

EROSION STUDY ON BEACHES RENEWED

Airplane Photos and Off-Shore Soundings Made on Carolina Coast

Daily Dispatch Bureau, Raleigh, Aug. 21.—United States engineers have this week been taking aerial pictures of Oregon and New Inlets in connection with beach erosion studies by the Federal Government and the State, it was learned from the office of T. S. Johnson, chief engineer of the Department of Conservation and Development.

In addition, the Federal men have been gauging the flow of tides at the entrance of these inlets, while workers from the State department of conservation and development have been conducting off-shore soundings to a depth of 30 feet, along the northern section of the North Carolina coast. Study of the pictures made from the air will be used in determining just where the coast line is being eroded and just where the action of the tides is adding to the beaches.

The entire coast has been divided into cross-sections during progress of these erosion studies, stakes have been set so that it can be readily determined where erosion is getting in its deadly work.

Activity this week does not indicate any immediate remedial action, it was stressed but was a part of the long-time program of the Federal and State department.

Various phases of the work have been carried on from time to time at Carolina Beach, Wrightsville Beach, Morehead City and Nags Head, among other places.

MARINE STRIKE IN NEW YORK STOPPED

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—The National Maritime Union, affiliate of the CIO, called off day-old sideway strikes on ships of three lines today, but announced a similar ban against the Clyde-Mallory Line would continue in Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Charlie Ruggles Parks Himself in Coolest Spot in Hollywood

A newspaperman always is resourceful when it comes to digging up stories, chasing pictures or hunting a good soft spot in which to rest between assignments. Charlie Ruggles, star reporter in Paramount's "Exclusive," with Fred MacMurray and Frances Farmer, is no exception. Here he is reading a picture magazine, cool as a cucumber, inside a Frigidaire. In the picture, directed by Alexander Hall, Charlie and Fred MacMurray take turns getting inside to see if the interior light really goes out when the doors are closed.

ENTIRE FRONT OF BUILDING MOVES IN NOVEL FILM SCENE

A novel production idea is featured in Mascot's "Harmony Lane," which comes to the Vance Theatre, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. The picture is based on the life of Stephen Collins Foster, the man who wrote most of America's most loved melodies including "My Old Kentucky Home," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "Oh! Susanna," "Old Black Joe," "Beautiful Dreamer," "Old Folks At Home" (Swanee River) "Massa's In The Cold Ground," "Camptown Races," "Louisiana Belle," and many others.

In this particular sequence, Foster, played by Douglass Montgomery, is seen in a Cincinnati "Bier Garten" of the early "fifties". It is necessary to show quickly both the exterior and interior of the "Bier Garten," the camera moving into the action which takes place inside.

The trick resorted to, was to have the entire front wall of the "Bier Garten," with its trellis work and huge sign, raised as the camera comes up to it, by means of specially constructed mechanism. This whole effect, which has never before been done in a motion picture, was conceived by Ralph DeLacy, Mascot's production manager.

In addition to Douglass Montgomery, the cast of "Harmony Lane," which comes to Vance Theatre includes, Evelyn Venable, Adrienne Ames, Joseph Cawthorn, William Frawley, Lloyd Hughes, Cora Sue Collins, Gilbert Emery, James Bush, Clarence Muse and the Shaw Choir, Florence Roberts, Ferdinand Munier, and a cast of thousands.

MILD ACTIVITY IN STOCKS IS NOTED

Shorts Cover on Theory Market Has Already Had Good Sell-Out and Will Move Up

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Quiet buying in steels and specialties today managed to bring mild rejuvenation to a rather tired looking stock market. In most of the two-hour proceedings minor gains and losses were about evenly divided. Some short covering, based on the theory the market has already had a good sell-off, then appeared and a slow upward trend developed.

Transfers were around 300,000 shares.

Border Counties Opposing Liquor

Vance and Warren, on the Virginia line.

Both Virginia and South Carolina have liquor stores, state-owned and operated in the Old Dominion, operated by private licenses.

It is a noticeable fact that every county in the State which has voted against stores either borders a wet state or adjoins a Tar Heel county in which there are legal stores. In addition to the dry counties of the Virginia and South Carolina lines, Wayne, Alamance, and Jones have turned their backs on the control system. Each of them touches one or more store-operating counties.

Reasons for these facts will probably be disputed, drys claiming that the counties they won have learned not to emulate the evils of their neighbors; wets declaring that the influence of bootleggers, whose business is more profitable the nearer their source of supply, had much to do with the results. As in every other phase of the liquor question totally different conclusions will be drawn from the very same undisputed facts.

Rain is nature's danger-signal, her salutary reminder that her laws have been infringed.

Mind can become diseased by the possession of excessive power just as well as from any other cause.
