at 109 Young Street HENRY A. DENNIS, Pres. and Editor.

M. L. FINCH, Sec-Ereas and Bus Mgr TELEPHONES Editorial Office 500 Society Editor 610 Business Office 610

The Henderson Daily Dispatch is a member of the Associated Press, Southern Newspaper Publishers Association and the North Carolina Press Association.

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to use for republication all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the local news published herein. All rights of publication of special dispatches herein are also reserved.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICES Payable Strictly in Advance One Year $5.00 Six Months 2.50 Three months 1.50 Weeks (by Carrier Only)15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS Look at the printed label on your paper. The date thereon shows when the subbscription expires. Forward your money in ample time for renewal. Notice date on label carefully and if not correct, please notify us at once. Subscribers desiring the address on their paper changed, please state in their communication both the OLD and NEW address.

National Advertising Representatives BRYANT, GRIFFITH AND BRUNSON, INC.,

9 East 41st Street, New York 230 N. Michigan Ave., Chicage 201 Dovenshire Street, Boston General Motors Bldg., Detroit Walton Building, Atlanta

Entered at the post office in Henderson, N. C., as second class mail matter

GREAT THINGS: Fear the Lord, and serve him in truth: for consider how great things he hath done for you.-I

TODAY'S ANNIVERSARIES

1818-Lucy Stone, champion of liberty worker for thee advancement of women, born at West Brookfield, Mass. Died in Boston O,ct. 18, 1893. 1823-Goldwin Smith, English scholar and author born. Died June 7, 1910

1834-(100 years ago) Philip Phillips, popular Methodist evangelist-singer of his day, born in Chautauqua Co., N. Y. Died in Ohio, June 2$, 1895.

18399 Michael A. Corrigan, noted Catholic archbishop of New York at the close of last century, born at Newark, N. J. Died May 5, 1902.

business man and politician, born in Ireland. Died in New York, Sept. 30

1851-Felix Adler. Founder of the Society of Ethical Culture New York, lecturer, author and reformer, born in Germany. Died in New York, April 24. 1933.

1867-George B. Luks, famed American painter born at Williamsport, Pa. Died in New York City, Oct, 29,

TODAY IN HISTORY

1534—(400 years ago) The Society of Jesus founded in Paris by Ignatious Loyola, Francis Xavier, and five oth-1846-In war with Mexico, Americans captured Los Angeles. 1868-25,000 killed in earthquake in

Peru and Ecuador

1898-Manila surrendered to American farces.

1852-Wind and rain killed 40 near Houston, Tex.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Frederick A. Sterling, U. S. Minister to Bulgaria, born in St. Locis, 58 years

George H. Payne of New York, author, member of the new Communications Commission, born in New York 58 years ago.

Dr. Charles E. Beury, president of Temple University, Philadelphia, born at Shamokin, Pa., 55 years ago. Judge William J. Tilson, presiding judge of the U. S. Customs Court, born at Clear Branch, Tenn., 63 years ago. P. E. Church, stationed in Liberia, Ther demanded information! Buddy Rogers, actor, born 30 years

Hon, Hugh Guthrie, Canadian Cabinet holder born in Ontario, 68 years

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

ity. The mere strength of mental bril- never listened to the answers. wise the fortunes appear to succumb resses, provided they have police perunder the exposure of some scheming mission. of double dealing.

FIRST OF ALL Congress refused to enact the first poor cinemas ... adoption of a Conscription Act during blast. the second war with Britain, in 1814. The war was so unpopular in some states, most congressmen opposed the

THE WORLD WAR 20 YEARS AGO, TODAY

Told in Pictures by CLARK KINNAIRD

Copyright 1934, Central Press Association

U. S. warns French defenders, German invaders

Appeals for relief-for U. S. citizens stranded in Europe, for Red Cross, for Belgian assistance, were bringing the war which seemed so far away, close to American homes, 20 years ago today. See "Today is the Day"

Today is the Day With DAY-BY-DAY STORY OF THE WORLD WAR 20 Years After By CLARE KINNAIRD

Monday, Aug. 13; 225th day of year; | (pronounced Cauxton), who produced 54th day of Summer. Elul 2,5694 Jew- the oldest book and publications typeish calendar. Morning stars: Saturn printed in English. (until Saturday), Mercury, Venus, Mars Evening star: Jupiter. New

Every Day is a Holiday: Opening of St. Stephen's week in Hungary. Occupation Day in Philippines. Assumption Eve (until 15th) in Guatemala, a

THE WORLD WAR DAY-BY-DAY August 13, 1914-Cotton interests title implies, it is the popular medieval are holding meetings in various Southern states to consider means of alleviating the effects of the collapse of markets and prices due to the European conflict. Empty-handed cotton growers to whom the war seems far away, are learning that no war's effects can be kept localized.

The war never will be fa raway from the United States.

Appeals for Red Cross and Belgian relief are beginning. Every major line of production and commerce is feeling the recoil of the big guns. Solemn messages are coming for relatives of men who responded to the insistent call of fatherlands. American newspapers are devoting more space to the conflict than European iournals, and their readers are seeing the war through the eyes of their preat reporters ... Richard Harding Davis Irvin S. Cohb, Will Irwin, Stanlev Washhburn. Albert Rhvs Williams. Herhert Bavard Swone, Frank H. Simonde, Frederick Palmer, Wythe Williams, et al Hot-blooded vouths who 1841-Patrick Egan, Irish patriot have no alien blood are responding to and Home Rule pioneer, Nebraska the temptatino of adventure and daner. Harry Cushing Collins is the first of thousands of Americans to volunteer before their country becomes involved. The French and Canadian rmies will welcome most of them. the British some. Soon Tames Nor. man Hall will be writing from a British dugout:

"Americans who are interested in corning of these things at first hand wil Ido well to make the grand tour of the trenches whe nthe war is finighed."

The United States now is the most important neutral nation. Its embassies and legations are attending to the affairs of Germany and other belligerents. They are clearing houses of the whole continent for dispatches, mail, telegrams, money, prisoners, refugees The sinecures of heavy contributors to party campaign chests, have become posts of tremendous detail and responsibility.

An attache describes the Paris embassy on one of these days.

"When I arrived today the Chancellery presented an astounding sight ... Hundreds crowded together seeking audience and counsel. Women sank down in corners of the halls or on stairs , weeping for joy to have found a haven of refuge. Scores of soverign American citizens stood in the busiest spots and protested with American vehemence against fate and chance. Each S. A. C. was remonstrating about separate grievance. Most of them reiterated from time to time their severeignty, and announced to no one in particular that it was their right Bishop Robert E. Campbell of the to see 'their' Ambassador" in person born at Florida, N. Y., 50 years ago. needed money. They wishe dto know what to do with letters of credit. What was the 'government' going to do about sending them home? Was Paris safe? Would there be immediate attacks by Zeppelins? Could they deposit their jewels in the Embassy vaults? Were passports necessary? Why were pass-The native of this day will be gifted ports necessary? They asked the with powers of intuition and versatil- same questions over an dover and liancy will bear the fortunes along tri- Foreigners are under order to leave umphantly to a certain point. If the Paris or France. American citizens or disposition to be rebellious and over- British subjects are allowed to remain bearing has been kept in check, the in France except in the regions of the end of life will be prosperous; other- eastern frontier and near certain fort-

> At night Paris is as dull as a country village. Cafes close at 8 and restaurants are open other than a few

Draft Law introduced! The Secretary | But in Berlin, restaurants, cafes, of war: James Monroe, appealed for theatres and concerts are going full opposed her higher education. She earned her way through Oberlin, then the only college admitting women, by doing housework; and mastered ancient Greek and Hebrew-to ascertain whether Biblical texts used in arguments against equal suffrage were correctly translated! A brilliant scholar, she was chosen by the faculty to com pose the valedictory essay. She refused to write it because it was stipulated a man would deliver it: it was regarded as contrary to scriptture for a woman to speak upon a religious subject in public;

> GREAT DAYS Aug. 13, 1469—Earliest appearance in historical records of William Caxton

When she wed Henry Blackwell of Cincinnati, they had to send to another city to find a minister who would omit the word 'obey' from the ceremony. Regarding merging of the wife's name with the husband's as a symbol of subjection, she refused to be called Mrs. Blackwell. She allowed her property to be sold by a sheriff rather than submit to "taxation without representation".

But she thought women should wear skirts, and refused to adopt the bloomers worn by other suffragettes.

NOTABLE NATIVITIES

The late George Benjamin Luks, b. 1867, amateur boxer and celebated American artist ... Llewelyn Powys, b. 1884, novelist Black Laughter, etc .. Dr. Felix Adler, b. 1851, founder of the Ethical Culture Society ... Joan Borotra, b. 1898, international tennis

ASTRO-PROGNOSTICATION

Zodiac sign: Ieo, governed by Sun Men born under this sign are advised by astrologers to wed women born in Aries (Mar. 22, April 20) or Sagittarius (Nov. 23, Dec.) Women born under this sign to wed Aries men. Persons born this date are prognosticated as destined for public careers, probably in connection with the arts. They are endowed with poise and egotism, and love the spotlight. oday's thought: The tre must be bent while it is young.

Huey Long Is Not In Nearby Fights

(Continued from Page One.)

ber in Louisiana's nearby commonwealths; not only of Mississippi, but of Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma,

Now, it is all very well for politicians outside Louisiana to howl that it is perfectly outrageous for Senator Long to invade their various reals, with his Yellow Kid campaign methods, but the fact remains that they ously. was one of America's greatest women. can't prevent him from doing it-and Her father sent his sons to school, worse yet, they have to recognize that in 1932.

he will "gum" their cards disastr-

He did it, for example, in Arkansas,

His the first book in English, was not brought out in England, and it is Recuell of the Historyes of Troy, printed at Bruges (then in Netherlands, now in Belgium) in 1474 or 1475, is in archiac English that only schol-

Caxton translated the book from the French of Raoul le Fevre. As the

Aug. 13, 1818-Lucy Stone was born, one of nine children, on a farm at Brookfield, Mass., to which she returned to live in her last years, when she not understandable today.

ars comprehend romance of Troy.

stopped her. "I can't have her now. from him, when he might have her? Perhaps I can never have her. And I can't tell you why, Dilly. But this knew that he would not break it. Boston and was to have two days

"that's what keeps me contented his heart followed. Our life isn't like yours, Giles. And Joan won't ever have to do the iron, and look after my old hens. cold of winter." But I love doing it because of William and the baby."

gravy had been poured over the biscuits, and William joined them at would stay with me." the table and spoke of the storm. "If this keeps up, we shall be shut in by Thanksgiving."

"I'll start back as soon as supper is over." Giles said. But he did not it." and when he finally left the lighthouse, the snow was whirling in a wild dance and the wind blowing great guns. All the way home he fought with the elements. But he loved it. He felt young, strong—a in your cheeks."

conqueror. Nothing could keep him

For Joan was from Joan. She was his . . . and she would know it . . . Some day he would go to her . . . and when at last they were married, they would roam through the world, looking for all the rare and wonderful oks which might be found by a man who knew. And then, coming back to his island, he would write a thrilling presence . . . This mood lasted all through the torm—then when Jose made a trip to Granitehead and brought back the mail, came the reaction. The little Granitehead local paper had copied an item from one of the big New York dailies. Miss Joan Dudley, the paper said, who had been spending me time in Maine, was sailing in February on a trip around the world. She had closed her house in Baltimore and her stay would be indefinite.

world, and he would not be with heard from Giles. her! Oh, what would she see of the things he might have shown her? desert with all the world awaysee them with him . . .

And he was bound . . . by a prom- her. tse to a man who wasn't worth it. grove, as he looked back upon it, seemed mad and melodramatic. Why should he have promised anything.

At Christmas she sent him a note.

At Christmas she sent him a note.

Oh, but why deceive herself? She reason why Giles should not go to would come . . . Joan and lay the thing before her. would be hers if Giles did not agree bed and the moonlight shone on the heart .

te his pargain. He would have married Rose. Well, if he married her on a silver sea, she made up her DILLY started to speak, but Giles now, it couldn't hurt Joan. And mind. why should he let Joan slip away If I can't tell you why, Dilly. But this is what I think of life. Not as a scramble after vain ambitions, but as a serene and gracious thing, to be spent with the books one loves, with the woman one loves. ...

There were tears in Dilly's eyes. "I know . . ." and after a moment, away from him not knowing that he would not break it. He was a prisoner, bound by chains for final fittings. It would be easy enough to run down to Granitehead of the integrity of his word. He must respect it now. The world might call him a fool. But he had to be what he was. And Joan would sail away from him not knowing that he debaged. "I know . . ." and after a moment, away from him not knowing that had changed.

They were both rather silent after Penelope how she hated the thought where with the child she loved. that, and when supper was served, of facing anything . . . winter, spring, It was on the morning of the sec-

> "I should hate it, my dear," Penelope had said, frankly, "and I think heart was beating madly. you would. It would mean a lot of entertaining, and you are not up to Farley advised, "it will be bitter cold

"No, I'm not," Joan's voice had So Joan as she started off was broken on that, and Penelope had beautiful in silver-colored broadtail, patted her shoulder and had said: with a wide, warm collar and great "Well, think about the trip—the sea cuffs of gray fox, and there was a air and the sunshine would put color little violet hat and violet bag, and For Joan was as white as a lily. underneath the coat.

Penelope, worried about her, had She took the train down. The air talked the thing over with old John was clear as crystal. The tide, com-Leonard. "There isn't enough here ing in, as they crossed the marshes, to interest her. She is putting up a deepened the shallow waters until brave fight but she needs something they were as dark as indigo against more than we can give her." "Do you think she regrets giving grasses.

"No. She's glad. But she doesn't Joan walked from the station to the book about these books he had found, and she would sit beside him—a has money—everything—but she hoardwalk, meeting few people and none who knew her. The boardwalk -and yet her position demands that of it in a wild and glorious song. she take her place among them."

old man said, "a way will be opened." In a moment she would meet bar To neither of the two people who friend, speak to him, see his face, loved her, however, had the truth and her heart would be stilled. been revealed—that Joan was long. Yet when she came to the do ing for Giles Armiger-for proof of the shop, it was shut. A card stuck his continued friendship-for proof, in the window announced that busiindeed, of his love. She was not perhaps aware what she wantedbut it was six months since her en-Giles was conscious of a raging gagement to Drew had been broken, rebellion. She was going around the and in all those months she had not wind blew cold. She shivered in her

She had come, gradually, to a She walked to the rail and stood realization of what he meant to her. looking over the wide stretch of There were old manuscripts in old Her mind had dwelt on the days in water. Somewhere out there was the dim old shop, the night when he teries, stories carved on stone before had sat in the pavilion and had books were written. There were talked with her in the storm. She far away-so far that she was fortombs that kings had built to the had leaned then on his wisdom and gotten . . . women they loved, cases in the his strength; she had trusted him Below her was a floating pier. gardens still redolent with the per-fume of long-ago romance. Joan Scripps had spelled everything. Yet, when she had searned the truth, she passengers. It was in charge of a had been swest away from him by red-faced and hearty seaman in a

The scene with Drew in the little she again wanted Giles-for her ture. But why not? If Giles were and having promised, why should he But no answer came. She had said would talk to him of more than keep it? Drew had had no right to make conditions. There was no if the note had reached him, he of his letter. She had his letter in the note had reached him, he of his letter. She had his letter in the note had reached him, he had him he had

He had tried to save her the humil-lation which Drew had declared suddenly one night as Joan lay in not know what had been in her

(Copyright 1984, by Central Press)

If Giles would not come to her, she would go to him.

Farley came up from Baltimore to stay with her at the big hotel. The It was Penelope who had sug- maid was then to go back with her gested the sea voyage to Joan. "I to Main, to pack trunks and get things I do. Cook, and wash and can't quite face the thought of the everything ready. Farley would, of course, take the trip with them. She Joan had been apathetic. She was not anxious to cross the seas, would not have dared confess to but she would, of course, go any-Giles carried in the big blue plat-ter on which chicken with a rich "I had thought I might open the "I'm going to run up to Granitehead house in Baltimore, and that you to see Mr. Armiger about some books."

She said it casually, though her "You'd better wear your fur coat," down by the water."

soft wool dress of the same color the red and brown of the coarse When she reached Granitehead.

isn't knit by any real ties to the was deserted, yet it did not seem people who were Adelaide Delafield's desolate for there was the flash and friends They mean nothing to her sparkle of the sea, and the sound Joan, approaching the shop,

"She'll find herself in time," the conscious of a thrilling exaltation. Yet when she came to the door of ness was closed for the winter.

> So that was that . As she turned away, it seemed to her that the day darkened. warm coat.

absolutely until the moment when Now and then a boat came up to it. the spell the Drew had put upon leather coat and cap. If she asked him, would he take her to the And now that spell was broken, island? It would be a mad adven-her bag. She would know . . . if he So January came and in two weeks had changed . . . and if he had, she

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Who'd Have Thought It?

that it had complimented her about enough, and planned to retire her in

It was at this point that Senator

Long introduced his ballyhoo into the situation, and, when all was over Mrs.

Caraway was renominated (and subsequently re-elected, as a mere mat-missed with a casual "pooh-poooh".

favor of a choice of its own.

Mrs. Senator Hattie W. Caraway having been allowed to serve a year ANSWERS TO as successor to her husband, the late TEN QUESTIONS Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, the Bowie State Democratic machine felt

> The art of extracting metals from their ores and adapting them to the various purposes of manufacture.

See Back Page

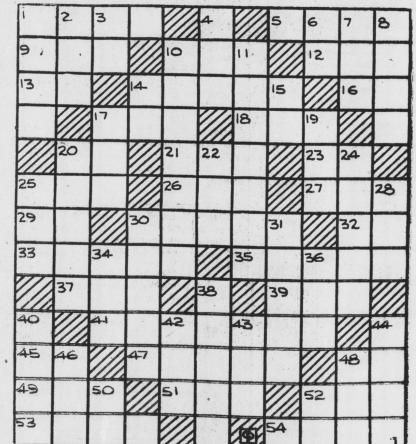

2. Athens, Ga. Ellis Island. ter of form) to serve until 1939. When 3.

it's taken into account that to accom-4. A species of ox native in central plish this result, Huey had to over-5. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

come the opposition (never announced, but well known to everyone) of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, his 6. James Watson Gerard.

party's leader on the Senate floor and 7. The nickname for a submarine its vice presidental candidate in 1928, called in German-unterseeboot. called in German-unterseeboot. and to do so on Joe's own home soil, 8 A German hymn writer. it becomes apparent that the King- 9. Rupee. fish is not an influence to be light dis- 10. China.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1-To flog 5-To suspend 10-Cover of the eye

12-The human being 13—A measure

14-Quadruped of Asia and Africa 16-Father 17-Boy's name 18—Mournful 20-Note of the music scale

21-To extend 23—Personal pronoun 25-A torn piece of material 26-Negative particle 27—Obtained

29-Having a quality (suffix)

30-To set forth explicitly 33-Undressed hides 35-To rush out suddenly 37-A title of deference 39-An aeriform mixture

41—Separated 45-Near 47-Pertaining to the poles 48-Sun god 49-A Hebrew dry measure 51—Anything woven

52—A sailor 53—To send forth 54—Solid frame of an animal DOWN T', make sharp 2-To ed

3-Within 4-Not clear 6-Form of to be 7-A short sleep 8—A small blood sucking fly

11-Forsekes

10-Mourns

14—Company (abbr) 15-A note of the music scale 17-To follow closely 19-To excavate 22-Hawaiian tree

24—Mechanics implements 25-To tear 28-To attempt 30-To peel 31-Reenly desirous 38-A measure of distance (pl.)

40-A step 42—A solemn promise 43—To strike gently

44—A timid rodent 46-Tam-o-shanter (abbr) 48—Hastened 50—Twice (prefix) 52-In a direction toward (prep.)

