.Rocky Mount, June 24 .- (AP)-After an all-night search, in which Nash county officers, Boy Scouts and neighbors combed the countryside, a Negro farmer found two-year-old Jimmy Dozier this morning asleep in an old abandoned house, his head pillowed on a small non-descript dog from his father's farm.

Little Jimmy's father, James Dozier, said the child had disappeared from their farm home late yesterday. In the search that was begun, as many as 150 persons scoured the woods all night long, and at dawn were expressing mounting fear the child had been kidnaped.

An electrical storm early last night slowed down the search only temporarily. Nash county Deputy Sheriff Tanner indicated officers be lieved the boy had wandered away from the home and during the storm had gone into the building for shelter. He said as far as the officers were concerned the case was ended with the finding of the boy.

Peering into the old house shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, as near-100 men were still searching through the surrounding woods, the Negro tenant heard the dog growl and saw the child. He told the other searchers who came up at his shout for burglary. that the dog would not permit him to get the child.
