Rejuvenated Tobacconists Flash Fast Brand of Baseball in Victory

The Henderson Tobacconists flashed the fastest brand of baseball seen here for many moons yesterday afternoon as they whipped Oxford Dodgers 12 to 4 at League Park.

Henderson got off to an early start, scoring four runs in the first inning, and was never threatened throughout the remainder of the game. Tharrington and Pleasants hurling the victory.

Yesterday's attendance was not what it should have been, but those who saw the contest were of the opinion that one of the best ball clubs for some years had been assembled here and fans are looking forward to a fast brand of baseball for the coming season in the Virginia-Carolina league.

Graham's Tactics Please McDonald

has recently decided to sock Hoey, Governor J. C. E. Ehringhaus, former Governor O. Max Gardner, Assistant Commissioner of Revenue Marcus Cicero Stephens Noble, Jr., and various and sundry others and branch out into the heavyweight centipede class, many are beginning to wonder whether he is helping his own campaign or that of his opponents.

McDonald Delighted.

The McDonald managers and supporters are elated and delighted at the new tactics of Graham and maintain that his attack on Governor Ehringhaus, the present Democratic administration and on O. Max Gardner is merely making more votes for Dr. McDonald by proving the contentions of the Forsyth college professor that the State has been and still is dominated by the Ehringhaus-Gardner machine. W. L. Lumpkin, State campaign manager for Dr. McDonald, today issued a statement in which he gloated and exulted over the new Graham tactics and pointed out that all Graham is now doing is to substantiate the charges of machine domination which McDonald has been making since the beginning of the campaign.

The Hoey forces, which are becoming increasingly bitter towards Graham because of the attack he is making on both Governor Ehringhaus and Max Gardner, are convinced that he is making a tremendous mistake, also that he is driving more voters away from the Graham camp than he is attracting into it. They are convinced that some of these are going over into the Hoey camp, because of disgust at the new Graham campaign methods, but fear that a larger number are going into the McDonald army, since they maintain that Graham is now making the same charges against the present administration, Mr. Hoey, Gardner and Ehringhaus which Dr. McDonald has made throughout the campaign. As a result, the Hoey forces are more than ever convinced that all Graham will do is to run a poor third in the primary. They also fear that this new line of attack which Graham is using will make it more likely that those who do vote for Graham will be inclined to vote for McDonald rather than Hoey in a second primary.

Graham Group Pleased.

The Graham strategists, however, are not only pleased, but enthusiastic with the public reaction to the new line of attack by Graham in which he is seeking both McDonald and Hoey and maintain that this new offensive is helping Sandy Graham more than any one else and that the claims of the rival candidates are being made merely to keep up their own courage or to muddy the already dirty political waters and make them still muddier. They maintain that Graham is not only branding Dr. McDonald as a youthful and imported political theorist who is seeking to experiment on the Democratic party in North Carolina, but that he is also branding Mr. Hoey as an ultra-conservative candidate under obligation to the "old guard" or the "machine" in North

State government is dominated by "machine politics," W. L. Lumpkin, State campaign manager for Dr. McDonald, said here today in an exclusive statement for the afternoon newspapers.

The charges which have been hurled by Sandy Graham against the Gardner-Ehringhaus combine and the reply by O. Max Gardner in which he expressed regret that Graham should attack his former political bed-fellows only go to prove that Dr. McDonald has been correct in his claims from the outset," Lumpkin said.

"At the very beginning of the campaign, Dr. McDonald charged that Clyde Hoey and Sandy Graham were tarred with the same stick and that they were important cogs in the political machine that is dominating North Carolina, Dr. McDonald was then attacked by his opponents as being a Republican and as a traitor to the Democratic party, under whose banner he is running for governor.

Graham Accuses Gardner.

"But now, lo and behold, here comes Mr. Graham charging that Max Gardner is dominating North Carolina by long distance telephone. In his desperation, he has broken with the 'machine' with which has been connected for 15 years in a futile effort to block the leading candidate, Dr. McDonald. All of which injures the feelings of Max Gardner, the head duster of the machine. They had been political bed-fellows for so long that Max can't understand how Sandy could allow political expediency to overshadow his loyalty to the 'machine.' Its a very sad day for the 'machine' in North Carolina. It looks as if the old 'machine' is just crumbling to pieces before the courageous onslaught of Ralph McDonald.

"It won't be long now. Primary day is just around the corner. The people are going to the polls then and cast their votes for McDonald, the candidate who has scared the daylight out of the 'machine' and whose election will mean the end of irng domination in North Carolina."

Oklahoma Fugitives Still Gone

brickyard foreman, and escaped in a guard's automobile during a bloody break from the prison yesterday, in which 24 convicts took part. Three others are at large.

Prison Secretary Fred Daugherty said the five convicts with Doak and the two guards as hostages seized another car and split into two parties east of Blanco, Okla., 20 miles southwest of McAlester.

He said that the two cars had been seen with only one hostage, believed to be Doak. He said the guards were thought to have been thrown from the speeding automobile.

The two carloads of fleeing convicts were heading toward the Arkansas border. Daugherty said reports indicated. Posses spread out over the Kiamichi mountains in an attempt to head them off.

From one of the recaptured prisoners retaken after the knife flashing break from the prison brickyard, the warden learned that one of the two hostage guards, Tuck Cope, was wounded.
