OFFICERS ATTEMPT TO MATCH INK USED ON RANSOM NOTE

New Clue Comes from Olympia Where Mysterious Man and Boy Are Reported Seen

EX-CONVICT CLAIMS HE IS ON STRIKE

Says He Has Been Doing Picket Duty in Seamen's Walkout; Camp Site Littered With Boy's Clothing Searched; Odd - Colored Ink Used on Note

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 2 (AP)—Searchers for kidnaped Charles Mattson today sought a new suspect, held a former convict for questioning, and experimented with ink in an endeavor to match the writing fluid used in the abductor's $25,000 ransom note.

An Olympia man started officers on their newest query when he told police a man resembling the description of the ten-year-old boy's abductor had appeared at his home last Sunday night about an hour after Charles was seized here.

The man reportedly drove to his home about 30 miles from Tacoma in an auto which "made noises like an old one."

After sitting in front of the home ten minutes, the informant said, the man came to the door and cautiously asked directions to an abandoned turkey ranch.

EX-CONVICT TAKEN WHILE TRYING TO SELL A CAMEO

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 2 (AP)—Questioning of a former convict, examination of an abandoned camp site and study of ink coloration sent officers on new scents today in the search for ten-year-old Charles Mattson, kidnaped Sunday night.

The 35-year-old former convict, closely resembling Charles' kidnaper, was arrested last night when he attempted to sell a lady's cameo ring here. He was fingerprinted and questioned by Department of Justice Agents, then remanded to jail for investigation.

Detectives reported the man claimed to be a striking seaman, saying he had been on picket duty here the last two nights.

The camp site, littered with parts of a boy's clothing, a detective magazine, and food, was discovered near Olympia, where residents reported seeing a man and a boy Monday. Though Detective Captain Ray Hays, of Olympia, said he doubted any connection with the Mattson case, the clothing was carefully scrutinized. The detective magazine featured a kidnaping article and had various figures, such as "8,000-5-S," penciled on a margin.

Ink coloration entered the kidnap hunt when it was learned the ransom note left by the kidnaper in the home of Dr. W. W. Mattson was printed with an odd-colored ink, and informed the family any further communications would use the same color.

Union Won't Answer Auto Chiefs Yet

Will Await U. A. W. Conference in Flint Sunday To Offer Proposals

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Harold Martin, United States Automobile Workers of America president, said today the union would not answer the latest communication of the General Motors Corporation until after the general conference of U. A. W. representatives at Flint tomorrow.

Union delegates from ten cities will confere Sunday on a collective bargaining proposal to be submitted to General Motors, the principal target of control of almost everything here in Raleigh and now it wants to take our liquor revenue away from us," skinner said. "I think the counties are just as able to run their liquor stores as the State and that they can run them better without any interference from the State. I not only think the counties should get all the revenue from the liquor stores, but that each county should have full and complete control of its stores. I am opposed to any liquor control plan that deprives

Legislature Now Divided Three Ways Over Liquor

Present Whisky Counties, Those Who Want It Also and Drys All Have Spoken in General Assembly, Merger of Two Only Hope for Agreement

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Str. Walter Hotel, By J. C. BASKERVILL.
Raleigh, Jan. 2.—Members of the 1937 General Assembly are already divided into three groups on the liquor question, with the result that the outcome of the prospective fight over the liquor problem is regarded as being considerably in doubt, according to those who have been studying the situation. The three groups into which the General Assembly is divided are as follows:
1. The county control group, composed of the 17 eastern counties which now have county liquor stores under the control of county ABC boards and the other eastern counties which want

COUNTY GROUP IS QUIET ON LIQUOR

Commissioner Body Neutral, but Skinner Strong for County Rule

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Str. Walter Hotel, By J. C. BASKERVILL.
Raleigh, Jan. 2.—The North Carolina Association of County Commissioners is at the present time "neutral" with regard to any particular form of liquor control which is or may be advocated, according to President Tom Wolf, of Albemarle, Stanly county, president of the association, and John Skinner, of Iittleton, Warren county, secretary of the organization. There is no doubt, however, that Secretary Skinner is overwhelmingly in favor of county control as it now exists in 17 eastern counties, including his own county of Warren, and that he is personally very bitterly opposed to any State supervision of county liquor stores, as is proposed in the model liquor control bill recommended by the State liquor fact-finding commission.

"The State has already taken away almost everything from the counties, as far as revenue goes and has centered control of almost everything here in Raleigh and now it wants to take our liquor revenue away from us," skinner said. "I think the counties are just as able to run their liquor stores as the State and that they can run them better without any interference from the State. I not only think the counties should get all the revenue from the liquor stores, but that each county should have full and complete control of its stores. Congress Will Be Hardly More Than Rubber Stamp; Administration Effecting Readjustment Toward Conservatism from Radicalism of First Term

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist
Washington, Jan. 2.—A forecast of 1937's legislative trend in Washington will be safer to venture on after the country has listened to President Roosevelt's re-inaugural address Jan. 20.

The general supposition is that his outline of policy on this occasion will be even more comprehensive than his talk at the reassembling of Congress. It will sketch the administration's plans not only for 1937 but for the full four years of its second term in office. And, the administration being now almost all-powerful on Capitol Hill, what it wants is certain to get, practically in its entirety at least until the seventy-sixth Congress convenes a day or two after Jan. 1, 1939. In the event of a super-sensational flop in popular sentiment in the election of 1938, who can say what the seventy-sixth Congress' House of Representatives will be like? Meantime, most of what President Roosevelt dictates will be acquiesced in by both houses of the lawmakers. There will

EMPLOYMENT JOB CHOICE PLEASING

Appointment of E. W. Price Is Recognition of Ability, Fitness

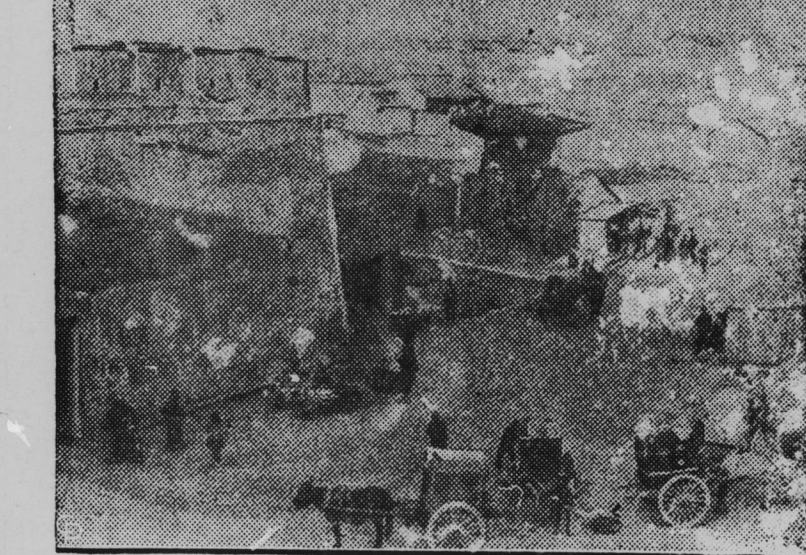

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Str. Walter Hotel, By J. C. BASKERVILL.
Raleigh, Jan. 2.—The appointment of E. W. Price, as acting director of the division of compensation of the new Unemployment Compensation Commission and his selection for this post by the members of the commission—after conference with Governor Clyde R. Hoey, of course—is being generally commended in both business and political circles here today. For Price, who has been executive secretary of the North Carolina Industrial Commission since its creation several years ago is regarded by many as one of the best informed men on compensation insurance in North Carolina, as well as an able executive. Much of the success of the Industrial Commission is frankly attributed to the work done by Price as its secretary, especially in the manner he has supervised the keeping of records and the collecting of statistics.
