

Training Grind Starts Tomorrow For Baseball Team

Many Expected Out For An Initial Drill At 1 P. M.

Oxford Will Be Henderson's Opponent In The Opening Tilt Here on April 10

OTHER TEAMS DOWN TO TRAINING GRIND

All Entries Expected to be Plenty Strong; Henderson Has Open Berths for Every Position; All Talent In This Section Invited To Try for Team

The crack of the bat and the thud of a ball in a net will resound at League Park tomorrow afternoon as Otto Pahlman and his squad begin training for the opening of the Central State League here April 13 with Henderson being in organized baseball, even though semi-pro, the first time since it faded from the ranks of the Piedmont League.

A large squad of hopefuls was expected to greet Skipper Pahlman at the initial workout tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, a number of them all ready having placed their names on the dotted line. This, however, does not assure them of a post on the team, all positions being open to the man who can fill it the best.

In addition to the players now available around in this section at the present, a number of very good baseball players are away at college and will report here at the end of the school in fine condition, having been in training with their respective school nines. Outstanding among these is James Edwards, pitcher from the Aycock community, who is expected to seek a regular berth on the local team.

Durham, Oxford, Ca-Vel, Hillsboro and Jalong are training their guns on the pennant of the loop as is Henderson, Oxford, Henderson's first opponent in the opening game of the season here, promises to have a strong aggregation to place in the field. The town is already baseball conscious, and funds have been raised there to build a baseball park for their entry. Work will be completed this week at League Park, Pahlman stated, and the home of the locals will be in tip top shape for the coming season.

Pending the completion of the club house, the players will dress at the Vance Barber Shop.

Central Carolina Golf Play To Begin April 10

O. T. Kirkland, Secretary, Releases Season's Schedule; Henderson, Oxford, Louisburg and Warrenton form League; Top Team Will be Entertained at End

O. T. Kirkland, secretary of the newly formed Central Carolina Golf Association, a golfing league composed of Henderson, Warrenton, Oxford and Louisburg, released a schedule of play for the coming season, the first matches to be run off April 10.

The association was formed here at West End Club several days ago and the secretary has been at work drafting a schedule. Matches are to be played on every other Thursday, the three losing clubs to entertain the winning club at an all-day frolic at the end of the season.

The rules of the association call for a minimum of 13 players for each match, the host club being required to furnish a partner for each of the visiting players. The club entering less than 12 players will be penalized three points.

Al Johnson, professional at West End will direct the tournament. He will give his time over the circuit, instructing golfers.

The schedule for the season is as follows:

- April 10. Louisburg at Warrenton. Oxford at Henderson.
- April 24. Henderson at Louisburg. Warrenton at Oxford.
- May 8. Henderson at Warrenton. Oxford at Louisburg.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Here we have a domestic nature, sociable, and one who feels proud of his position in the household. It carries with it much dignity, which aids in social and business life. There is sometimes a lack of success which is hard to explain otherwise than to attribute it to hard luck. Ill fortune does entirely quench the spirit, even under temporary embarrassment.

State Fish, Game Law Codification Is Now Suggested

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Str. Water Hotel.

Raleigh, April 2.—A proposed codification of North Carolina's fish and game laws is scheduled for a hearing sometime today before the Senate committee on Conservation and Development. The bill would grant to the State Department of Conservation and Development, which is headed by Bruce Etheridge, power to fix the time and duration of open seasons and would confer on it broad administrative powers.

The present game law, a work of the 1927 legislature, has been so amended by "purely local" bills and other devices as to be, in the opinion of many, almost meaningless. Many added provisions of the law are conflicting. According to John Chalk, State game and fish commissioner, Attorney-General Seawell has said that the existing law is almost impossible of correct interpretation.

Under the terms of the new bill the department would be permitted to divide the State into zones for the purpose of fixing varying seasons from the seacoast to the mountains of western North Carolina, a wide and varying expanse of territory, so that uniform seasons might prevail in the same localities. Chalk believes that such a centrally-controlled plan would greatly conserve the wild life of the State, which he insists is a natural resource, to be preserved for posterity like other natural resources. Under the existing multiplicity of game laws open seasons vary so greatly in adjoining counties that in many counties which have long seasons game is being exterminated at a rapid rate, says Chalk.

1854—Frank Billings, famed Chicago surgeon, medical leader, founder of medical centres and teacher, born in Iowa Co., Wis. Died Sept. 20, 1932.
