Bodies Of Three Infants Found In Warehouse Trunk

Had Been Stored In Brooklyn Since Being Checked in There July 15, 1932

WOMAN QUESTIONED BUT MAKES DENIAL

Extremely Composed During Grilling, But Shows Signs of Collapse Near End of Questioning; Gives Her Address as Upper Nyack, N. Y.

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Discovery of the bodies of three infants in a trunk which had been checked in a Broadway warehouse on July 15, 1932, was disclosed today in the line-up at police headquarters.

The discovery led to the arrest of a woman, who identified herself as Ruby Clarke, 36, of Rocky Road, Upper Nyack, N. Y. Questioned in the line-up, she said the trunk belonged to her, but denied she had known what it contained.

Since the summer of 1932, the trunk had gathered dust in the warehouse, located at 25 Lexington avenue, Brooklyn. Suspicious workmen finally opened it and made their gruesome find yesterday. Police speedily traced ownership of the luggage.

Miss Clarke said she was married 16 years ago to a man named Mayod, and that on his death six years later she resumed her maiden name of Clarke.

At the time, she sent the trunk to the warehouse to live at 1000 President street, Brooklyn.

Upon learning Miss Clarke's present address, police communicated with the parents in Upper Nyack and learned she was on a hunting trip near Lake George, N. Y.

Detectives got in touch with her three and she returned voluntarily to Grand Jury Hears 60 Persons In Its Honea Path Probe

At noon today the jury had finished examining witnesses and a report on the indictments was expected to be handed out during the afternoon session, starting at 3 o'clock.

SCHISM MAY REND DEMOCRATIC RANKS

Big Crop of Ultra-Radicals Due in Senate That Meets in January

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 21.—Perhaps the Democratic party is threatened with as bad a split as the stilt that the Republican party has suffered from in recent years.

Ever since the war Republican administrations have been handicapped by a group on Capitol Hill, which, while calling itself Republican, has refused to be bound by Republican party discipline. In the House of Representatives, where rules are exceedingly strict, insubordination hasn't mattered so much, but in the Senate it has kept orthodox Republican strategists in a state of continual uncertainty.

DEMOCRATS The Democratic senators hung together pretty consistently while in a minority. Hitherto there have not been so many ultra-liberals in their ranks, anyway.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana has been and is one. Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana is another—though of too erratic a type to classify with anyone or anything very definitely. Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado is mildly "ultra." Senator Homer T. Bone of Washington is decidedly so.

But they haven't amounted, thus far, to a Democratic insurgent bloc.

At present the same labor relations board is acting for both the steel and textile industries.

"It seems obvious to me," Mrs. Rogers said, "that the work of both industries is too much for a single group."

"The very much more important consideration, however, is the fact that the personnel of the present steel and textile industrial relations board is composed entirely of southerners."
