TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS Walter G. Campbell, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture's chief of the Food and Drug Administration, born in Knox Co., Ky., 60 years ago. Robert W. Elingham of Louisville, Ky., ambassador to Great Britain, born in Orange Co., N. C., 66 years ago. Maj. Gen. John W. Gulick, U. S. M., born at Goldsboro, N. C., 63 years ago. Matthew Van Sicken of New York, noted consulting mining engineer, born there, 50 years ago. Rear Admiral George C. Day, U. S. N., retired of New York City, born at Bradford, Vt., 63 years ago. Ex-King Prajadipok of Siam, born 44 years ago.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE Older writers do not regard those born today as very fortunate. The mind, unless spurred to action, is liable to be listless and inactive in a way to take things as they come, rather than to make much effort to control results. Later interpreters of the day describe it as restless yet working as if in a dream. There is power if the mind can be awakened.

ONCE UPON NOV. 8 Fifty years ago today, Emile Berliner, 36-year-old immigrant from Germany, was granted a patent upon the gramophone. While not the first talking-machine, it did introduce the later-accepted disc phonograph record now in universal use.

It was nearly 10 years, however, before the invention brought him any return. Then he happened to take his device to a small machine-shop in Camden, N. J., owned by Eldridge R. Johnson, for repairs. In making them, Johnson grasped the great possibilities of the talking-machine, and persuaded Berliner to allow him to manufacture and distribute duplicates. That was the beginning of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and the $50,000,000 fortune of Eldridge R. Johnson.

The idea of the phonograph was just 10 years old when Berliner got his patent on the disc record. Thomas A. Edison had stumbled on it while trying to devise a repeater for a telegraph circuit. Almost simultaneously, Alexander Graham Bell, Chichester A. Bell and Charles Sumner Tainter, went to work on a similar device and they anticipated Edison in the use of wax-covered cylinder records.

The first record of the Bell cousins and Tainter (who lives now in San Diego, Cal.) is still extant, and understandable. It bears a quotation from Shakespeare's Hamlet, bespoken by A. G. Bell.

"There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

First thing to be recorded by Edison.

What Do You Know About North Carolina? By FRED H. MAY

- 1. How many children between the ages of ten and thirteen years are gainfully occupied in North Carolina? 2. When did a legislative candidate demand that a war be stopped? 3. What graduate of the University established the first overland mail service from Memphis to San Francisco? 4. During the Confederacy how much did North Carolina appropriate for relief work within the State? 5. By what farsighted act did Governor Vance in 1862 lay himself liable to impeachment? 6. Why was the North Carolina delegation to Congress in 1796 so bitterly opposed to the Jay Treaty?

ANSWERS

- 1. The census of 1930 reported a total of 305,755. 2. In 1836 the whig candidates in Johnston county for the state legislature issued a circular demanding that the Mexican War be terminated and that peace be arranged. 3. Aaron V. Brown of the class of 1814. Brown moved to Tennessee the year after he finished college and became the law partner of James K. Polk. He served Tennessee as legislator, congressman and governor. He was a member of President Buchanan's cabinet as postmaster general, and as such established the overland mail route. 4. In all a total of over $6,000,000. Governor Vance's extreme efforts to provide for the poor and needy, and to take care of the soldiers in the field, in a way, explains the devotion and adoration the people had for him. 5. By his purchase of the Ad-Vance and three other ships for blockade running. These ships brought in supplies, munitions and other necessities for the Confederacy to the amount of several million dollars. 6. Because it would invalidate the confederation laws passed and put in operation during the Revolutionary War. There was the fear or North Carolina that the help of Lord Cornwallis would attempt to regain the Granville district which comprised slightly more than one-half of the State.

AMERICA AT WAR DAY-BY-DAY

20 Years Ago Today—Gen. Cadorna could not, of course, survive the Caporetta disaster; he was succeeded by Gen. Armando Diaz, 56, who had won distinction as division and corps commander in the Corso campaign. With the Italian army in full retreat, and ready that day to give up the Piave line, he came to supreme command at the worst possible moment for anyone except a man of the greatest courage and ability. That was what Diaz was to prove himself, despite the fact that French and British general staffs helped make the situation more difficult for him by failing to place their forces in Italy under his command for some time thereafter. On this date, however, there was promise of closer cooperation between the discordant Allies. It was agreed to establish a supreme war council with representatives of each government.

New York, Nov. 8.—Interview With a Deer Hunter, Manhattan Style: Q. Well, the season is on. I suppose you will be off hunting in a few days. A. I'll say. We are organizing an expedition and will take off for upstate within a week. We want to get in on the first week of hunting if possible. Q. You'll serve venison steak for weeks, I take it, after your return. A. Oh, no. I hate venison. So does my wife. As a matter of fact, nobody in the party really eats venison. We give it away. Q. You kill the deer for the sport? A. Absolutely. It's the greatest little sport in the world. I want to show you my new gun—two of them. In fact, the 30-30 automatic is a honey. I can throw lead out of that faster than you can spray a throat. Q. I always thought deer were rather pliant and harmless animals, pretty to see in the woods. Won't it be sort of a shame after you fellows have killed them all? A. Oh, so you're one of those sentimentalists, are you? You're one of those guys who'll be telling me next how the deer looked at you, with those great, big, liquid eyes and you just couldn't shoot it. That's old woman stuff. Q. What about bird-hunting? It seems to me that the target is a little smaller in the case of a quail, for instance, and might offer more sport just because it's harder to hit. A. Quail! That's no sport. When you hit a deer you've got something. What's a quail? A mere handful. Besides, if you hunt every day for a week you're pretty sure to get one deer, while you may hunt and hunt and never flush a cover of quail. I mean you're sure to get one deer if you do it right, with a couple of guides and the right kind of guns and in the right country. Q. Do you have to go far from Manhattan? A. Forty or fifty miles. But it's getting to be a nuisance, the way people are building houses and settling up the deer country. Some sport sports post their property and won't cooperate at all. You know the type—the typical economic royalist that thinks private property is sacred or something. Q. But isn't it, perhaps, a little inconvenient to have guns going off at all hours around the house? A. Only a selfish people. True sportsmen hear a shot and think only of the hunter, hoping he was lucky enough to make a clean hit. Q. I see. Only softies think of the deer? A. Right. Why, last year, I had an experience that made me sick. Some old lady in the mountains, refused me a drink of water when I knocked at her door dragging a young venison-scented hunk. She said she had come to know that dear little deer and looked up me as a murderer. Can you imagine? I told her the season was only

STATE BAPTISTS SET FOR ANNUAL SESSION

Two Durham Men On Program Of 107th Annual Conviction Nov. 16-18

By DAVID MORGAN Raleigh, Nov. 8.—(Special)—Official program of the 107th annual session of the North Carolina Baptist state convention was released by Executive Secretary M. A. Huggins. The convention is set for the First Baptist church of Wilmington, November 16-18. Dr. W. L. Poteat of Wake Forest, president of the convention, will be unable to attend. He has been confined to his bed following a stroke of paralysis 10 days ago. Presiding officer at the convention will be Vice-president R. N. Simms, Sr., of Raleigh. Official organization of 465,000 North Carolina Baptists, the convention shapes the policies and directs the work of its several departments and institutions. Delegates will act upon reports regarding the present state and future expansion of these divisions of Baptist work. Host church will be the Wilmington First Baptist. The Rev. Sankey L. Blanton is pastor and chairman of the convention reception committee. The convention has previously met in Wilmington six times: in 1851, 1867, 1874, 1886, 1907, and 1926. Among out-of-state speakers at the convention will be Dr. Prince E. Burroughs of Nashville, Tennessee; Miss Isabelle Coleman, Richmond, Va.; J. P. Blainfield, West Tampa, Fla.; J. T. Watts, Dallas, Texas; T. S. McElroy, Richmond, Va.; and W. H. Davis, Louisville, Ky. The opening session will begin at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, November 16. Ralph A. Herring, of Winston-Salem, will deliver the convention sermon, "Christianity, Our Security Against War," will be the topic of an address Tuesday night by Dr. John T. Byard of Durham. Dr. J. Clyde Turner of Greensboro will be president of the convention. He will speak Wednesday afternoon on "Social Service and Civic Righteousness." This will be followed immediately by an address "The Church and Social Wrongs" by Eugene I. Olive of North Wilkesboro. Dr. Poteat's address, "Christ and Social Service," completed two weeks ago, will be read Thursday morning. Election of officers will take place Thursday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock. Following the opening of the general session of the convention, pastors of the state will hold a special conference Monday and Tuesday. Special features for Sunday school teachers will be a fellowship breakfast Wednesday morning. Election of officers will be the next speaker. Others scheduled to take leading parts on the program of the three-day meet are: M. L. Banister, Oxford; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Plank, Burlington; B. A. Bowers, Gastonia; H. M. Hocutt, Swain; Dr. B. W. Spilman, Kinston; Mrs. J. Clyde Turner, Greensboro; Dr.

Capital Gossip

BY HENRY AVERILL Daily Dispatch Bureau, Raleigh, Nov. 7.—(North Carolina's program to attract visitors and new residents to the State is destined to prove the greatest step forward the State has taken in recent years. I believe this when I left Washington for a survey of conditions and a combined vacation," writes Senator Robert R. Reynolds, who has been touring the West, addressing various and sundry groups and beating the tom-toms for his native State. Incidentally, our Bob will stop briefly in North Carolina before going to Washington for the special session of Congress. North Carolina will pass a marriage license law at the next session of the General Assembly regarding physical examination of prospective brides and grooms, in the opinion of State Health Officer Dr. Carl V. Reynolds. "As evidence that such a law is needed, witness the number of cases of syphilis that are being reported daily to the State Board of Health, an average of 33 a day, 1,000 a month, of 12,000 a year. Without restrictions for preventing the spread of the disease and proper means for treatment of those infected, this will mean that we will continue to have 100 new cases of infection every day, and the birth of ten new-born syphilitic babies every day," he said. Domestic servants of North Carolina are more than glad to leave the State for employment in the east, according to reports of the North Carolina State Employment Service. "Although there has been an acute shortage of domestic workers in Winston-Salem, there has been no difficulty in getting them to go to eastern points," said the report. Raleigh's Community Chest drive was under way today, after a citizen-mass meeting Sunday night, with all civic organizations apparently united behind a big drive to make the campaign a successful one. Outside business is becoming interested in North Carolina's many opportunities, according to J. T. Anderson, industrial engineer of the Department of Conservation and Development, who has been on his job now for about two months. "Our job is to convince industries that North Carolina is the best State in the South for them to locate in," said Mr. Anderson. "There is no doubt that North Carolina has a great advantage over most of the other states from the standpoint of distance to markets."
