REBEL CHIEF NEAR CAPTURE IN MEXICO IN SAN LUIS WILDS

Cedillo Is Hidden Somewhere in Bushes Eight Miles Northwest State Capital

CARDENAS TROOPS PRESSING SEARCH

Observers at Scene Think It Is About Over, and Predict Collapse of Eight-Day Rebellion With Capture of Cedillo Himself at Any Time Now

San Luis Potosi, May 28.—(AP)—Swarthy rebel chieftain S. Cedillo was hidden somewhere in the bush eight miles northwest of this state capital today, closely pursued by Federal troops after two narrow escapes from capture.

Four followers who escaped with him by plane from a hideaway ranch northeast of Palomas, when surprised yesterday by Federal troops, were reliably, though unofficially, reported to have been captured.

The soldiers of President Cardenas, beating back and forth through the bush-covered hills, declared the capture of Cedillo himself was imminent. A high army officer expressed the belief Cedillo tried to escape from the net by working northward toward the United States. Observers at the scene asserted laconically "it's about over," and said that with capture of Cedillo his eight-day rebellion would collapse quickly.

His two fast transport planes had fallen into government hands. One was found abandoned in a cornfield eight miles northwest of here. From it Cedillo and his four followers had fled. The other was captured by a one-time chief of the garrison at Cedillo's estate.

Peace Near In Goodyear Ohio Strike

Akron, Ohio, May 28.—(AP)—Conferees were summoned today to shape a key to peace in riot-provoking strike troubles at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, while CIO United Rubber Workers rallied for a mass meeting to protest police tactics.

James P. Miller, National Labor Relations Board mediator, announced a truce under which all but a dozen policemen withdrew from the two-mile area where police and pickets clashed early Friday, injuring 80 or more persons.

The company agreed work would not be resumed before 6 a. m. Tuesday. Both sides were willing to sit down at a conference table and discuss what union officials termed "accumulated grievances." Miller said renewed picketing was permitted.

Meanwhile, Frank Grillo, rubber workers official, announced a mass

Boy Slayer, Free, Waits Trip Home

New York, May 28.—(AP)—Acquitted of murdering the girl he loved, 16-year-old Donald Carroll, Jr., today saw only a psychopathic examination between him and his return to "moon and pop."

Moved by the boy's troubled story of how he shot Charlotte Matthiesen, 18, at her request because she was pregnant and feared disgrace, a jury of middle-aged married men last night returned a verdict of "not guilty because of insanity." They deliberated two hours, 56 minutes.

County Judge Thomas Downs immediately ordered the boy held for mental observation. Cheering spectators and the jubilant parents of both Donald and Charlotte, who had worked together to save the youth from punishment in a tragedy of adolescence, hailed the verdict.

The parents met with laughter and tears in the office of Defense Attorney Sidney Rosenhal.

"My prayers are answered," said Donald's mother. "My girl would like the verdict," said Charlotte's mother, Mrs. Fred Matthiesen.

HANCOCK ASSISTED TOBACCO GROWERS

Relates Conversation With Roosevelt Approving His Grading Act

Lillington, May 28.—Entering the home stretch of his campaign to win the nomination to the United States Senate in the primaries next Saturday, Congressman Frank Hancock this afternoon discussed the problems of tobacco growers and told them that "in the dark days of 1933, when our warehouses closed on account of the low prices, I was in Washington working day and night for North Carolina farmers, while Senator Reynolds was touring Russia."

Advocating further improvement in the tobacco inspection service, in the passage of which he took an important and prominent part, the Oxford legislator declared that it was through the amendment he sponsored that "the entire expense of this service is borne by the government and not one penny is assessed against the grower, the warehousemen or the buyer."

"The tobacco inspection act is your government's response to a vital need which exists today on our auction tobacco markets for some real measure of protection to the tobacco growers in the sale of their crops," Hancock explained, "arises out of the excessive speed with which tobacco is sold and the inequitable and unequal prices which result from rapid selling."

"Why should North Carolina's chief money crop of labor be sold in such haste and hurry? Who benefits from such a program? The farmer certainly does not! All of us who have studied this important question know that tobacco has too long been sold in confusion out of which a few have grown very rich and many have been left struggling for the barest existence."

Washington, May 28.—(AP)—Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, indicated today the administration would have a fight on its hands if it tried to write back into the tax laws business favors favored by President Roosevelt.

In a speech defending the 1933 tax revision law against the President's criticism, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee declared there would have to be a tax bill next year, but he added significantly that would only be because some "nuisance" and other minor levies needed revision.

Earlier the Treasury disclosed the administration would ask Congress next session for a thorough re-writing of the laws to codify and simplify

Solons May Pension Mules But Not An Aged Librarian

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

Washington, May 28.—A campaign is afoot in Congress to pension army mules.

In these motorized days not many mules remain in our military service. Still, a few are left, and it does seem a shame, as they grow old and feeble, to send them to glue factories. Moreover, a mule is quite a long-lived animal. A handful of veterans yet survive from an earlier period, when mule power had not been so generally superseded by gasoline. These superannuated "critters" lead miserable existences, mostly hauling junk wagons, underfed, feeble and manifestly unhappy.

There is a deal of sentiment on Capitol Hill in favor of a small appropriation to care for such ancient, faithful servitors.

The Japanese airmen concentrated their death-dealing projectiles around the Wongscha station of the Hankow-Canton railway line, over which men and munitions have poured into central China to fight the Japanese invasion.
