

Love is for Tomorrow

READ THIS FIRST: Sandy Knight, in the temporary role of a radio announcer...

CHAPTER 2 SANDY'S battered gray roadster was on the ramp of the garage...

"Bring me my pup, will you, please?"

He stopped just long enough in Santa Monica to pick a Gladstone bag with necessities...

Sandy had signed his name to the lease with some misgiving, realizing that he was committing himself to a job of pioneering...

Sandy was amazed that Borst would entrust his job to a man he had met but casually at the Ad club...

bargain when he called at the radio station the next day...

"Well, I've got a public now," he muttered miserably as he came back to the present and remembered the newboys' screaming...

"I'll do it," he said suddenly, so vociferously that Mike spilled half his drink on his crinoid tie.

The day was one of radiant brightness, with the sun high and hot in the blue sky...

and the completeness of these half dozen streets and their doll-like houses.

"No one here to fight with and that's that," he breathed in relief. He moved his perspiring brow...

"Hi, pup! How's things?" Sandy greeted this unexpected intruder, then added, "Haven't you strayed a bit from your girl friend's apron strings?"

"Uh, oh! I nearly forgot," he stammered, shamefacedly. "You'd better leave, miss. You see, I thought I was alone and I am—er, practically devoid of superficial covering and—"

SOUTH BOSTON, VA. GOLFERS COMING

Linksmen to Give West Enders First Inter-City Test of Year

West End Country Club golfers will pit their best against a team from South Boston, Va., here tomorrow afternoon over the local course.

Captain Nathan Strause and assistant Stewart Finch will match the golfers against the visitors for the 18-holes.

This is the first inter-city match of the season for West End linksmen, and another is on tap before the qualifying rounds and play in the annual club championship tournament begins.

Last year, local linksmen made a very good showing against teams from other cities, playing about on even terms with all foes met.

Interest in golf has been steadily mounting at the local club, and tournaments with neighboring teams will add a great deal more pleasure to the golfers.

When a Cardinal pitcher winds up nobody knows whether he is going to let loose a curve for the batter or the umpire's chin.

It's too bad Jack Dempsey, due to advancing age, has retired from the ring. He would make a honey of a third baseman for the Red Birds.

However, there is no truth in the rumor that in the event they win the National League pennant the St. Louisians will meet Max Schmeling in the world series.

No Interest Shown for Baseball Here

Complete lack of interest killed whatever opportunity Henderson had in becoming a member of the Tobacco State League last night when fans failed to turn out to a called meeting at Hill Top tea room to talk over baseball for Henderson during the coming months.

Ed Powell, baseball promoter, today said he was through, and that it is plainly evident that Henderson does not want baseball.

Big league ball players are courageous. To date no other National league club has petitioned the president of the president of the circuit for the right to wear armor when playing in Sportsman's park, St. Louis.

GWYNN DUE TO GET NEWEST JUDGESHIP

McMichael and Sparger Speculated as New Solicitors, With Forest G. Miles

At the St. Walter Hotel, B. J. BASKERVILLE, Daily Dispatch Bureau, Raleigh, May 25.—Although Governor Clyde R. Hoey is not expected to announce the appointment of the new judge and solicitor for the new twenty-first judicial district until the middle of June or even later, the belief is growing in informed circles here that Allen H. Gwynn, at present the solicitor in the eleventh judicial district, has the inside track for the appointment of judge of the new district, also that State Senator S. Gilmer Sparger, of Danbury, Stokes county, is in line for the appointment as solicitor in the new district.

Clement is the resident judge. While a godly number of lawyers in the eleventh district are understood to be in a receptive attitude for the appointment, the field has already narrowed down to two, according to most observers here. These are J. Earle McMichael and Forrest G. Miles, both of Winston-Salem. But of these two, McMichael is regarded as having in his pocket the better chances due to the fact he has been acting as assistant solicitor in the district for several years and is regarded as one of the most vigorous and business-like prosecutors anywhere in the State.
