will be decided later.

Although not participating in all of the meeting, Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus was introduced toward its close, and welcomed the gathering to Raleigh. "The State is faced with many problems of grave import," the governor said, "and it behooves all of us to approach them from a non-partisan angle, and do the best we can for that which is nearest to our hearts—the State of North Carolina."

Roosevelt, Glass Discuss Plan Of Industry Credit

Washington, April 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, before seeking today to assure Congress will enact only legislation consistent with his program, had a talk with one of his friendly foes about liberalizing credit for under-nourished industries.

"Hello, there, you unconcerned rebel," was his laughing welcome to Senator Glass, Virginia, who told of his bill to allow Federal Reserve Bank loans to get business moving faster. The tart Virginian returned the sally on leaving to get ready for a further conference Tuesday.

The Senate took up for consideration the long pending House bankruptcy bill to facilitate corporation reorganization, but deferred debate until next week.

North Carolina Senator Predicts Political Revolution As South Resists It

CLAIMS LITTLE MAN WILL BE DESTROYED

Great Injustice To This State, Senator Declares; House Is Expected To Act Quickly on Conference Report and Send Bill on To President

Washington, April 14.—(AP)—The Senate today agreed to the conference report on the Bankhead cotton bill, sending it to the House for final congressional action.

The report represented an adjustment of differences between the two branches on this controverted legislation.

Despite warnings of a political revolution in the South in resistance to the measure, it received the Senate's endorsement for the second time.

Quick House approval of the bill was expected, to send it to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature early next week.

The bill is designed to chart a new course in American control of agricultural production by using the taxing power to limit cotton production to 10,000,000 bales.

The conference report struck from the bill a Senate amendment to exempt from the tax the first six bales grown by each farmer.

A political revolution in the South was predicted by Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina during debate on the bill.

"Once you put this bill into operation," Bailey said, "the resistance in the South will amount to a political revolution."

Bailey joined with Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, in asking for rejection of the conference report on the bill.

The North Carolinian said the bill would destroy the little producer.

"If you are ever going to strike a blow in behalf of the humble man and assert the right of the little man to live, here is the best opportunity the Senate will have in the present session," Bailey added.

Senator Thomas opposed the agreement and representatives of the Senate and House on account of the five-year basis for State quotas.

Bailey asked the Senate to send the bill back to conference and insist on the ten-year average. He said North Carolina's five-year average was 751,000 bales, as compared with a ten-year average of 876,000, or 125,000 bales over the five year rule.

"This is a great injustice to the commonwealth of North Carolina," he said.

Bailey said he was not going to try to delay the bill, because "the farmers are entitled to know at the earliest possible moment what Congress proposes to do."

STATE IS ALLOTTED $100,000 ON RELIEF

Washington, April 14 (AP)—Grants by the Federal Relief Administration today include:

Inability of the Senate Finance Committee to Agree on the Jones-Costigan Sugar Control Bill Led to Selection of Sub-committee to Study the Fixing of Production Quotas Outside Continental United States.

Yet hopeful for silver legislation, Speaker Rainey, nevertheless, expressed doubt of an attempt to prevent adjournment, unless something more is done for the metal.

From within the Radio Commission came a recommendation that it "be clothed with enough authority to warn stations that certain classes of programs are undesirable, and may lead to embarrassment, if not actual punishment, if they are put on the air."

The President took a hand in the somewhat confused legislative situation by calling in chairmen of key committees. Any concrete attempt to straighten the course to adjournment however, had to wait until next week.
