REFUSE TO CONFORM: And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.—Romans 12:2.

TODAY

TODAY'S ANNIVERSARIES: 1736—(200 years ago) Charles Nisbet, Scottish Presbyterian clergyman, friend of the American colonies in the Revolution, came here as first president of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., born in Scotland. Died at Carlisle Jan. 18, 1894.

1743—John Fitch, America's unhappy steamboat inventor, whose patent antedated Fulton's by 22 years, unsuccessful, brave soul, born in Hartford Co., Conn. Died at Bardonia, Ky., July 2, 1793.

1853—Helen G. Gardner, Ohio school principal, writer, lecturer, suffragist, first woman member of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, born at Winchester, Va. Died in Washington, July 26, 1925.

1824—Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson, famed Confederate general, born at Clarksburg, W. Va. Died May 10, 1863, accidentally, from his own men.

1857—Samuel W. Parr, University of Illinois chemist, lithium discoverer, born at Granville, Ill. Died May 18, 1931.

TODAY IN HISTORY: 1793—Louis XVI of France guillotined—French Revolution.

1821—Ashantis of West Africa routed British force of 1,000 under Sir Charles McCarthy—skull of slain Sir Charles used as royal drinking cup for years.

1824—Citizens of Little Haverhill, Mass., petitioned Congress for a peace bill dissolution of the Union—a four days' sensation in the House.

1931—Europe's premiers and foreign ministers assembled in Geneva pledge Europe will keep peace—to promote political and economic recovery.

1935—Testimony at Hauptmann trial Fleming, N. J., revealed Hauptmann did not work on days of kidnaping and ransom paying, that he passed some ransom money before day stated, that he plunged heavily in stocks.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Charles T. Ingham of Pittsburgh, secretary of the American Institute of Architects, born there, 60 years ago.

Francis Hackett of Ireland, noted Chicago and New York journalist and author, born in Ireland, 53 years ago.

Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary, Ind., superintendent of schools, born at Marke, Ind., 62 years ago.

Carveth Wells of Westport, N. Y., explorer, author, lecturer, born in England, 49 years ago.

Frederick M. Smith, of Independence, Mo., president of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, born at Plano, Ill., 62 years ago.

Rev. Frank W. Sterrett, P. E., bishop of Bethlehem, Pa., born at Middleport, N. Y., 51 years ago.

William A. DeLano of New York City, noted architect, born there, 62 years ago.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE: Here we find a peculiar mixture. Having convention and with a tendency to innovation, the life may be spent in dreams, unless an impetus is given in the direction of achievement of some of the ideas before success slips by.

To commemorate the silver jubilee of the reign of King George V, the Straits Settlements issued this stamp in 1935.

Tuesday, Jan. 21, Foundation Day in Panama. Morning stars: Venus, Neptune, Jupiter. Evening stars: Saturn, Mars, Uranus, Mercury, Moon: last quarter.

The adage, "Year of snow, fruit will grow," and its reverse, "January warm, the Lord have mercy," is substantiated by modern meteorology. W. J. Humphreys, U. S. Weather Bureau expert, explains: "A continuous, or nearly continuous, covering of snow, incident to a cold winter, not only delays the blossoming of fruit trees until after killing frosts are probable, but also prevents the alternate thawing and freezing so ruinous to wheat and other grains."

TODAY'S YESTERDAYS: Jan. 21, 1337—The prince who was to become Charles V of France was born. Still without a Hackett, he is remembered only because the first mechanical house clock was made for him by Henry DeVick in 1379. It had a vibrating balance instead of a pendulum, and although it varied as much as two hours in a day, represented the biggest improvement in timekeeping in centuries.

It has been preceded by a few huge tower clocks. The watch was to come along afterwards. In most things, progress is measured by increase in size. In timepieces, the opposite is true.

Jan. 21—1883—On the Wabash railway in Iowa, four locomotives going to the relief of four other locomotives stalled in a snow drift, met the four in head-on collision, all eight being derailed!

FIRST WORLD WAR DAY-BY-DAY: 20 Years Ago Today—French and British warships bombarded the Bulgarian port of Dedegatchah, and their shells showed no discrimination between women, children, the aged and the members of the small military force. Fires were started, great damage done.

The attack brought no advantage to the Allies. However, it must have made the German emperor reluctant to see Bulgaria. He was currently in Nish, meeting with his Bulgarian ally, Ferdinand, who at a banquet obsequiously addressed him in Latin: "Tu es Caesar et gloriosus!"

IT'S TRUE: Cabins in ships all over the world now are known as staterooms, because in the early days of passenger travel on the Mississippi, the cabins of the steamers were all given names of vaturious states.

On the same day, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Hudson, of Morley, Yorkshire, celebrated their golden wedding; their son and his wife celebrated their silver wedding; and their grandson was married.

There's a sea under the Sahara Desert. For generations the tomato was believed to be poisonous and wasn't eaten; it was cultivated for its ornamental appearance or grew wild.

After being kept in prison 13 years by mistake, a man in Tirana, Albania, was dunned by local authorities for the cost of his free lodging and food!

that the time has come when long-suffering patience calls for practical and immediate action by the Congress and the administration.

"I say this because of the news that processing tax collections impounded by the courts are now to be immediately returned to the processors. The Supreme Court so ordered yesterday. This money, which may total nearly $200,000,000, represents charges which had in most cases already been passed on to consumers, or back to farmers.

"I do not question the legality of this action, but I certainly do question the justice of it.

"In its decision on the Hosanc mills case declaring the AAA unconstitutional, the majority of the court expressed disapproval of the idea of 'expropriations of money from one group for the benefit of another.' The return of this $200,000,000 to the processors is exactly that."

Stephen A. Spitz

Strong link in the chain of new evidence purported to exist in the Bruno Hauptmann case is expected to be disclosed by Stephen A. Spitz, above, who, released from a Chicago jail after serving sentence for forgery, promised to go to New Jersey to give "highly important evidence." Meanwhile, authorities investigated Spitz's story that in August, 1934, two men showed him federal reserve notes which they said were part of the Lindbergh ransom money and offered to sell him $5,000 worth at 40 cents on the dollar. Spitz has indicated that he actually handled and passed some of the ransom bills.

Makes Opera Debut

Joseph Bentonelli

Lady Luck and illness of Richard Crook, opera singer, combined to give Joseph Bentonelli, above, 33-year-old Oklahoma tenor, a chance with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York. Bentonelli, who made his debut in "Manon", had been given an audition only a week previously. Bentonelli now has a contract to sing in several other presentations during the season. His name—originally Benton in Oklahoma—became Bentonelli when he sang in Italy.

276 CHILDREN ARE CERTIFIED TO JOBS

None of These Under 14; That's "Tremendous Increase" Argued About

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In The Sir Walter Hotel, By J. C. BASKLEY, Raleigh, Jan. 21.—Only 276 children under 16 years of age were certified for employment in North Carolina during 1935 and none of these was less than 14 years old, according to figures released today by Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher. These figures represent the "tremendous increase" in child labor in the State as charged by northern manufacturers and given as one of the reasons they cannot compete with southern manufacturers, especially textile manufacturers, Fletcher said.

"But of the 276 children which were certified for regular employment in North Carolina during 1935, only 106 have been employed in industry and only 82 in the cotton textile industry," Commissioner Fletcher pointed out. "So we cannot see where there has been any tremendous increase in child labor in the State during the past year, especially in the textile industry. The facts are that most of the textile mills now refuse to employ any children whatever, largely because they can employ experienced workers for the same wages they would have to pay 14 and 15 year old beginners."

Most of the children who were given certificates by the Department of Labor so that they could be employed, were boys and girls who had mothers or younger children dependent upon them, it was pointed out. For employment certificates are not issued to 14 and 15 year old boys and girls unless there is a real necessity for them to work, Fletcher said.

Of the 276 children between 14 and 16 years of age who were regularly employed during 1935, 212 were boys and 64 girls. Of the total of both sexes, 82 were employed in textile mills, six in hosiery mills, two in silk mills, ten in furniture and lumber manufacturing and six in other lines of manufacturing. Of the 170 employed in the service trades, 113 were employed in mercantile stores, largely as delivery boys, 28 in outside delivery service and 29 in other lines of work.

Of the 61 girls employed, 35 were in textile mills, two in hosiery mills, 22 in mercantile stores, one in a silk mill, one in miscellaneous manufacturing and three in miscellaneous mercantile work.
