Newspapers Join In Resolution

The text of the resolution adopted by representatives of 11 large newspaper associations in Chicago June 29 is as follows:

The newspaper editors and publishers from all sections of the United States individually and through their co-operative associations listed below are gathered here to take action upon the American Newspaper Guild's recent declaration for the closed shop in editorial and news departments. We recognize the fact that when a problem of major importance to the public is presented to us, the public is entitled to a statement.

This meeting is by no means one of opposition to collective bargaining, better hours, pay or working conditions for newspaper men and women. We are here to discuss the closed shop as a matter of journalistic and public principle, not as an economic issue.

Freedom a Guarantee. Established for the benefit of all the people are four fundamental rights in the constitution, freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of assembly. Experience has proved and even now is demonstrating in Russia, Italy and Germany that the interference with one of these fundamental rights means the curtailing of all others—the collapse of liberty itself.

Foundation Needed. The extension of the great press associations serving news to newspapers of varying social, economic, political and religious beliefs has emphasized this development of impartial news treatment. Thousands of men and women are devoting their lives to the gathering and presentation of the news without bias.

a labor issue involving questions of wages, hours and working conditions, but because we are unwilling to turn over the news columns to any group already committed as an organization on highly controversial public questions.

We make no charge that bias is found per se in the work of a Guild member. To do so would imply bias per se as in a non-Guild worker. Neither is true. Bias arises, however, among any group respecting any policy common to the group. No newspaper can command confidence in the fairness of its news presentation if it selects all its employees from only one political party, one religious denomination, or any one group devoted to a single cause.

We do not deny that causes require champions, and that progress springs from the genius of advocates. Equally important to society, however, are those who report the controversial scene. It is the newspaper man's job to do that, not as a partisan but as an objective observer.

Declare Opposition. Therefore be it resolved, that as editors and publishers here assembled from all parts of the United States we declare our unalterable opposition to the closed shop or any other form of closed shop for those who prepare and edit news copy and pictures for newspapers, and we hereby express our determination not to enter into any agreement upon such basis.

STARTING POINT (Greensboro Daily News) With Senator Bailey's declaration that senate approval of the administration's $1,500,000,000 relief bill is a victory for a "spending policy" the Daily News has no fault to find. There is likewise more truth than poetry in the senator's further assertion that "relief has become a pork barrel business, not for Congress but localities, contractors and dealers throughout the country."

But right there is where we stop to suggest that the Tar Heel honorable supplant talk with action and move, even though in a small way since curtailment of federal expenditures obviously is not going to occur on any major scale, to do his own bit, but in any case, to do his own bit, but in any case, to do his own bit, but in any case, to do his own bit.

Senator Bailey has undoubtedly seen one, or probably all, of those lithographic releases from the North Carolina WPA. You know, and we'll bet you he knows, what we're talking about; those "WPA Its Story" publications which are all photographs and art work, offset printing, linen paper and camera likenesses of relief bigshots. How much they actually cost, we do not know. But they are high-class stuff, genuine works of art, turned out by WPA workers but under the imprimatur of private establishments. Oh, yes, we almost forgot to mention; the beaming physiognomy which so frequently appears on the frontispiece is generally accredited with having been elevated to the State WPA directorship through the instrumentalities of the same protesting senator himself.

So it's a mere starting point that we are suggesting for the Tar Heel honorable; doubly acceptable we assume, in the dual purpose which it would serve by reducing expenditures on non-labor that much and at the same time cutting off its proportionate part of that usage of public funds for propaganda purposes (which Senator Bailey and his co-critics likewise view as indefensible).

1916—Mammoth German submarine Deutschland slipped into Chesapeake Bay after epoch-making lone voyage of 4,000 miles through English-French fleets.

TODAY'S YESTERDAYS
July 8, 1116—Peter the Hermit, French monk, died in Belgium in a monastery he had established in fulfillment of a vow made when he escaped with his life in a shipwreck.

Peter was the great preacher of the Crusades, and on one he personally led, 300,000 Christians were lost—not in the struggle with the Turks for the Holy Land but in battles with other Christians along the route to Palestine!

Nevertheless, Peter played a tremendous role in history, for the Crusades he stirred up were the first stirring of the common people in European history—the birth of democracy.

July 8, 1797—United States Senate expelled William H. Blount, 53, senator from Tennessee, on the ground that he had conspired to deliver New Orleans and the whole of Louisiana territory to the British. He went back to Tennessee and was soon afterwards elected president of the State Senate!

His brother Thomas 37, continued to sit in Congress.

July 8, 1839—What was to become in legend the classic prizefight in American fist history, took place at Mississippi City, Miss., with John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain in the ring.

Today's sentimental sportsmen point to it as an example of the perfect fight you could always expect to see "in the good old days." Yet contemporary newspaper accounts show the spectators were disgusted by the stalling and fouling tactics of both contestants.

Fewer actual blows were struck in the two hours and 46 minutes than faced each other, than in a modern 10-round, 30-minute bout.

AMERICA AT WAR DAY-BY-DAY
20 Years Ago Today—A dark day for Germany. Hindenburg's carefully planned heavy offensive north of the Aisne on an 11-mile front, from north of Joney to California plateau, was repulsed with heavy losses, though the Germans were using liquid fire again.

An attack against French on the left bank of the Meuse similar "relief" had begun around Fins, with Russians driving Germans out of trenches they had held for many months. The front west of Stanislaw was broken. The Russians, whom the Germans had counted out of the war, were active again against the Turks, too; they made gains in the region of Sakkiz. To the South, Austrians were being hard-pressed again by the Italians; they needed help. And there was a crisis in the government resulting from Socialist Leader Reichstag's demand in the Reichstag for far-reaching domestic reforms and peace without annexations or indemnities.

What Do You Know About North Carolina? By FRED H. MAY

- 1. What act of North Carolina led to July Fourth being Independence Day?
2. Who and when was the first missionary sent to North Carolina?
3. What effort did Governor Vance make to save and protect the state archives when Raleigh was occupied by Union forces?
4. When was Durham county formed?
5. When was a charter granted for medical college in Robeson county?
6. What steps did the State take to punish Continental officers for resigning during the Revolutionary War?
ANSWERS
1. North Carolina led all other colonies when on April 12, 1776, the Provincial Congress at Halifax adopted a resolution authorizing the North Carolina delegation to the Continental Congress to join the other colonies in a declaration for independence from England.
2. John Blair, sent to North Carolina in January 1704 by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, London. The missionary found only three small churches in North Carolina at that time.
3. A short time before the arrival of the Union forces were expected Governor Vance had Treasurer Jonathan Worth to remove the archives, first to Company Shops, now Burlington, and then to Greensboro, where they remained until General Schofield took charge of the Department of North Carolina.
4. By act of the legislature ratified February 28, 1881, from Wake and Orange counties. The act called for an election to be held in April to determine the will of the citizen living within the effected territory. Isaac N. Linke was named commissioner to lay off the boundary. In event Linke was unable to serve David G. McDuffie was named to succeed him. The county was named for Dr. Bartholomew Durham, a leading citizen.
5. A charter was granted to Dr. Hector McLean, of Lumberton, by the legislature on February 26, 1867, for Edinborough Medical College to be established in Robeson county. It was to be a "first class medical college of highest grade" and was authorized to confer degrees and grant diplomas for practice in North Carolina.
6. On November 29, 1777 the legislature adopted a resolution that any officer who resigns "his commission at this critical period shall be held and deemed incapable of holding hereafter any office civil or military in the gift of this State."

There was an omen at Cologne. A victorious war with the French (in 1870) had given the Cathedral there its famous giant bell, Kaiserlocke. It was cast from melted captured French cannon, was the heaviest and largest bell being rung in the world. Now another was with the French had taken Cologne's Kaiserlocke away. Down it had come, so its 54,000 pounds of metal could be used for war purposes. Into the cauldron had gone its inscription: "On this holy tower I stand And ever pray for the German land That God would grant it, without surcease, Unsullied honor and hallowed peace."

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
Today should produce one of great executive ability, who will push a way into a leading place by energy. He will have many friends and through them bring about many improvements in his social circle. By his nervous energy and force of character he will act as a reformer, and with strong planetary aspects may become a really great one.

CROSSNORE ASKS AID
To the Editor: Maybe your vacation has just begun, but Crossnore's is almost over. Our public school opens August 9, and our boarding pupils will come in on August 7. The teachers and house mothers will come ahead to prepare, and what a day that "home coming" will be—physical examinations, getting settled in dormitories, finding old friends, making new ones, getting into the harness of regular jobs to carry on the kitchen, whose task will suddenly become many times more difficult.

This year's "home coming" will be a great one for little boys and little girls with their new buildings, and we can hardly wait for the middle sized girls to see the renovation of the interior of the home they will have all to themselves. But the middle sized boys will feel no such joy; true, they will now have the whole building to themselves, but it remains an old shop converted into a dormitory and a dreary, uncomfortable place for human beings to live in. How eagerly they and we look forward to the day when some generous heart will enable us to erect a new big boys' dormitory so that the middle sized boys can have the present one, and their old shack can be torn down.

But we still say home-coming day is a great one. Still over it hangs the pall of unpaid grocery bills. Will the grocery men sell us food when their bills are already so big and long-standing? Surely we must reduce them, eradicate them if possible, and that's why we are sending out this SOS.

The bill is $1853.35. Will you help us clear it off? $1.00—$2.00—$5.00—$10.00—$50.00—Will you answer our call.
