CONTRACT BRIDGE
 WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS
 By E. V. SHEPARD
 FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

A SMALL SLAM CONTRACT

MOST CONTRACTS must be undertaken with expectations of finding reasonably normal distributions in critical suits. With 8 of a suit between the two hands 68 per cent of the time the 5 remaining cards will be divided 3-2. Even 4-1 was considered possible by the declarer, but when he found a 5-0 division the case looked bad. I wonder what percentage of readers can make 6-odd at spades, even double dummy. Of course North had to perform that feat blindly, against an opening lead of the 4 of diamonds. Try it before reading how North accomplished his purpose.

The lone club was led. Dummy's K won the trick. The declarer ruffed a return lead of a low club, to shorten his trumps to 4, the same length held by West. A low heart was led. Unless East held the K and West could not ruff, the contract could not be fulfilled. Dummy's J won the trick. North ruffed a low club, thus obtaining the shortened trumps required.

A heart was again led through East, who played low. Dummy was in with the Q. West played the 8. It was ticklish work. The Ace of clubs was led. North did not know whether or not West held another card of that suit, but West played the J. North's last heart was discarded.

Now came the opportunity for which North had been preparing himself. He and West each held 4 spades only. The Ace of hearts was led. Of course West had to ruff. He did so with the 5, but it would have made no difference which he used. North overruffed for his tenth trick with the 6. He led off his Ace and K of trumps, winning his 12 tricks. Then he had to surrender the last trick of the hand to West. The hand certainly was well played. It is considered one of the most difficult contracts in the game.
