TODAY'S YESTERDAYS
July 8, 1709—Charles XII, greatest of Sweden's kings, was routed by Peter the Great at Pultova, Russia, in one of history's most significant battles.

Napoleon studied Charles' campaigns and used him as a military model, yet his downfall followed his repetition of Charles' error in invading Russia ill-timed and ill-prepared. The Swedes had been delayed in the country for months by a winter so cold that firewood would not ignite in open air; brandy froze into solid masses of ice; birds could not fly; saliva congealed on its passage from mouth to ground.

Of the 44,000 men with which he left his country, he returned with only one!

Pultova started Peter on the Europeanization and modernization of Russia.

July 8 Among State Histories—1797—The U. S. Senate expelled William H. Blount as a member. Tennessee thereupon elected him president of the state senate ... 1889—John L. Sullivan and Jake L. Kilrain fought two hours, 16 minutes, in the last bare-knuckle championship bout in America, at Mississippi City, Miss., while police looked for them to arrest them—for fighting ... 1906—Chester Gillette murdered Grace Brown at Big Moose Lake, N. Y., and provided the original of "An American Tragedy" ... 1907—First performance of first Ziegfeld Follies was given in New York ... 1909—First night baseball game was played at Grand Rapids, Mich., between Central League teams.

FIRST WORLD WAR DAY-BY-DAY

20 Years Ago Today—Lord Robert Cecil, undersecretary of war and minister of blockade, abandoned and Declaration of London, under which the rudiments of international law concerning blockade had been observed. Under its rules, cotton and other conditional contraband could not be touched so long as the cargoes were being discharged at such neutral ports as Rotterdam and Copenhagen.

What Do You Know About North Carolina?

By FRED H. MAY

- 1. What was North Carolina's leading iron county during the peak of its production in the State?
2. How much value is added through the manufacture of North Carolina raw products?
3. When was the district plan of senatorial representation in North Carolina adopted?
4. What relief for wives and families of soldiers did the State provide in 1863?
5. When did the first Quaker preacher come to North Carolina?
6. When was the court resorted to stop a man from singing in the church?

ANSWERS

- 1. Lincoln county in 1823 had four furnaces and ten forges in active operation and turned out over 900 tons of bar iron. The outstanding leaders in the industry were John Fullenwider, Peter Forney, Alexander Brevard and Joseph Graham.
2. In 1927 the total value of products manufactured by North Carolina factories was $1,154,617,636. The raw materials, fuel and power amounted to $562,088,283, leaving a value added by manufacturing of $592,531,353. This value of one-year's business is slightly more than the combined state, county and municipal debt.
3. Until 1835 each county in the State was allowed a senator. The constitution adopted that year changed to the district plan and this became effective at the next election in 1836.
4. The general assembly voted an appropriation of one million dollars to be distributed among the counties for the relief of wives and families of indigent soldiers of North Carolina in the service of the State and Confederate government.
5. The Journal of Henry Edmundson a Quaker preacher, for the years of 1671 and 1672 shows that he visited Abemarle, then the only inhabited part of the whole Carolina territory. He wrote in his journal the people "had little or no religion for they came and sat down in the meeting smoking their pipes."
6. In 1873, William Linkhaw, of Robeson county, was indicted by members of his church for disturbing worship. First the members appealed to him to stop trying to sing, saying that he caused mirth to some and indignation to others. He was convicted in the lower court, but the supreme court reversed the decision.

Now all goods suspected either of enemy origin or enemy destination were made subject to seizure, with blockade squadrons as judges and juries. Even neutral vessels were forced to enter Allied ports for search, since examinations on the high seas had been made untenable for blockade ships by submarines. With total abandonment of the Declaration of London, Britain adopted the principle of rationing, even deciding what quantities of materials concerns in neutral countries were entitled to receive. Now, indeed, it had become the World's War.

BURLINGTON HEARS FORT BRAGG GUNS

Sound of Explosions Carries 90 Miles During Practice Bombardment

Burlington, July 8—The muffled rumble of the big guns at Fort Bragg 90 miles away, could be heard distinctly here Monday afternoon.

Attention to the firing was called by a veteran whose ears caught a noise once familiar to him when his division was active on the western front in France.

"Hear them," he said to a comrade. "What does it recall to you?" "The first voice of the battlefield, like a muffled chorus in the distance, increasing in volume as lories lumbered on toward the front—the white allied puffs—the black German puffs, as explosives burst under the wings of war birds and 'sausage' balloons."

The first veteran remarked he had heard the cannonade at Bragg several times before, apparently when atmospheric conditions were right to carry the sound such distance.

"I'm glad that nobody is going up the line from there today," the veteran remarked. "It is a little practice stunt, I guess, with the boys hurling projectile into the sand of barren land."

GRANVILLE FARMER MAY DIE OF BURNS

Gasoline Mixed With Kerosene By Son Explodes When Man Starts Fire

Oxford, July 8—Ernest Brummitt, young Granville county farmer living one mile from Oxford on the Dabney road, is in Granville county hospital in a critical condition suffering with severe burns. Attending doctors are holding out slight hope for his recovery.

Brummitt, not knowing that his small son had poured some gasoline into the kerosene can, started fire in the kitchen stove for breakfast yesterday morning about 4:45 o'clock with what he thought was pure kerosene. The gas fumes caused the fire to spread. The can of oil exploded, with flames enveloping Brummitt and setting the house on fire. Brummitt's wife smothered the fire on her husband by wrapping him in a blanket. She then called for help from the neighbors.

The fire had not spread very much in the kitchen when neighbors reached the scene in a few minutes. Brummitt was taken quickly to Brantwood hospital for treatment.

stead of into various unions according to the craft they work at, immediately flared back.

He said that if the A. F. of L. executive council "elects to join with the corporations composing the American Iron & Steel Institute" in fighting the Lewis group, "the shame of such a dishonorable action will lie on the heads of Mr. Green and his irreconcilable associates."

The executive council faced a decision whether to remove Lewis' mine workers and eleven other unions from the federation.

President Green, in a statement last night, recalled that the A. F. of L. was laying plans for a steel campaign when the Lewis committee started one on its own hook.

Loans and Grants to Farmers Ready in Stricken Area

Dakotas, Minnesota, Wyoming and Montana, were in need of some form of immediate cash relief. He said 50,000 were being employed on WPA projects.

Next month, the President said, he would visit the "dust bowl," the Dakotas, and possibly Minnesota, to gauge the progress of the program.

Earlier the Agriculture Department announced 97 "emergency counties" in the arid areas of the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming. Federal relief will be concentrated upon them. The AAA also modified its soil conservation program in the stricken sections so farmers may raise fodder for their livestock.

The deaths of at least 28 persons were attributed directly to the heat, while 25 others drowned as they sought to escape the sun's burning rays in lakes and rivers.

sign after election day, if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected, and return to private life. Others predicted he would not resign.

William H. Howes, of South Dakota first assistant postmaster general, and a member of the Democratic National Committee, will be in active charge of the department until after the election.

Critics of the administration, and some supporters, for many months have cried out against the fact that Farley, while a member of the cabinet, also has been chairman of the National and New York State Democratic Committees.
