Official Vote Canvassed By The Elections Board

Very Few Changes Made in Unofficial Returns and None of Consequence; Poll Officials Bring in Tabulations from Their Respective Precincts

The vote cast in last Saturday's Democratic primary in Vance county was officially canvassed today by the Vance County Board of Elections at a session held in the court house. The whole vote was gone over for the entire county, covering the 13 precincts. There were few changes from the unofficial vote reported immediately following the election, and those changes that were made did not materially alter the results. Fred S. Royster is chairman, and W. B. Daniel, Jr., is the secretary of the county board, and John F. Hicks is the Republican member. Following the official canvass of the returns, the vote will be certified and filed with the proper county officials for the county election, and will be sent to the State Board of Elections in Raleigh for the congressional balloting.

Re-Registering For Unemployed Is Called Again

Another new registration of unemployed in the county has been ordered, in order to bring the lists up to date, so that deserving workers may have the proper consideration in job placements. J. J. S. Callaway, manager of the local office of the National Re-employment Service announced today. He said that the government desired to obtain as far as possible a true picture of the unemployment situation in the county, and called on all such persons, both men and women, to come to his office on the second floor of the court house and enroll immediately.

in prospect following a torrential week-end that not only retarded field work further, but in some sections washed out lands.

North Carolina authorities said there has been no real damage yet, but pointed out that the dead line had been approached—a little more rain and the prospects of good crops will be very slim.

On the other hand, various Eastern North Carolina counties reported about "ten per cent" damage already. Tobacco has not been materially hurt, but it also is at the deadline.

Young cotton and corn are suffering from crop choking weeds, and farmers feared that additional rains would hold off grass chopping too long to save much of the crop. Rains have retarded corn planting in lower North Carolina.

THANKS

For the splendid vote you gave me for Sheriff in the June 2 Primary. It warmed my heart to see my friends give me their hearty support, although I was not successful.
