

LIFE STORY OF HUEY LONG PORTRAYED IN SKETCHES

Huey P. Long was born at Winnfield, La., Aug. 30, 1893. As a boy of seven he began working on his father's farm...

Meanwhile young Huey acquired a high school education and studied law at Oklahoma and Tulane universities. He was admitted to the state bar at 20.

Huey induced the state supreme court to speed the processes by which he could practice before it and opened an office in Winnfield. In 1918 Long ran for his first political office...

While a member of the Louisiana public service commission in 1924, he decided to run for governor. He was defeated, but ran again four years later...

Criticized by virtually every newspaper in Louisiana shortly after he became governor, Long established his own weekly and used handbills freely. By the time Huey was elected to the United States senate in 1931 he called himself "Kingfish" and was virtual dictator of Louisiana.

A supporter of President Roosevelt shortly before his nomination for the presidency, Long soon broke with the administration. Deprived of all federal patronage, Huey bitterly attacked the New Deal and President Roosevelt with an eye on the White House for himself.

While leaving a special session of the Louisiana legislature, called to enact measures increasing Long's power, the senator was shot in the abdomen in the state capitol. His assailant, Dr. Carl Weiss, Jr., son-in-law of a political enemy, was slain by Long's bodyguard.

MOTOR CLUBS WILL HANDLE LICENSES

State To Pay Them Nine Cents Per Set of Plates Distributed

Daily Dispatch Bureau. In the Sir Walter hotel. BY J. C. EASKERVILL. Raleigh, Sept. 10.—The contract for the distribution of the 1936 automobile license plates by the Carolina Motor Club and the Winston-Salem Motor Club has just been renewed on the basis of nine cents per set of plates sold...

The cost of distributing the license plates through the offices of these motor clubs at nine cents per set is considerably less than it would cost to mail them out from the central office here, Commissioner Maxwell said.

Several years ago the Department of Revenue paid the motor clubs as much as 12 cents per set, which was still less than the cost of mailing them direct from here, by the time the cost of labor and handling was included.

State Control Of Liquor Is Desired

Continued from Page One. The liquor business and become so interested in making money or revenue from it, that it will fall back into the same limbo if disrepute it was in 26 years ago, and which eventually resulted in State and national prohibition.

State Stores Favored

To prevent any unholy alliance between county officeholders, or candidates for county offices and the liquor business, and to make sure that the control angle will not be lost sight of, many people are becoming more and more convinced that if liquor is to be legally sold in North Carolina, it should be sold in State-operated stores, under and control of a single liquor control commission.

Another argument for State control, of course, is that the State needs the revenue more than the counties do. But leaving the revenue angle entirely out of the picture, State control is needed in order to bring about more stringent regulation, to prevent cut-throat competition between the counties, to suppress bootlegging and especially to remove to as great an extent as possible any hook-up between the county liquor stores and boards with county political rings.

observers here now admit that it will be virtually impossible to get through any kind of Statewide liquor from the liquor stores, even in a special session. Many frankly think the counties are entitled to half the revenue from the liquor stores located in them. A good many think the counties that now have liquor stores would be willing to agree to a 50-50 split in revenue with the State in order to be freed of the responsibility of operating the stores and enforcing the control laws, although a majority are convinced that the counties now having stores will fight to keep them as well as all the revenue.

An exception to this latter belief, however, is Senator Harris Newman of New Hanover county, who fought throughout the 1935 legislative session for State control law, but who finally succeeded in getting the New Hanover and Pasquotank laws through the Senate after it had refused to pass a Statewide law.

warning to Premier Mussolini of Italy that Great Britain would be opposed to an unprovoked war against Ethiopia.

Meanwhile, Italian preparations for war went steadily ahead as 50,000 more men were called to the colors in a draft believed to be the last necessary to complete mobilization this month of 1,000,000 men.

Ethiopian women, too, took up the colors and began mobilizing "battalions of death" for service at the front should hostilities break out.

one solid group, they might give a serious challenge to the Long organization.

Although Long's death was a serious blow to his machine, it will continue to run for a time on its own momentum. Even without leadership, it is undeniably the strongest political organization at present in the state, and it will put up a stiff fight in the approaching January election, when senators, congressmen, a governor and other State officers will be nominated.
