

REPUBLICAN POSSIBILITIES

For President

IS NICE IN RUNNING Or Is Maryland Governor Futilely Striving FOR G. O. P. NOMINATION?

This is the eighth of a series on Republican presidential possibilities by Leslie Eichel, writer of the World at a Glance column.

By LESLIE EICHEL

Governor Harry W. Nice of Maryland cannot be seriously considered for the Republican nomination for the presidency—by all the rules and considerations of the political game. But he tours the country hopefully anyway.

And one never can tell. This writer recalls that one observer, in listing the Republican possibilities in 1930, put down Harding's name with the observation that he, of course, had no chance of nomination.

Governor Harry Nice has several "insurmountable" factors against him. He is unknown to approximately 90 per cent of the people of the United States, he has done nothing outstanding, and he is in a state off to one side that hardly counts in the balance of power.

The Maryland executive goes around the country denouncing the costs of the New Deal. That is a good campaign cry for a Knox, a Vandenberg or a Hoover, but, unfortunately, Nice is governor of a state where expenses are heavy. Democrats have seized upon that and assert that costs have jumped sky-high in Maryland.

The Democrats charge the same in New Jersey, where Governor Harold G. Hoffman, Republican, has been having a serious time with taxes.

ANTI STATE?
Harry Nice's victory over Albert C. Ritchie for the governorship of Maryland in 1934 was not an anti-

Gov. Harry W. Nice
Any chance—or not?

New Deal victory. Ritchie was and is an anti-Roosevelt man. During his long incumbency in the governorship of Maryland he clung to the conservative beliefs of the Democrats.

The Nice victory was on local issues. That weakens the Nice appeal for the Republican presidential nomination. His victory was staccato. Basically, however, Nice in a measure represents the conservative elements of the entire South Atlantic group of states. For example, Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, would fit in better with Nice than with Franklin D. Roosevelt. So would Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia, and Senator Smith of South Carolina.

But the Republicans never could win the industrial midwest and the agricultural west with Nice. It is as far from Nice to Borah as from the earth to the moon.

And, unfortunately for Nice, he has little physical appeal for the lean worker and farmer. He seems a jolly, stout man, always attending banquets.

LOST HOLE COSTLY TO GALS IN "STRIP" TOURNEY

Above is an action scene in the unique "strip" hole in match play of nine holes. Fortunately, none lost every hole! There was no barrel handy so the young lady at the right wrapped a newspaper around herself after dropping several holes.

North Carolina Is Due To Receive $40,000,000 More WPA-PWA Funds

Bailey following their conference in Washington yesterday with Works Progress Administrator Hopkins, in which conference they were joined by Congressman Robert L. Doughton, who is returning to his home in Allegheny county today or tomorrow.

Governor Ehringhaus, Senator Bailey and Congressman Doughton went to Washington yesterday as a committee named some ten days ago to attempt to find out why North Carolina was getting so few projects approved and if there was any actual discrimination against the State. After their conference with Administrator Hopkins yesterday, they issued a joint statement in which they agreed there was no discrimination and in which they said Hopkins had given assurance that North Carolina would get at least $40,000,000 more in either PWA or WPA projects, depending upon the President's decision, expected now within the next few days.

It was further learned in Washington yesterday that Secretary Ickes had been called to Hyde Park today for a conference with the President and that Hopkins would probably be called there again within a few days, evidently for a final show-down on the division of authority between the PWA headed by Ickes, and the WPA headed by Hopkins. The opinion in Washington was very strong to the effect that the outcome of these conferences would be an election on the part of the President to centralize all control of both agencies under Hopkins.

It was also made clear to the committee by Hopkins that while very few projects for North Carolina had been approved by either the PWA or WPA, that this did not mean that any had had been finally rejected but that they were merely being held in abeyance pending final decision by the President as to how they shall be handled.

Surface indications in Washington yesterday were that more of the pending WPA projects are likely to be approved than of PWA projects, for the reason that the primary object of all projects approved from now is to put as many people to work as possible, and that the WPA projects are designed to provide work for a larger number of persons than is provided for by the PWA projects. This will undoubtedly prove a disappointment to those who have been wanting larger projects involving large expenditures for materials than can be approved by the WPA. But the total amount of federal money to be expended in North Carolina will remain the same, Hopkins assured the committee, even though the number of PWA projects may be fewer than had been hoped. It is very clear to those who were in Washington yesterday, including PWA and WPA projects so far here for North Carolina has been the increasingly evident departmental rivalry between PWA Administrator Ickes and WPA Administrator Hopkins pending a final decision by the President as to which shall administer both in the future.

McDonald Is Talked For G. O. P.

here can understand.

Dr. McDonald has declared for the New Deal. He went so far as to offer his withdrawal from the contest if Farmer Bob Doughton, champion New Dealer of the country, would make the race. True it is, Republicans had welcomed the late Huey Long as an ally, but it's different with Dr. McDonald. Such Republicanism as now abides in North Carolina is concerned chiefly with putting down President Roosevelt and all his work. Mr. McDonald as the conspicuous New Dealer would be the worst sort of affront.

There is a community of interests. The Republicans dislike the sales tax, but Dr. McDonald's liberal attitude on the liquor question is another objection to him. One of the excuses for Gilliam Grissom's candidacy for governor on the Republican ticket is to lead the country as far away from Roosevelt and McDonald as the North Carolina part of it can be carried. It is conceivable that the Republicans would be induced to join hands with Hoey or Graham to make certain the destruction of the New Deal candidate McDonald. But hooking up with him to make it a dominant North Carolina policy is unthinkable.

Still, it is recalled here that the Republicans once fused with the Populists, their antithesis in every major political policy, to beat the Democrats of North Carolina. And that may be the present enterprise. In 1894 the issue was "down with machine government." The Democratic organization was charged with all sorts of election frauds and with government by big business, of which there was little in those days. Some such fraternization might be possible now, but it is exceedingly unlikely.

Danger Of Fresh World War Is Real

possibilities until next spring. It presumably will serve its purpose if hostilities are confined to fighting between Italy and Ethiopia, but scarcely if other countries become involved in the meantime. In that event numerous situations are sure to develop which will have to be dealt with on short notice—situations that the neutrality act will not cover and with which State Department will not be equal to dealing lonehanded.

SUPERFICIAL COMMOTION

Ruso-American relations inevitably will continue to boil and bubble. Moscow obviously simply cannot control the activities of American "reds" here in their native land. Yet the administration has its reason for persisting in blaming the Soviet outfit for them; it is the best method of proving that it is not itself, communistic.

The danger of another World War, however, is no mere bugaloo; that is genuine.

Moreover, it is the consensus that President Roosevelt must evolve a startling program of new policies for the 1936 campaign. An outline of them is looked for on his coming transcontinental speaking tour.

The Supreme Court shortly will be meeting, too. What it may do to recent New Deal legislation is aplenty. Prices are rising also—but not incomes, to keep pace with them. Hence increasing labor trouble. Strikes are impending in many industries; housewives' and miscellaneous buyers' strikes, likewise.

IN MEMORIAM.
Thirty-seven years ago Emily Harris, wife of E. C. Farris, was born in Chatham County, North Carolina. On September 3, 1935 it was the will of God to take her from us, after long suffering, into eternal rest and peace and that everlasting love of Christ Jesus.

She was a member of the M. E. Church of Henderson and we wish to pay loving tribute to her by the following resolutions:

First: That by her death, our Church, The Lucy Cross Parker Missionary Society, and the Women's Auxiliary have lost a faithful, loyal member, the community organizations an active co-worker, her neighbors a kind friend, and her family a devoted wife and an affectionate Mother.

Second: That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who knoweth best.

Third: That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy and commend them to the One who alone can comfort them in their deep sorrow.
