

High School Bulldogs To Play Three Games This Week

Meet Norlina, Roxboro Here And Warrenton Hi There During The Week

Team Seems to Improve as Season Progresses; Release Schedule

Coach Tom Fallwell's Henderson high school Bulldogs will see plenty of action on the diamond this week, playing three games, two of them here and the third at Warrenton.

Norlina comes here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to take on the locals and Roxboro comes Thursday afternoon at the same time to give the Bulldogs as much as they can handle. The team goes to Warrenton Friday for a game with John Graham high school.

Henderson started off the season last week with a 10-0 loss to Roanoke Rapids, one of the strongest teams in this section, but came back strong last Wednesday afternoon to trounce Warrenton 22-5 in a slugfest.

Coach Fallwell will depend on the post slants of Lefty Ayscue for a victory over Norlina, and will send his ace hurler, Claybourne Inscoc, against the invaders from Person county, Roxboro, Thursday.

Leland Owens, a new comer, will get his chance Friday in Warrenton to show his wares. He has a fast ball that is very hard to hit.

Drills Favorable

The drills that the locals have been going through have been very favorable, according to Coach Tom. The boys seem to get better and better as the season progresses. They had little time to get in shape before the opening game, due to severe weather. Wilbourne Finch is the fourth man on the pitching staff, and his tantalizing slants give the batters plenty of worry. He expects to see action during the week in a relief role.

After this week's game, Henderson has eight more contests, and, in the opinion of Archie Boyd, onetime manager of a semi-pro team here, who is aiding the boys in getting into shape, the locals should cop more than half of the contests.

Coach Fallwell today announced his varsity squad as follows:

Henry Stewart, Henry Tucker, Edward Brinkley, Edgar Edwards, Durward Turner, James Coghil, Haywood Phillips, Russell Ayscue, Claiborne Inscoc, J. H. Hicks, Fred McGee, Leland Owens, William Finch, Tom Ridcut.

HENDERSON GOLFERS PLACED IN TOURNEY

Sedgefield Event Over Week-End Draws Many Golfers To Participate

Greensboro, April 20—A. W. Fetter, of the Sedgefield club, and J. H. Walker, of Pinehurst and Amesbury, N. J., teamed together to capture the initial honor in the present mid-Southern Seniors' golf tournament at the Sedgefield Country club, the team bringing in a best ball net score of 61 to win the preliminary event in Friday's opening frame of the seventh annual mid-Dixie links event being staged this week-end over the Sedgefield course.

Fetter and Walker returned a best ball gross card of 76 and carried a handicap of 15, to win them the low honor of the day. Fetter, himself, romped around his native circuit for a gross showing of 79 strokes; an excellent record in any kind of competition.

The second low net score in Friday's preliminary was annexed by O. T. Kirkland and C. O. Seifert, both of Henderson, who brought in a best ball net card of 62. The Kirkland-Seifert team had a gross best ball card of 75, and packed a handicap of 13 to place them second in the competition.

Three teams tied for the third low net showing in the preliminary event with a net return of 63 each. These were A. G. Myers, and P. H. Thompson of Gastonia. A. S. Winson and S. E. Leavitt, both of Chapel Hill, and J. H. Brodie and E. F. Shaw, both of Henderson.

There were also three ties for the fourth net best ball score of 64, the following teams tying for this honor:

R. H. Wheeler, Sedgefield, and N. C. Ives, Philadelphia; J. Y. Pharr, Concord; and A. R. Howard, Concord; R. E. Clement and C. L. Carter, Henderson.

DURHAM TEAM COPS GAME FROM THE AA'S

The Henderson AA's fell 6-5 victims to Durham White Sox yesterday afternoon at League Park, after having the lead through most of the game.

A pinch homer in the ninth with one on base gave the visitors their victory.

SANFORD MEETING FOR LEAGUE TEAMS

Ed Powell to Attend for Henderson; Will Talk Tobacco State Loop

Out of a meeting in Sanford tomorrow night of the teams interested in forming the Tobacco State League for operation during the summer, some definite action is expected, and fans will know whether that league will exist again this year or not.

The principle holdup has been the inability of Erwin to agree to play six games a week. The league played four games per week last year, but this season, Henderson and Oxford have been added, making six clubs.

All the teams, with the exception of Erwin, want six games and will not operate on anything less than six, according to baseball promoters here.

Ed Powell, who is the instigator of a Henderson team in that league, has already taken steps to house the Henderson entry. League Park has had its fence restored, bleachers built for white fans, and a club house near the park will be rented shortly and put in good repair for the season, according to Powell.

If the proposed loop falls through, Powell says he will go on independently, giving Henderson baseball this summer.

Representatives from here are expected to attend tomorrow night's session and push for six games per week with a six club league.

Most of the clubs have already been formed, Oxford being headed by Dixie Davis, one time Major Leaguer. He plans to carry on independently if the loop fails, according to observers.

The proposed league would be made up of teams from Sanford, Selma-Smithfield, Angier, Erwin, Oxford, and Henderson.

world, and proudly presents them to the public at the exposition. All of the acts will be performed on a raised platform in full view of those attending. There will be reserved seats as well as bleacher seats, and all may easily find a place of vantage to view the intricate performances of the stars.

Amateur Hour Feature.

Sam Alford, director of the Amateur Hour, has been giving auditions to talent throughout this section interested in competing for cash prizes offered each evening, and he feels that he has lined up some of the best available. This feature is expected to prove one of the most enjoyable of the entire gala week.

Dancing Every Night.

There will be dancing every night with popular music being furnished by well known bands.

Hal Thurston and his band will be on hand tonight, and Eubies Becker, NBC artist, will come tomorrow night with his orchestra. A previous engagement prevents Becker's band from being here at the beginning of the exposition.

The advance ticket sale has been very gratifying, and the sponsors of the big show expect this one to be the best ever in attendance, judging from the great amount of interest being manifested.

Roosevelt's Job Plan Many-Sided

was the earliest suggestion, made under the Hoover regime, when the depression set in. It was referred to as a share-the-work plan.

Employers were friendly to it, but they wanted to cut pay in proportion to time reduction. That is to say, if an employer had two eight-hour per day workers and thought he could do with one, he was willing to retain both on a four-hour each per day basis, but at one-half of his previous eight-hour per day per worker.

Perhaps this would have been some consolation to the worker who, otherwise, was due to go 100 per cent overboard, but 50 per cent less than none to the one who hoped to be retained 100 per cent on the payroll.

In other words, the notion was to make labor bear the whole expense of the depression.

NO WAGE CUT

President Roosevelt proposes that hours or days shall be cut with no cut in wages.

Which from the employers' standpoint, must be equivalent to a stiff aggregate wage increase—no more per man, but more men to deliver the old-time volume of production.

What follows?

Why, the employers, to maintain the profits of their respective industries in the face of an increased overhead, boost prices to consumers. Living costs rise; the worker, while getting, in dollars and cents, as much as ever, can buy less with it. In effect, his pay has been cut anyway.

THREE GROUPS AT ODDS

Or else: Labor's pay isn't cut. Consumerism isn't mulcted.

Then the difference must come out of the industry's dividends.

There are three groups at groups.

Two of Entombed Men Still Alive

scue workers estimated that they were within five feet of the spot where Dr. Robertson and Charles Alfred Scadding were.

With Dr. Robertson and Scadding was the body of his partner, Herman R. McGill, Toronto lawyer, who succumbed during the night apparently to hunger and exposure.

Veteran miners were digging from two directions to get to the men.

F. D. Henderson, mine manager, predicted rescuers would get through the crumbling tunnel shortly after noon and the miners were burrowing in through loose rock without stopping to timber up their tunnel. Communications between the surface and the 131 foot level, where the men are trapped, were improved by the lowering of a tiny microphone wire through a fine inch pipe for which an opening had been bored by a diamond drill. Into this microphone, Dr. Robertson said, "get through to us for 10 or 12 hours or longer. We can hold out."

Three men were trapped Easter Sunday night when an area of land 400 feet long and 75 feet wide collapsed and sank 15 feet.

Tobacco Farmers To Go To Raleigh

little more than an anti-Ehringhaus and an anti-administration demonstration, because of the refusal of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus to call a special session of the General Assembly to enact tobacco crop control legislation and a State compact law similar to that enacted in Virginia and under consideration in South Carolina.

It is also expected to result in a mass demonstration in favor of the candidacy of Dr. Ralph W. McDonald for the Democratic nomination for governor, unless Governor Ehringhaus should yield to the demand of the farmers and agree to call a special session of the General Assembly.

The prevailing belief in most circles here today is to the effect that Governor Ehringhaus is more determined than ever not to call a special session of the General Assembly and that the mass meeting of tobacco farmers, even if there should be 25,000 instead of only 5,000, will not have the slightest influence on his conviction that a special session is not necessary and could not accomplish anything for the farmers even if it should be called. The further fact that a great many of these farmers have already turned away from Governor Ehringhaus and the present administration to support Dr. McDonald is regarded as merely solidifying the governor in his opposition to a special session.

Those who really know the facts agree that Governor Ehringhaus is correct in his contention that a special session of the General Assembly could not do anything to help the tobacco farmers, even if one should be called, until both South Carolina, Congress and possibly Georgia also take action to make the State pact plan binding. But is also agreed that very few of the tobacco farmers realize this and that they want a special session anyway.

While Governor Ehringhaus has been invited to address the tobacco farmers tomorrow and present his reasons for not calling a special session, the belief is that many will remain unconvinced. A good many here frankly believe that the entire mass meeting will result in a big demonstration for Dr. McDonald before it is concluded.

Merchants Gather In State Meeting

merchants from every section of the State have been arriving throughout the day to attend the 34th. annual convention of the North Carolina Merchants Association, in session here today and tomorrow. Registration opened this morning and the opening session was held at 11 o'clock with the customary addresses of welcome and reported by various officials. The principal address was delivered by J. G. Harrison of Mt. Airy, president of the merchant's association.

The convention got down to business at the session this afternoon with a series of addresses dealing with various phases of merchandising and advertising. Among the subjects discussed this afternoon were "Store Displays that Bring Results," by R. A. Lewis of Miller and Rhodes, of Richmond; "Advertising to Increase Profits," by P. T. Hines, advertising manager of The Greensboro News and Record; "Methods of Increasing the Average Sale," by Harry Van Stration, of Durham; "Buying Only to Sell," by J. C. Williams, of the Bell-Williams Co., Wilmington; and "Building Good Will," by State Senator O. A. Swearingen, of the Quality Service Stores, Concord.

The annual convention banquets will be held tonight in the ball room of the Sir Walter Hotel at which Thomas McP. Glasgow of Charlotte will be the principal speaker. His subject will be "The Economics of Distribution."

The highest peak of interest in the convention is expected to be reached Tuesday morning, however, when the North Carolina sales tax will be discussed in an address by Dr. John T. Burrus, State Senator from High Point, Guilford county and one of the best known opponents of the sales tax in the State. The reaction to this address is expected to indicate whether a majority of the merchants will support Dr. Ralph W. McDonald for the Democratic nomination for governor, who is running on an out-and-out anti sales tax platform, or whether they are beginning to break away from McDonald. It is known that some of the merchants would rather keep the sales tax than have some of the other taxes which have been proposed as substitutes enacted, but there is nothing yet to indicate how general this revolt is. Sentiment expressed during the convention is expected to indicate how the merchants now feel.
