

State Agency On Apprentices Will Organize Itself

By J. C. Baskerville, Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—A permanent State agency on apprentice training that will have as its objective the working out of a definite program for the training of apprentices in all the principal industries and occupations, will be set up here Saturday, September 22, when the committee on organization will meet to form the permanent organization, it was announced here today by Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher, chairman of the committee. Commissioner Fletcher has just returned from a regional conference on apprentice training held in Atlanta at which the plans for the formation of State agencies in all the southeastern states were outlined by representatives of the U. S. Department of Labor. This program for better standardization of the training of apprentices is being sponsored by the U. S. Department of Labor and President Roosevelt and has the approval of organized labor generally, Commissioner Fletcher said.

The organization committee is composed of Commissioner Fletcher, chairman; George W. Coggin, director of vocational training in North Carolina; Capus M. Waynick, director of the National Re-Employment Service in North Carolina, and F. H. Shurford, NRA labor compliance director in the State. The permanent State agency will include one representative from each of these agencies represented on the organization committee, as well as two representatives each from labor and industry. While no Federal funds are provided to promote this agency, it is hoping to be able to work together to secure better standardization and the adoption of definite programs for the training of apprentices, Commissioner Fletcher said.

At the present time only 4.33 per cent of the codes adopted by various industries provide any definite standards for the training of apprentices. The preliminary program suggested proposes a minimum of 2,000 hours and a maximum of 10,000 hours training for apprentices before they can be classified as journeymen or skilled workers.

Court Ruling Bars Vote On Constitution

But since he had been overruled by a majority of the members of the court and the repeal election pointed out that he hence could do nothing more than concur with the other members of the court on the present question.

There is much more rejoicing among the friends of the new constitution over the fact that it cannot now be voted upon in the election. For its opponents wanted it to be voted upon and defeated, confident that if it should be defeated, such action would tend to discourage any further efforts to change the present constitution for a good many years to come. The advocates of the new document also sensed this and were anxious to save it from the oblivion into which it would be dropped if it had gone to a vote and been defeated this fall. Both sides agreed that if it should be defeated this fall, the chances for securing a new constitution any time soon would have been as dead as an Egyptian mummy.

Now that the proposed new constitution is not going to be voted upon in the election this fall, an opportunity will be presented to mark changes in it when the 1935 General Assembly meets in January. Its advocates are hopeful that the legislature will make a number of changes to make it more satisfactory and acceptable to its critics and opponents and that it will then approve it and order it submitted to a vote of the people in "the general election" in November of 1936. It is hoped that by the time the legislature meets in January and that by the fall of 1936 the "New Deal" will have progressed far enough along to see in what direction it is going. At least that, and that the present wave of nervousness over what many see as radical tendencies in various parts of the country will have blown over.

Was Too Liberal. For the one thing that tended to make it appear that the new constitution would be defeated if allowed to come to a vote, more than anything else, was the feeling in many quarters that the new constitution was too liberal and might make it possible those of radical tendencies to get control of the General Assembly and hence of the State government and upset the conservative policies which have prevailed for so long.

"The new constitution not only took off the brakes but threw them away so that if things ever got started in the wrong direction there would be no way to stop," one observer said here today.

He had particular references to the removal of the six per cent restriction on the income tax and pointed out that a radical legislature, or one in which the socialistic element might be in control, might raise the State income tax to 15 per cent, as has already been done in Wisconsin or even higher, and thus tend to tax business and industry in the state out of existence.

Those who know what has really been going on behind the scenes in the State with regard to the new constitution, agree that business industry, together with large wealth frightened at the prospect of having the six per cent limit on the income tax removed, have had more to do with bringing about the change in sentiment with regard to the new constitution than anything else. For while Attorney General Brummitt, former Lieutenant Governor R. T. Fountain and their followers were taking pot shots at it with air rifles, big business was quietly planting the dynamite bombs that would have blown it up if the supreme court had not rescued it.

Push Exemption Fight. "The fight for a $1,000 tax exemption on homes will go right on," declared Editor Clarence Poe, of the Progressive Farmer, who has been championing this especial feature of the revised constitution, when informed of the Supreme Court decision. "So far as I have been able to hear, that is one section of the revised constitution which meets with the approval of both those who have favored and those who have opposed the revised constitution as a whole. I think the same thing is true of the proposal that we should adopt taxation policies to encourage the conservation of soils, forests and other natural resources.

"I hope the legislature will have both these amendments voted on separately next time so they will not be 'come mixed up in' squabbles over other features of the Constitution. Personally I have been hoping for months that we could work out some such plan as the farm organization very wisely suggested—that is to say, agree on amendments specifically reassuring the people about the election of local officers by the people, the poll and property tax rates and minimum exemption on incomes—and then unite all forces behind such constructive features as the $1,000 tax exemption on homes, the provisions limiting the debt-making power of state, counties and town, the provisions encouraging the conservation of natural resources, and many other that all admit are wise. I think the amendment looking to a $1,000 tax exemption on homes should provide that this should not be extended to needy widows, disabled or unemployed persons, and persons over 60 years of age, and then extended to other classes as quickly as possible—first perhaps $250, then $500, then $1,000 to each home-owner.

Idea Spreading. "Ever since the campaign for the adoption of the revised constitution got under way in North Carolina, with our especial emphasis on the $1,000 tax exemption on homes, the idea has been spreading not only in North Carolina but in other states as well. The South Carolina Grange now demands the same plan for that State. Alabama farmers at their annual State convention demanded it for Alabama. And Virginia papers have already started the campaign in the Old Dominion."

Sterilization Of Six More Inmates Passed By Board

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Sir Walter Hotel.

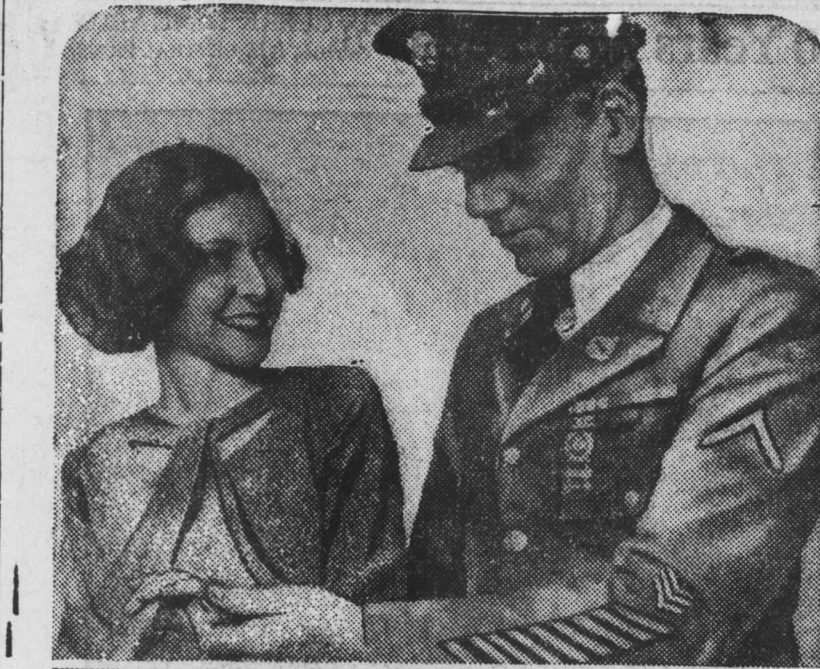

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—The State Eugenics Board has just approved applications for six more sterilization operations, it was announced today by R. Eugene Brown, secretary of the board, following its meeting here yesterday. All six of the applications are for women, two of them inmates of the State Hospital here, two of them at Samarcaud, the State's school for delinquent girls, and two of them welfare cases in counties.

The board has 15 additional applications for sterilization operations before it, which will be acted upon at its meeting October 19. It is expected that most of these will be approved. So far a total of 89 sterilization operations have been performed in North Carolina, of which 40 were under the new law enacted by the 1933 General Assembly. The total will be brought to 95 when the six operations just authorized by the board have been performed.

The superintendents of the various hospitals for the insane and for mental defectives and moral delinquents are finding sterilization more and more helpful, according to Mr. Brown, and making it possible to discharge many of the cases sterilized which otherwise would have to be retained in institutions. The chief effect of sterilization upon either male or female cases is to render them incapable of having children, although in some cases their general mental condition is often benefited.

"We are receiving more and more applications for sterilization operations each month both from institutional heads and from county welfare officers," Mr. Brown said. "As a result, indications are that more sterilization operations will be authorized and performed during this coming year than have been performed during the past several years."

It was also pointed out by Mr. Brown that under the new 1933 law, the procedure incident to the approval of applications for sterilization is much simpler than under the old law.

Over $35,000 Of $50,000 Sun Paid Reported Seized

Over eleven years ago. One of the reporters, unconfirmed, said that Hauptmann a short time ago paid for some gasoline at a Bronx filling station with a $10 gold certificate. The proprietor became suspicious at the use of the banned money and notified police. The report said the man had an automobile which was found to have been stolen in New Jersey, near Lakewood, the night before the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped the night of March 1, 1932.

MOST OF RONSSOM MONEY IS REPORTED AS FOUND

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 20 (AP)—The Jersey Journal today says an un-naturalized German was arrested in New York City today in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case. The newspaper says that shortly after the man's arrest officers found between $35,000 and $40,000 of the ransom money cache in the garage of his home in the Bronx.

The newspaper says that the man lived in the general vicinity of the cemetery where $50,000 was passed over the stone wall to the supposed kidnapers. The arrest was said to have come about after numerous $10 bills carrying the numbers of those which Colonel Charles Lindbergh had secured for the ransom had been passed in the area bounded by 50th and 80th street and Second and Third avenue in New York City the past several weeks.

RESERVES CALLED TO GASTONIA AREA

A number of young men on the "reserves" list of Company C, infantry unit of this city, now on strike duty at Belmont, were rounded up here today and ordered to join the company at the Gaston county mill, where serious trouble has been had this week. Just how many men were pressed into duty of this kind was not learned, but it was said that at least four were known to have been drafted. They were summoned to Belmont by Captain T. S. Kittrell, in command of company C there.

It was reported here that efforts were being made to increase the number of troopers in the Gaston county area, in view of the serious situation there, and that the reserves were being called after most of the regular enlisted men had already been pressed into duty.

MALARIA

Speedy Relief of Chills and Fever
