REQUEST FAMILIES TO ARRIVE EARLY

Arrangements Set Up For Church Tomorrow Morning Explained

Because of the size of the graduating class and the great number of parents and friends of the graduates, special arrangements have been found to be necessary to accommodate the congregation at the First Baptist church on Sunday morning, May 31, at 11 o'clock for the sermon to the class of 1936.

The arrangement was explained in a statement to the public today by Prof. W. D. Payne, principal of the high school, as follows:

"The church auditorium will be open for the parents and friends of the graduates beginning at 10:30 a. m. But we sincerely hope that only those who have the reserved seat tickets will come before 10:45 a. m. This will enable our marshals to seat the parents and friends in the reserve seats before the other people come in. "We plan this arrangement as a courtesy to the graduates and their parents and friends. Because of the size of the class, we are compelled to reserve the entire main floor of the church auditorium for the graduates, those officially connected with the school, and the parents and friends of the Class of 1936.

"The faculty of the high school is very anxious that our people understand the arrangement, and hope that the public will cooperate in our efforts to extend the parents every courtesy possible in order that they may have an opportunity to get a seat at the exercises.

"Parents and friends with tickets are requested to come at 10:30 a. m. All persons who do not have tickets are asked please to wait until 10:45 a. m. before they begin coming to the church."

Confidence About Result Expressed By Three Leaders

him there and that he will be nominated in the first primary," Lumpkin said. "The opponents of Dr. McDonald are merely whistling to keep up their courage and are singing a siren's song in an effort to mislead the people. But our followers have heard this song before and are not going to be led astray by it."

Ten public addresses will be made by Dr. McDonald next week in addition to the five radio broadcasts, with the final speech to be delivered Friday night in Winston-Salem, his home city and where he opened his campaign on April 2, Lumpkin said. It is expected that this will be in the nature of a jubilee celebration and a bigger rally of McDonald supporters he does not get a majority. "The candidacy of Mr. Hoey has won more approval every day since the campaign started and the momentum of this growing sentiment for him is increasing every hour. The Democrats of North Carolina are coming to realize more and more that the office of governor should be filled by a man who has lived his entire life in North Carolina and devoted the greater part of it to the Democratic party and the upbuilding of the life of the State. With increasing volume, these Democrats are now saying that that man is Clyde R. Hoey—and they are going to elect him governor."

Claim Graham in Run-Off.
As a result of the tremendous gains he has made throughout the eastern counties during the past two weeks, Sandy Graham now predicts that he will be high man in at least 20 of these eastern counties, many of which had previously been conceded to Dr. Ralph W. McDonald. Graham is also confident that he will get enough votes over the State as a whole to get into the second primary, regardless of the claims of his opponents.

"The reception accorded me on this present trip through the east, together with reports from unprejudiced observers in every section of the State, are proof that a tremendous Graham tide is rolling in," Sandy said while stopping here for a few hours before winding up his eastern tour this week. "The people have at last become really aroused over the issues involved and are flocking to me as the 'middle of the road' candidate who will give them a progressive and liberal but not a radical administration. They are tired of having the State government travel in the same old rut. They have also awakened from the hypnotic spell of rose-tinted promises broadcast by Dr. McDonald. They have decided that I am the candidate and the only candidate who can bring about the kind of change in the State government they desire."

The propaganda which his opponents have been spreading to the effect that "Sandy Graham is a good fellow but is running so far behind that he can't win" is rapidly breaking down Graham said. He predicted that his vote in the Piedmont and west is going to be just as large as in the east.

The 20 counties which Graham said he was now certain he would carry in the east are: Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Gates, Chowan, Hertford, Martin, Washington, Nash, Edgecombe, Pitt, Beaufort, Wilson, Greene, Lenoir, Craven, Jones, Duplin and New Hanover. "The Graham sentiment in the other eastern counties is growing so rapidly that I am convinced that by the day of the primary I will carry many of them in addition to the ones I have mentioned," Graham said. "For there is no doubt that a majority of the people of the State have at last come to their senses and have stopped believing in a Santa Claus or a magician."

Hoey and Graham Claim Huge Gains in East Carolina

Donald between now and Saturday, so that he may come down the home stretch to the wire in first place. The Graham backers, however, are more convinced than ever that they will be able to pull up enough on Hoey to win in second place, especially if McDonald should continue to weaken as many maintain he has during the past ten days. The McDonald enthusiasts, however, maintain that even though their horse may be showing signs of getting a little bit winded, due to his tremendous spurt early ahead in the race, that he can slow up considerably from now until next Saturday and still come under the wire in first place.

Week's Events

As to what has happened this past week, a cross section of the observations made in all three camps indicates the following as being a pretty accurate picture of the situation over the State as a whole:

1. Sandy Graham has made very heavy gains throughout the counties east of Raleigh, cutting deeply into the following of McDonald in many of these counties, but without more than denting the Hoey support in these counties. But wherever Graham has reduced McDonald's lead, he has also reduced the lead of McDonald over Hoey and put Hoey within striking distance of first place, especially in those counties in which McDonald has been running in the lead, Hoey in second place and Graham in third. As a result, the gains which just as much as they are helping Graham has made are helping Hoey Graham except in those counties in which he has been able to pass Hoey and get into second place.

Hoey's Stand

2. Hoey has an undisturbed lead in a majority of the western counties, or those in the tenth and eleventh congressional districts, as well as in eight or ten counties in the southeastern portion of the State and an even chance to split the vote three ways in the other eastern counties and in the Piedmont. His managers maintain that he will get at least 60 percent of the western vote and will show enough strength in the Piedmont and eastern counties to assure him second place, if not to put him into first place.

3. While McDonald has undoubtedly been losing votes heavily in the eastern counties during the last ten days to two weeks, he has been concentrating his efforts the past week in the more populous Piedmont counties, with their large industrial centers, with the result that his backers maintain he has gained more votes in these more populous counties than he has lost in the smaller eastern counties. They also point out that those who have deserted McDonald have gone to Graham rather than to Hoey, that even so Graham cannot get enough votes to oust Hoey from second place, with the result that in the second primary between McDonald and Hoey, those who may have now gone over to Graham will come back to McDonald.

More Disconcerted

There are evidences, however, that McDonald managers and supporters are secretly much more concerned over the heavy shift in the eastern counties from McDonald to Graham than they are willing to show publicly. The talk to the effect that McDonald would be nominated by a clear majority over all the other three candidates has now stopped almost entirely and any of the McDonald workers will now admit privately that they are now now hoping for anything more than for McDonald to be high man in the first primary. They are confident, however, that McDonald will get a much larger vote in the Piedmont and western counties than his opponents believe he will and that he will have a lead of at least 20,000 votes over whoever is in second place.

Hoey Not Disturbed

Nor are the Hoey managers much disturbed at the shift from McDonald to Graham, since to them it indicates a general dissatisfaction with McDonald and his platform and a rapid dissolution of his strength. Convinced that Graham is trailing so far back in third place that he cannot possibly overtake Hoey, the backers of the Shelby man point out that every vote Graham takes away from McDonald merely reduced the distance between Hoey and McDonald and makes it more likely that Hoey will be able to overtake and pass the former college professor. They also maintain that before the final week of the campaign is over many of those who have now gone to Graham will move on over to Hoey, especially as it becomes more and more evident that Hoey will at least be in second place, if not in first position. The Hoey supporters also are convinced that both the McDonald and Graham managers and supporters are not taking into proper consideration the tremendous "silent vote," especially among the church women and church people of the State, which they are confident will be cast for Hoey.

Graham Senses Trend

The Graham supporters, however, are not in the least worried by the claims of their opponents and maintain that the heavy trend to Graham which is conceded by both the rival camps is going to get bigger and bigger during the final week and that Sandy is already assured of second place. They contend that this trend is a definite indication not only of lack of confidence in the promises and program of McDonald but of a definite distaste for Mr. Hoey and all that he represents. They are further convinced that the early strength shown by McDonald was not an indication of any great personal following but of a tremendous dissatisfaction with the present state administration and of the old practice of hand-picked Governors and other state officials. So they are confident that the trend to Graham is going to become more pronounced this next week and that those who are coming over to Sandy are going to stick.

But no one will know for sure who has "doped" the situation correctly until after the votes are counted next Saturday night.

Principal Speakers, Activity Center for Duke Finals

Above are shown the three principal speakers at Duke university's eighty-fourth commencement, which begins next Saturday, and the scene of activity for much of the three-day program. In the top insets are: (left) Dr. Frederick W. Norwood, of London, Eng., who is to preach in the chapel next Sunday night, and (right) President W. P. Few who will deliver the baccalaureate address on Sunday morning. In the lower inset is Ambassador Alfred Sze, of China, who will deliver the commencement address on Monday morning in Page auditorium, the building on the left,
