TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Today gives a curious mixture, with a strong but conflicting mind. There is quickness of thought and action and great executive powers. The determination will often bring results, but they are not always of the best. You should always work in a strong light and in dark moments do not brood over perplexities.

This stamp was issued to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of Cyprianus as a British colony. The design features a medieval map of Cyprus.

Calendar for March 1936 showing dates and days of the week.

Thursday, March 12: St. Gregory's Day; 251st day, 160th year of U. S. Independence. Every day is a holiday somewhere. This is Moshoeshoe's Day in Basutoland, and the Anniversary of Sun Yat Sen's Death in China. No weather saying is more unsound than the saying, "It's too cold to snow." Our worst blizzards have either commenced with a low temperature or terminated with the temperature near zero.

TODAY'S YESTERDAYS
March 12, 1776—Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope was born in London, daughter of the 3rd Earl of Stanhope, destined to become one of the most remarkable women of her time. After having served 10 years as private secretary to the great Percival William Pitt, in a day when it was extraordinary for a woman to have such a position, she became deranged. She wandered to Asia Minor, won the friendship and confidence of wild Arab tribes and became their queen. The crazier she became, the greater her power grew until she dominated Syria and Palestine. She died at 54.

March 12, 1789—A general postoffice was established by authorization of Congress, in consequence of a plea of the post-master-general, Ebenezer Hazard, that the new nation needed a federal postal system reaching every part of the country. He had some difficulties obtaining authorization, for private mail services were operating, and they usually were faster and less expensive than the U. S. Mail.

March 12, 1866—Memorial Day had its inception. In a letter to the Columbus, Ga., Times, Mrs. Mary Ann Howard Williams proposed setting aside a day "to breathe the graves of our Martyrs to death with flowers," and thus instituted the memorial day custom in the South some time before the decoration-day idea was adopted by the Grand Army of the Republic in the North.

March 12, 1930—At Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., Clyde W. Tombaugh got man's first sight of the planet Pluto. Percival Lowell had predicted the discovery 25 years ago before by mathematical calculation.

FIRST WORLD WAR DAY-BY-DAY
20 Years Ago Today—The 10th British division, composed principally of Irish, had outlined the horrors of Sulva, in the Dardanelles. It had outlined the days and nights of terror and bitter cold on the Serbian frontier ranges in an abortive attempt to stem the German invasion. Now it was "fighting another war," carrying on a slow, punishing rear guard action in a retreat from Macedonia to Salonica. Thereby it was enabling the Allies to withdraw stores accumulated for the Serbian campaign and fall back without disorder into Greece territory.

The Irish saved the Allies from another disaster comparable to the Dardanelles, though outnumbered eight to one. Teodorow, the Bulgarian general opposing them, reckoned no loss too great if the objective be gained. Under his whip-lash orders the Bulgars charged again and again until the snowdrifts over which the successive

What Do You Know About North Carolina?
By FRED H. MAY

- 1. When was F. M. Simmons beaten by a Negro for a congressional seat?
2. What Orange county man was vice-president of the Republic of Texas under President Sam Houston?
3. When did the State own two-thirds of a railroad and was not allowed a representative in a stockholders meeting?
4. When was prize fighting outlawed in North Carolina?
5. What governors annulled the court proceedings of their predecessors?
6. In what way did the Regulators pay their taxes in 1769?

ANSWERS

- 1. In the campaign for election to the Fifty-first congress in 1889, Congressman Simmons, who had served one term, was defeated by Henry P. Cheatham, Negro, of Henderson. Cheatham served two terms and was beaten in 1895 by the Democratic candidate, Frederick A. Woodard, of Wilson.
2. Kenneth L. Anderson, of Hillsboro, was vice president of the Republic of Texas in 1842.
3. Governor David Reid reported to the legislature of 1854 that the representative of the state was not recognized by the other stockholders of the North Carolina Railroad, in which the State owned two-thirds of the stock. The charter provided for a representative, but did not specify how he should be chosen. Governor Reid asked that this be cleared up.
4. In 1895, a penalty of $500, or penitentiary or jail sentence of five years, was provided for any violation of the law which prohibited sparring matches, glove or fist contests for money or valuable prizes.
5. Thomas Cary, who became acting governor in 1708, annulled the court proceedings of Governor William Glover, whom he had ousted. Then Governor Hyde became the chief executive in 1712 and he annulled the court acts of Governor Cary.
6. They refused to pay the sheriff of Orange county, but sent it to New Bern by Harmon Husband, representative to the assembly. In turning it over to Governor Tryon, Representative Husband is quoted as saying, "Here, sir, are the taxes which my people refused your rough sheriff."

battles were fought were black with the recumbent forms of men.
But while the Connaughts, the Munsters, the Dublin Fusiliers and the Inniskillings were saving Britain from disaster in the East, the Irish at home were fighting it. Rebellion was reaching white heat in Dublin.

IT'S TRUE

Twenty-five states have sterilization laws. But of 16,000 operations registered up to the end of 1934, more than half were performed in one state—California.

New York, March 12—Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, who shepherded the Dionne quintuplets to the world, turned out to be a dyed-in-the-wool gad-about during his last visit to New York. Tight lipped, with large quizzical eyes behind gold-rimmed specs, he likes parties and night life.

I saw him at "21" that night but rather ordinary restaurant which attracts luminaries of the pen and footlights at all hours of the day and night mysteriously. I glimpsed him emerging from the lobby of the "Follies" recently, the center of a large and happy group of stay-up-lates. He even bent an ear, I am told, to the purple jazziques of Leon and Eddie's.

News reached me that the good Doctor had a slight cold one day. I thumbed to ask him if it wasn't the merest touch of "quinsy"—but never summoned the nerve.

I went backstage at the Paramount to chat with Mr. Eddie Duchin, the young jazzmaster with big eyes and black curly hair who is the current darling of the sassiest set. He was educated to be a pharmacist in his dad's New England drug store and so, with great vocational versatility, he doesn't have to worry.

Eddie was sad about the closing of the Central Park Casino, that dazzling chalet on the green where so much ermine and so many stiff shirts used to pop the eyes of plain citizens. He got his start, rose to fame there.

"Of course the political phases of the Casino controversy—being on public ground and things like that—are outside my field. I haven't any opinion about that. But it makes me blue to see the Casino dark. My career is only four years old and I got my big start there.

"After all, society people have to have some place to play, too. That was it."

Eddie married Miss Marjorie Oelrichs a little more than a year ago. She's of the breathlessly fashionable Oelrichs clan and she had had to bear ostracism for marrying an "entertainer" as far as the Social Register was concerned.

She doesn't mind. She likes to go with her husband on one-night stands throughout the country, playing in theatres and for dances. She doesn't mind about the Social Register because she knows that all the debbies who remained in the book envy her half to death for getting Eddie.

COTTON ROADS ARE TO BE TESTED OUT

Some 50 or 60 Miles Will Likely Be Constructed During 1936

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In The Sir Water Hotel, By J. C. BASKERVILLE, Raleigh, March 11.—The State Highway and Public Works Commission is hoping to be able to build from 50 to 60 miles of "cotton roads" this spring and summer, as a result of the appropriation by congress to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads of $1,300,000 to be used in building experimental roads using cotton fabric as a binder between the clay base and the bituminous surface on top, Chief Engineer W. Vance Baise said today. He has written to the Bureau of Public Roads for further information and to find out, if possible, how much of this sum will be allotted to North Carolina.

"We have been planning to build some of these 'cotton roads' this spring with State funds, in order to determine whether the surface treated roads built with a cotton fabric binder will stand up better and wear longer than roads built without it," Baise said. "But if the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads will furnish the fabric for these experimental roads, as preliminary reports indicate, we will try to build from 50 to 60 miles of them this year, since we can use the fabric on roads which we are going to rebuild or re-treat any way and at no additional expense. We are hoping that this will be the case since the cotton fabric needed cost from $800 to $1,000 a mile and the cost of surface treating a road is increased by that amount."

RUPTURE

SHIELD EXPERT HERE
H. M. SHEVNAV, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Carolina Hotel, Raleigh, Saturday, Sunday and Monday only, March 14, 15 and 16, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Mr. Shevnav says: The Zoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnav will be glad to demonstrate without charge.
