TODAY'S HOROSCOPE.

The influence of the first part of the day gives a misanthropic attitude of mind, possibly due to some real or fancied wrong. Born as the day advances the mind becomes more active, in some cases ready to undertake daring enterprises; but the life may be circumscribed. Under some influences this might go so far as to reach a restraint of liberty.

During the World War New Zealand increased its postage rates, which again were reduced in 1923, when this stamp was issued to commemorate the event.

Today is the Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD
Copyright, 1935, for this Newspaper by Central Press Association

Calendar for December 1935 showing dates and days of the week.

Thursday, Dec. 5; only 16 more shopping days till Christmas. This is St. Nicholas eve, when children in European countries hang up their stockings for gifts. They don't expect them at Christmas. Santa Claus is a German corruption of the Teutonic form of the saint name—Nicholas. Not German, but Greek, was Nicholas, a bishop in Asia Minor in the 3rd century, who became the patron saint of Children.

December, the month of light hearts, is the darkest. Two-thirds of the month is night.

TODAY'S YESTERDAYS

Dec. 5, 1056—Traditional date upon which Macbeth, Scottish king, is supposed to have been killed at Lumphanan, Aberdeenshire. He had lived 17 years after he was nagged by Lady Macbeth into killing King Duncan to obtain the throne and provide the plot which Shakespeare lifted from Raphael Holinshed's Chronicles nearly 500 years later.

150 Years Ago Today—One of the most remarkable coincidences in history occurred. A vessel carrying 60 passengers sank while crossing Meane Straits, Wales. The sole survivor was a man named Hugh Williams.

Exactly 121 years before to the day another vessel carrying 81 passengers foundered in the straits and the only survivor was a man named Hugh Williams.

The coincidence didn't end there. Thirty-five years later, in August 1830 another vessel carrying 25 sank in Meane. Again the sole survivor was one Hugh Williams!

Dec. 5, 1831—John Quincy Adams became the only man to enter the House of Representatives after having been President. He remained there 17 years as a representative from Massachusetts.

Another President, Andrew Johnson, entered the Senate after his term in the White House.

Dec. 5, 1876—A fire in the Brooklyn Theatre, New York, one of the worst theatre tragedies in U. S. history, made more than 200 orphans. The play was "The Two Orphans".

Dec. 5, 1928—"The Chaco war" of Paraguay and Bolivia broke out.

Dec. 5, 1934—History repeated. The incident occurred at Utaul (also known as Walwal) which was to provoke the Italian-Ethiopian war. Fighting broke out between Italians and Ethiopians over possession of a well in border territory, and 140 casualties resulted.

THE WORLD WAR DAY-BY-DAY

20 Years Ago Today—Henry Ford's peace efforts were coming to naught. But so, too, were those of Pope Benedict XV. A telegram was sent to the Pope asking a blessing upon the Ford expedition. Unfortunately, it was addressed to Benedict VII, who had been dead 10 centuries. No blessing.

What Do You Know About North Carolina? By FRED H. MAY. 1. What recognition of the United States government was not required of North Carolina governors? 2. What price was paid for tobacco in 1789? 3. When was a company of North Carolina militia called out to protect the oyster industry? 4. What did the Chickasaw chief tell North Carolina representatives about the Spaniards? 5. How much did the Southern Railway through Catawba county sell for in 1872? 6. What instructions about giving, or receiving, gifts was issued to the first royal governor?

ANSWERS

1. For a number of years after the formation of the United States government the North Carolina assembly refused to require her governors to take oath to support the Constitution of the United States. An oath of allegiance to North Carolina, only, was all that was required on being inducted into office.
2. The price offered the state of North Carolina for tobacco taken in payment of taxes was $3.00 per hundred pounds.
3. On January 12, 1891 Company E, Pasquotank Guards, Elizabeth City, was called out to aid in putting a stop to oyster pirates in North Carolina waters. A steamer was chartered and the company patroller the rounds for nine days looking for armed thugs from other states who were terrorizing the native oystermen.
4. Chief Glover, at the Treaty of Nashville, 1781, expressed his friendship for the Americans and eulogized his folk by saying: "I have heard a talk from the Spaniards advising us to kill you, but do not be afraid of it for they are our old enemies; we never had anything from, nor never will join them. I told the Spaniards you were both white people alike, and if they had any quarrel with you to fight their own battles."
5. At that time it was the Western North Carolina Railroad. The road was sold in every county along the line under a judgment for $20,000 due the Bank of Cape Fear in Catawba county. M. L. McCorkle, representing the stockholders in that county bid in that portion of the railroad for $10,000.
6. He was instructed not to give his consent to the passing of any law or act for any gift or present to be present to be made to you or them by the Assembly and that neither you nor they do receive any gift or present from the Assembly or others on any account or in any manner whatsoever upon pain of our highest displeasure and of being recalled."

was conferred upon the self-appointed peacemakers, but this day His Holiness did speak out about the war. In a consistory he renewed his condemnation of the spirit of hatred engendered by the war and his protest against the cruel persecution of Armenian people. He regretted that his appeal for peace to the belligerents, although received with all reverence, had failed to secure its object.
Public appeal was the only means left to the pope to advocate peace, as a secret treaty signed only a few months before in London, had bound Great Britain, France and Russia to consent to the request of Italy that no representative of the Holy See should be allowed to take diplomatic action toward the conclusion of peace, or the settlement of questions arising from the war!

WRITING WRONGS

You're wrong if you believe— That Canada is a tributary of Great Britain. It isn't. It does not pay taxes to the British government, and has virtually no other tie with Britain other than acknowledgment of the same king. It can refuse to send its military forces to fight in a British war.

That President Roosevelt has a private railroad car. He hasn't. He usually rides in one of the "stock" private cars of the Pullman Company which anyone may hire; no particular one is set aside for him. Sometimes the car of an official of a railroad is placed at his disposal.

My New York By James Aswell. Advertisement for a perfume or cosmetic product.

New York, Dec. 5.—Jimmy Durante of the fabulous brook is a surprisingly homespun character out of makeup. Schooled in the Broadway night-club world of Prohibition days—as rigorous an academy as the imagination could devise—he retains a boyish and touching naivete.

Jimmy's father is a barber in Brooklyn and the relationship between the two is said by intimates to be one of the finest and least spoiled in showbusiness. Despite a son whose salary runs to figures which seem astronomical to the ordinary wage-earner, the elder Durante has never abandoned his shears and razor or allowed Jimmy's genialities to affect a lifelong habit of thrift and work.

During the rehearsals of "Jumbo," Durante pere dropped in one afternoon to see Jimmy go through his paces. He sat in the dark, vastness of the Hippodrome until the show had been completely rehearsed. Then he slipped out and returned in a few minutes with small paper bag. In the bag was a five-cent cigar which he presented feigningly to his son with felicitations for success.

Students of the American mind may get a chapter for future books out of the odd shift, during the past couple of decades, in our ideas of beauty in women.

It is a far cry from the gingham simplicity of the early Mary Pickford to the girls who currently represent loveliness. A startling number of today's beauties have a marked Oriental cast to their features.
There is Myrna Loy, whose Eastern expression suited her to Chinese roles in early films she made. Merle Oberon carries the vague aura of almond eyes and bead curtains thinking gently on the other side of the world. Mary Taylor, a Social Registerite who poses for commercial photographers as a typical American beauty, has about her a sloop-eyed, almost indefinable suggestion of the Orient.
And the two girls men are sigh-

Politicians Think Hoey To Win Out

place and hence by the next governor, believe that Lieutenant-Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham is now in third place and likely to remain there, although some admit that he has undoubtedly made some good gains during the past few weeks.

The rank and file of 3,000 or more State employes here, however, do not agree with the findings of the so-called political "experts" here. While most of the State employes are doing very little talking, for the reason that they want to continue to hold their jobs, regardless of who is nominated and elected governor, the belief in non-partisan political circles is that a majority of these employes are going to vote for Dr. McDonald or "Sandy" Graham. There are several reasons for this belief, the foremost being that with only one or two exceptions, Raleigh and Wake county have never voted for the winning candidate for governor. In fact, the only time in the last 20 years that Wake county gave a majority for the winning candidate for governor, was when the late Governor Bickett was nominated in 1916. In the 1920 primary, Wake county went for Max Gardner two to one over both Cameron Morrison and Page and again gave Gardner a majority in the second primary. In 1924 it went for J. W. Bailey instead of A. W. McLean, while in the 1932, Wake county voted almost two to one for Lieutenant Governor R. T. Fountain in both the first and second primaries. There was no primary contest in 1928, when O. Max Gardner was the only Democratic candidate for the nomination.

Accordingly, it is already being conceded that Wake county will run true to form in the June primary next year and give a majority to the candidate most violently opposed to the outgoing administration, which, of course, will be Dr. McDonald, despite the fact that almost every appointive State official and most of the elected officials are regarded as strong supporters of Hoey. But a majority of the rank and file of employes—the clerks, stenographers, fieldmen, engineers, and so forth—are going to refuse to follow many of their superiors, just as they have done in the past and vote for either McDonald or Graham. And a good many political observers concede that, while there are only about 3,000 State employes here in Raleigh and its immediate vicinity, these come from every section of the State and many of them have strong political connections back in their home counties, so that in the long run they influence or control between 50,000 and 75,000 votes. So these State employes and their influence are not to be sneezed at.

The reason most of the State employes are generally anti-administration before any governor completes his term, and hence opposed to whoever the outgoing governor is regarded as supporting, is that they generally feel the retiring governor has not done as much for them as they think he should have.
