Delegation Told, However, Scrapping of Treaties Will Only Make Other Two Rivals Build Faster Than They Can Go; Jap Concessions Demanded

London, Oct. 30 (AP)—In an effort to cool a disagreement which has deadlocked naval negotiations among the world's three largest sea powers, meetings tentatively scheduled for today were called off.

Japanese delegates had hoped to meet with the Americans, but it was understood these delegations, along with the British, decided it would be best to postpone the talks until tomorrow.

Japan held her ground in the face of American and British opposition to her proposal for a new naval treaty based on the principle of tonnage equality.

The delegates from Tokyo are convinced they can dent the opposition by further conversations. As a result, they asked a new meeting with the Americans.

But the Americans feel concessions must come from the Japanese.

Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley told the Tokyo delegates that junking of the Washington and London naval treaties would not give Japan equality because the other two powers, Britain and America, would keep ahead, in build ing.
