REAL TEST?

With the examinations over and a new semester beginning there comes a feeling that there is still a chance to do bigger and better things. To many who have done as good work as could have been done there is a stimulus to manifest greater efforts in the new semester. It is like a soldier who has fallen once in battle, but with renewed strength and encouragement he gets up and shows to his country his real worth.

To many each day in school is just "another day" to the end and there is only a desire to "get by." But why not think of the future? Ten years from now what will your high school life have meant to you? How will the days spent in high school affect your life's work? It is here that habits are formed, work is done, and grades are made that will be an outstanding factor in each life. Although, these things may seem insignificant at present, the real test will come later. We must not sacrifice temporary interest. With new days, new work and new states facing us, let's make the best of the new semester!

Barks of the Mastiff

Seniors usually take part in most of the school activities and the tradition is not broken in the small play which the Dramatic Club is going to present at several local affairs. The title of the play is "Crimoline and Candlelight" and the Senior participants are: Meredith Watkins, George Washington (Received in all history; and Al Wester, Father Time.

Although sometimes we cannot be with the sick physically, we are all with them mentally. We always miss our class members when they are sick. J. W. Rose and Ann Peace were missing from our ranks for a few days last week due to complications.

THIS IS NO BULL

Our curly haired Junior boy seems to be well supplied with work. He's got so many in fact, that he seems to have forgotten Nellie. The blonde Senior on Andrews Ave. seems to have lost some of her power. Pupu and our singing president seems to be doing right well with the Junior basketball player.

SCANDAL

I wonder how the little Sophomore girl, that lives on the West End Country Club Drive, is getting along with her head. Believe me some of our Sophs who have been sick, better hurry and get well, before somebody else beats their time with a good-looking senior.

WELCOME, FRESHMAN STUDENTS, BACK TO SCHOOL.

During the past two weeks, there have been many absences in the schools of Henderson but there have been many absentees in the schools of Henderson, but there have been less in the High School than in the others. There was such a large number sick in the grammar schools that they were closed for five days. The diseases that caused these absences were measles and flu, mostly, with a few other kinds. Some of the students who were absent in the Freshman Class include: Reginald McFurlan, Malvin Parham, Clifton Majors, Frances Allen, Irene Cawley, Hazel Ellington, Willie Mae Falkner, Clifton Ferguson, Mable Forsythe, Gladys Stokes, Henry Dupont, Fred Harris, Tommy Jenkins, Willard Jones, Victor Langston, Dorothy Champion, Livey Harris, Rebecca Patterson, Vera Smith W. L. Beddingfield, Edgar Edwards, George Gooch, Bobby Kittrell, Malone Parham, Lemuel Robinson, Dorothy McDuffie, Bertha Ramsey, Etheline Stainback, Elizabeth Toepelman, Seymour, Dworsky, Roland Forsythe, Murray Prigden, Howard Reams, Stephen Reavis, Evelyn Miller, Minnie Lee Huffman, Arlenia Jaires, Jimmy Peck, Pearl, Dennis Pearce, Estelle Ramsey, Naomi

Thompson, William Windley, Eva Mae Daulte, Virginia Anderson, and others. The Freshman Class wants to welcome those back that have come back and hopes that those still absent will soon be back.

State Supervisors of High School Visits H. H. S.

Dr. J. Henry Highsmith, the State Supervisor of High Schools of N. C. visited Henderson high school last week and addressed the faculty. He introduced the subject of writing new curriculum for the high schools of Vance County schools are cooperative with Dr. Highsmith and will make courses of study in the following five fields: English with Mrs. J. Y. Paris chairman, Social Science with Miss Maxine Taylor as chairman, Mathematics with Mr. J. M. Pigford as chairman, Science with H. H. Powell as chairman and Foreign languages with Miss Ruth Cordes as chairman.

INCOGNITO

A certain brown haired freshman girl on South Garnett St., is going "go-goo" over the captain of the football team. Who's the mysterious "Mr. X" that a certain dark haired freshman girl on North William Street hints darkly about? Time will tell.

Appendages

Examinations this semester were taken during the regular one-hour class periods. It was necessary to have our regular subjects at the same time as our examinations. This put the teachers and students at a great disadvantage on account of the regular lessons to prepare in addition to the exam which took a large amount of time. It was necessary to hold our examinations in this manner because of the limited time in which to receive a required amount of instruction in each subject.

The fact that the school term has been cut to eight months not only affects the future individual but the future citizens of North Carolina and Vance County. Each teacher has a required amount of space to cover in the textbook. With the limited term the most important phases in each subject must be given only the time that should be given to unimportant phases. We hope that the old maxim "a smattering is worse than no knowledge" does not apply to high school students. Shall N. C. students be as well informed as students of other states? Shall they have enough education to make a living or only enough knowledge to spoil their chance to "do big things" and to good to "do little things"?

Few Measles Cases Are Being Reported

Few scattering cases of measles are still being reported to the county health authorities, it was stated today from the office of Dr. Z. P. Mitchell, county health officer. Several cases were reported Saturday and a few today, but those reported today were far below the number of cases reported over the week-end when the epidemic forced the closing of schools in the county. Schools are being operated in the county and will continue to do so providing no further outbreak curtails the attendance, making it necessary to close them again.

BEST YEAR IS HAD BY JEFFERSON LIFE

Greensboro Company, Represented Here, Is Largest In The South

The best year in its history was reported by the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, of Greensboro, largest concern of its kind in the South. A statement of the financial position of the company is shown in an advertisement in today's Daily Dispatch. F. M. Barnhardt and B. Frank Harris are local representatives of the company, and all business in this territory is handled through the Raleigh office, in charge of C. D. Egerton and George E. Fasmore.

Two new members were added to the board of directors, all former directors and all officers of the company were re-elected, and the regular dividend of $5 a share, aggregating $50,000 on the capital stock of 10,000 shares, was declared Monday at the annual meeting of the stockholders and directors of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company.

The new directors announced by President Julian Price are Richard C. Kelly, Greensboro attorney, who was also put on the executive committee, and George Burnell, of Monticello, N. C. Smith, a member of the board of directors and general counsel of the company, which is the largest in the south, was also made a member of the executive committee.

"Our reports indicate that 1934 was the best year in the history of the Jefferson Standard," remarked Mr. Price. In his annual report Mr. Price directs attention to the pertinent facts that the company's cash position at the close of the year 1934 showed more than $1,000,000 cash in banks. "We own in excess of $1,000,000 in United States government bonds. Last year the Jefferson Standard continued in the mortgage loan field, making many excellent loans on high class city and residential property. The company's real estate holdings are less than in 1933, however, as much foreclosed property was disposed of with practically no loss. Mr. Price stated.

"The special reserve fund which has been set up to take care of depreciation on real estate and investment fluctuations has been increased to $1,000,000," he said. His statement continues, significantly: "All of these very favorable facts are due to our people. In this period the Jefferson Standard paid to its policyholders and beneficiaries more than $40,000,000, thus stabilizing and safeguarding the affairs of those who had wisely provided for the emergency. The total payments made to policyholders and beneficiaries since the company was organized amount to $81,368,753. The president's statement reported a 25 per cent increase in the sale of new insurance in 1934 as compared with 1933. The total amount of insurance sold was $45,966,694. "This splendid volume of new business, with a greatly improved renewal record, gave us an increase in insurance in force, the total amount in force now being $314,834,797. Surplus and special reserve funds totaling $1,285,000 have been set aside for the additional protection of policyholders. Assets for the company increased more than $1,000,000 in 1934, during which year the mortality rate was only 54 per cent of the expected.

B. & L. GROUPS LEND $300,000 MONTHLY

Wadesboro, Feb. 4.—The building and loan associations in North Carolina occupy a prominent place in the recovery of the building industry as it relates to residential construction and repair work. Recent surveys reveal that the associations are lending from $200,000 to $400,000 monthly for the modernization of present homes and for the construction of new homes, according to a statement made here today by Paul J. Kiker, president of the North Carolina Building and Loan League.

In commenting upon statistics recently gathered by the United States States Building and Loan League covering the country as a whole, Mr. Kiker pointed out that practically half of the contracts for new residential buildings awarded in November were financed by construction loans from building and loan associations. He pointed out further that while construction awarded for residential construction in November revealed a total of $19,924,700, it is estimated that the building and loan associations advanced $9,216,000 of construction loans during that period. Figures for the three Fall months reveal that construction loans by these local thrift and home financing institutions were 40 per cent of the total new residential contracts awarded, according to Mr. Kiker.

The United States Building and Loan League has gathered this information from its members in all the states. Based upon this information, it is estimated that $85,000,000 has been placed into the construction industry by these institutions during the Fall months of 1934. 1802—Mark Hopkins, noted president of William College, Mass., for more than a third of a century, born at Stockbridge, Mass. Died June 17, 1887.

T. D. KITCHIN

Local alumni of Wake Forest College will be interested in a review of some of the achievements during the nearly five years Dr. Thurman D. Kitchin, has been president of the institution. The review was furnished by J. L. Memory, Jr., of the college faculty, and is rather lengthy, but the main points follow:

"With the 101st anniversary of the founding of Wake Forest College just around the corner, February 3, North Carolina's senior Baptist college is now rounding out the first lap of her second century of service and the fifth year of the administration of Dr. Thurman Delna Kitchin. "Since becoming president in 1930, the physician-educator has been too busy making history for his Alma Mater to stop to talk about it.

"The public in general has learned only about two things during the last few years from Wake Forest—that her enrollment has passed the 1,000 mark, and that a mysterious firebug played havoc around here a couple of years ago. "Of more importance than these matters, however, are achievements of Dr. Kitchin's administration. During the last three years three new and handsome fireproof buildings have been constructed, a section of concrete bleachers with field house accommodations have been extended across the entire east side of Gore athletic field; the student enrollment has increased from 617 in 1930 to 1010 in 1934; twelve thousand new volumes have been added to the law school library; interest in the historic literary societies, Euzelian and Philomathean, has been revived to a point where it is now necessary to have sectional meetings almost every night of the week to accommodate those with forensic ambition; there is a friendliness and contentment among the faculty and a relative temperance among the student body not usually found in institutions the size of Wake Forest.

"These are some of the lines along which the former medical school dean has been directing his energies since becoming the college head."

$10,000,000 Asked For Roads Nearly Same as 1933 Sum

Raleigh, Feb. 4.—The $10,000,000 appropriation for maintenance which the State Highway and Public Works Commission is asking for each year of the next biennium represents actually only $1,000,000 more than the 1933 appropriation of $8,900,000 a year when the difference in the buying power of the dollar in 1933 and 1935 is taken into consideration. Chairman Capus M. Wainick, of the commission, will point out to the appropriations committee when he appears before it Wednesday.

According to figures prepared by Chairman Wainick for presentation to the appropriations committee, the cost of maintaining roads has increased 41.8 per cent since July 1, 1933, so that taking this difference in costs into consideration, as well as the proposed wage increase of 20 per cent, the amount of maintenance that can be done with $9,000,000 now is about what could be done with $9,000,000 two years ago. So in asking for a maintenance appropriation of $10,000,000 a year now, the highway department is really asking for only $1,000,000 a year more than was given it by the 1933 general assembly when it appropriated only $8,900,000 a year for maintenance. 1915-3 assassins connected with murder of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, cause of World War, executed.

Little Sister

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

CHAPTER 16 AS USUALLY happens, after the storm came the calm. Engagement, usual affairs, the complete change of their household from a family of one inhabited by a married couple and two subsidiary (or so the couple felt) females, and various emotions Leila did not want to name to herself had been effected in four short days. Now things settled slowly down, as the waves settle smoothly over a town destroyed by an earthquake. Spring turned slowly into summer. The series of Wednesdays and Saturday dances at the club went on. Leila saw Jerry at them; sometimes with Red DeFries and the tall pleasant blond girl Marge whom he had engaged to, but much more with Mary Martin. They couldn't avoid speaking, sometimes even dancing together, but without anything said on either side, they avoided much speech or touch. Jerry, Leila knew, didn't want to Leila would have been glad if she hadn't had to. And yet, Saturdays and Sundays they danced in the same rooms and on the same floors, loafed and dived from the same float, spoke to each other casually as they passed with their respective partners. But had followed Addison's earnest lead in leaving the dances alone. Addison had never danced. They spent practically all their daytime over at the marshland. They had, it seemed, decided to call it Fernwood Waters—which was at least appropriate. What there was about the contemplation of a house and one house going up—and $17,000 in cash, more or less, going down—that could make a bride and groom stay there from 14 to 4 almost every bright summer day, Leila could not imagine; but they were, she thought, as well there as anywhere else. She didn't want to hear about it or think about it. For the first time in her life, she was being what Addison rather tritely called a "butterfly." Being a butterfly had novelty, and she worked at it with vigor.
