

STATE ASLEEP TO ITS OPPORTUNITIES

Outside Industries Knocking at Door but Get Little Welcome.

Charlotte, Nov. 6.—Pointing out that no additional capital is needed, a New Hampshire woodworking manufacturing concern has written "The Carolinas, Inc.," that it is interested in locating in some Carolina town of 5,000 to 10,000 population. Specific information regarding hardwood raw material and skilled labor available for such an industry has been requested by the concern, according to Coleman W. Roberts, executive vice-president of the newly formed non-profit organization, which recently began advertising Carolina opportunities to prospective investors, manufacturers, agriculturalists, home-seekers and recreationists.

This inquiry is one of the most interesting of many received the past week from many points throughout the nation requesting a variety of information.

Considerable interest centers in mining products, particularly kaolin and dolomite. Mr. Roberts said, in announcing that "The Carolinas, Inc.," is building a publication on mineral, industrial and agricultural properties available in the Carolinas. A New Jersey party is interested in dolomite adjacent to rail transportation and an unfilling running water supply.

"Our next week's bulletin to 'The Carolinas, Inc.' members will list many inquiries from parties indicating interest in the Carolinas," he said. "Carolina climate is a particular appeal, as many specify they are seeking a mild climate."

"While many citizens throughout Carolina have requested further information on some of the inquiries, it is absolutely astonishing to learn of the stagnant attitude of many communities and organizations supposed to be alive and working for the growth and development of their sections and states. I say this because splendid opportunities for organization and individuals to follow up, to advise what they have to offer to meet the demands of the inquirers, but apparently most of them are asleep and do not choose to take advantage of the opportunities that 'The Carolinas, Inc.' is now bringing to our people in North and South Carolina."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

"Such a Good Laxative," Says Nurse

Writing from her home in Festus, Mo., Mrs. Anna LaPlante says: "I am a practical nurse and I recommend to some of my patients that they take Black-Draught, for it is such a good laxative. I took it for constipation, headache and a dull feeling that I had so much. A few doses of Black-Draught—and I felt just fine."

Because so many people know from having used it that Theoford's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, millions of packages of it are sold every year.

THE WORLD WAR DAY-BY-DAY

Nov. 7, 1914—Virtually the entire town was in ruins from the bombardment. The defenders used nitro-glycerine plentifully and blew up what was left of the Ilitis, Bismark, Moltke and Kaiser forts. The wireless station hummed its last message to Berlin. Governor Meyer-Waldeck ordered white flags hoisted, and sent an officer under a flag of truce to the Anglo-Japanese lines to arrange the surrender.

This terminated German rule in the Pacific. The fall of Tsingtau deprived Germany not only of the Kiao-chow leasehold, but of the only Asiatic mainland, but of the only strategic possession outside of Europe.

The defense was hopeless from the first, and was made only for the honor of the German flag. For two months the German garrison, almost wholly composed of 2,500 reservists who wrote living in China, held out against the air, land and sea attacks of the 20,000 Japanese and 1,000 British and Indian troops. Japanese officers paid unstinted tribute to the bravery of the Germans, who fought tenaciously to the last, and courteously allowed the German officers the freedom of the town after the surrender.

Same day, American newspapers published President Wilson's proclamation of neutrality in the war between Turkey and the Central Powers. As Entente ambassadors departed bag and baggage, the American envoy, Oscar Straus, became the protector of the interests of a half dozen governments.

HISTORY UP-TO-DATE

Nov. 7, 1811—William Henry "Tippecanoe" Harrison, 9th and shortest-treasured President of the U. S. (one month), won his nickname. Aged 38, he led 300 regular infantry and cavalry and 500 militia to victory over 3000 to 5000 Shawnee, Creek and Seminole warriors led by Chief Tecumseh of the Shawnees, at Tippecanoe Creek, in Indiana. Tecumseh survived, to become a brigadier-general in the British army.

Nov. 7, 1874—The elephant became the symbol of the Republican party. It was first to represent the party by Thomas Nast in Harper's Weekly of this date. The Democratic Donkey also created by Nast, was then four years old.

Nov. 7, 1876—Ghoulis perpetrated the most celebrated case of body-snatching in American history. The corps of A. T. Stewart, New York merchant, was stolen from a downtown Manhattan graveyard, shipped to Canada, held for two years until $20,000 was paid by the family.

The ghouls were never punished for the crime.

Nov. 7, 1917—Almost on the 70th anniversary of the issuance of the historic Manifest der Kommunisten by Heinrich Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, Bolsheviks in Petrograd rose in the epochal 25th of October Revolution (according to the Greek calendar.) Alexander Kerensky, dictator, proclaimed loudly to the population that he had taken the necessary measure to suppress any attempt at revolt. In reality he had no troops back of him except two battalions of military cadets and a company of women soldiers. The self-constituted commander-in-chief of the Russian army relied on speeches against machine guns, as the Chinese generals of 1860 had relied on painted dragons against the rifles of the English and French expeditionary force.

Bolshevik sailors surrounded the winter palace, and after a brief scarp with the women arrested the women. Kerensky had disappeared. He made good his escape by connivance of the chief of the British diplomatic mission, Bruce Lockhart, and lives today to tell his gloomy tale of his blundered opportunity.

A man who had never worked, Vladimir Ilitch Ulianov, called Lenin, aged 47, member of a family nobler than the Mdivanis, became head of the Workers' Government.

YOU'RE WRONG IF YOU BELIEVE—

That it gets too cold for snow to fall.

This is disproven by the fact that snow falls in the coldest parts of the world. However, many of the heaviest snows do fall during milder periods of winter. This, it is explained by the Weather Bureau, is because most rains or snows come on the easterly to southerly winds. Cold winds, then, are from the wrong directions to bring much snow.

Also, you're wrong if you believe—That a heavy coat of fur upon animals forecasts a severe winter.

That water rots the hair and causes baldness.

Write a wrong. Adorses Clark Kinnaird, care this newspaper.

allowed at Lake Mattamuskeet each shooting day, those interested in taking advantage of the shooting privileges therefore advised to write for reservations immediately to the Chief Warden, Lake Mattamuskeet, New Holland, N. C. They will then be advised as to what days they can be accommodated.

According to word received from the Biological Survey in Washington, which has immediate supervision of the lake pending its final purchase by the Federal government as a Federal refuge for migratory waterfowl, approximately 10,000 acres of the 50,000 acres covered by the lake and surrounding property, will be set aside for the public shooting ground. Of these 10,000 acres on which shooting will be permitted, 5,000 will be on the New Holland side of the lake and 5,000 on the Fairfield side.

A daily fee of $1.50 will be charged for the privilege of hunting in this area, while the fishing fee will be 50 cents per day. The charges for guides will be regulated by the Department of Conservation. The fees for guides has not been definitely fixed as yet, but Mr. Chalk assures the sportsmen who want to hunt in this area that the charges for guides will be as reasonable as possible and that the cost will not be nearly as high as when the lake was operated as a private hunting and fishing preserve.

Paroled Prisoner Wires Department To Get Job Back

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Sir Walter Hotel,

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—A paroled prisoner who was so anxious to get back into the State Prison system that he sent a telegram to the prison department at his own expense so see if he had not broken his parole and could hence be returned to prison, was in center of interest in the prison division here today. Not only did he pay for the telegram he sent, but he asked the prison division to wire him coked if and when it could get him.

The text of the telegram, sent from the Sampson county jail in Clinton, and addressed to the superintendent of the State Prison here, is as follows:

"Dear Sir, I am in Clinton, N. C., jail, and if I have broke my parole I would like for you to come after me at once or let me know at once pay at this end."

"Since the prison division has no record of the prisoner other than he had been paroled, the telegram was turned over to Commissioner of Paroles Edwin M. Gill for investigation. Commissioner Gill has written the sheriff of Sampson county to learn what this former prisoner is charged with and whether he has violated his parole. If he has violated his parole, it will be revoked and the prisoner returned to the State Prison.

"We have had prisoners return voluntarily a good many times after they have escaped, but this is the first time a former prisoner has ever telegraphed us to see if he had broken a parole so he could return to prison," Director J. B. Ross, of the prison division, said. "He evidently prefers the State Prison camps to the Sampson county jail."

Shooting Season At Mattamuskeet

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Sir Walter Hotel,

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—Arrangements are now being completed for the operation of a portion of Lake Mattamuskeet, in Hyde county, as a public hunting ground this season, under the supervision of the Department of Conservation and development, according to State Game Warden John D. Chalk, who was at Lake Mattamuskeet yesterday.

The migratory waterfowl shooting season opens tomorrow, November 8, and the days on which shooting will be permitted have been designated as Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays of each week through January 12, Mr. Chalk pointed out. Because of the limited number of hunters that will be
