TODAY'S HOROSCOPE
Today bestows great enthusiasm and great ability in speech and writing. The mind is elastic but somewhat given to wandering. The sense may be rather undeveloped, and need to be carefully trained in the laws of mortality and of life. Neglect of such training may lead to a compulsory retirement from business or social life for a time.

Today is the Day

Tuesday, July 26; calendar day of St. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary. Independence Day in Liberia. Mars and Moon (New) in conjunction.

ONCE UPON JULY 26th
Our debt to John James Audubon for his "Birds of America" is great. Our debt to George Catlin, for his "Manners, Customs and Condition of the North American Indians," is great, and there is just cause for giving the now neglected Catlin some of the attention lately directed to Audubon.

Catlin, born 142 years ago today in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as unhappy a lawyer as Gauguin was a business-man, abandoned his Philadelphia legal practice to devote himself wholly to his self-taught art, went West to sketch Amerindians in their true colors, and remained years at the task, traveling the whole continent to become intimately acquainted with every surviving tribe.

He supported himself by occasional returns to "civilization," to lecture on the tribes. The lectures were not always successful, because Catlin sought to correct popular concepts of Indians as savage, treacherous, ignorant people. He always found them kind and hospitable. Both in lectures, drawings and published accounts of their customs and life he reflected an opinion of them that he once summarized in these words:

"I am fully convinced, from a long familiarity with these people, that the Indian's misfortune has existed chiefly in our ignorance of their true character and disposition, which has always held us at a distrustful distance from them; inducing us to look upon them in no other light than that of hostile foe, and worthy only of that system of continued warfare and abuse that has been forever waged against them."

If you have a first edition of Catlin's "Manners, Customs, and Condition of the North American Indian," published in 1847, in good condition, with all its beautiful colored plates, you have a treasure.

AMERICA AT WAR DAY-BY-DAY
20 Years Ago Today—42nd Division relieved 26 Division, and without food or rest after a long trip to the front, went forward with the French 39th Division to attack La Croix Rouge farm. The 26th had suffered such heavy losses in six days, in advancing 17 kilometers, that it had to be relieved. The 26th was to get back into action, at St. Mihiel, in September.

The 27th Division (New York National Guard) got into action for the first time, in the occupation of the Dickbusch Lake and Scherpenberg sectors in Flanders.

Disembarkation of the 6th Division in France was completed.

Advance detachments of the 7th division left Hoboken for Brest.

Communist government declared American and British occupation of the Murman coast of Russia the equivalent of a declaration of war, and declared it would fight back.

200,000 were on strike in British war munitions plants, and Premier Lloyd-George ordered them to return to work in 72 hours or be forced to by soldiers.

Food administrator Herbert Hoover asked Americans to cut sugar consumption from three to two pounds a month.

marked evenly, as he did at the height of one Ehringhaus-McLendon brush. "Gentlemen, we'll proceed a little bit more orderly if you don't mind."

Nobody has doubted the Lucas sincerity and fairness. Nobody has failed to notice the obvious intention of the board head to get to the bottom of every charge and counter charge.

But withal, it's an impossibility to get this same chairman, who runs the board hearings with the poise and equanimity of a veteran judge, to tell a thing about his accomplishments.

Today this correspondent tried "What have you done, Mr. Lucas?" he asked as something of a starter. "Nothing," came back the chairman

Murray vs. Girdler

Philip Murray ... says what he thinks

Attack by Philip Murray, chairman of C. I. O.'s Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, upon Republic Steel corporation and Tom L. Girdler, board chairman, in senate civil liberties committee testimony, brings retort from Republic Steel that Girdler would appear before the committee and refute Murray's allegations "in just as strong and picturesque language". Murray asserted that Republic Steel "represents the fittest cesspool of labor relations in America".

Leader of opposition to the proposal came from the West, with State senator E. Francis, of Hayward, pleading with his colleagues "Don't do this to the West."

Another member of the Senate at the time was W. O. Burgin, of Davidson county, whose face of the re-nomination to the Eighth congressional seat is being so bitterly contested by C. B. Deane, of Richmond county. Mr. Burgin was not recorded as voting on the motion to table.

East-West support and opposition as more evenly divided than most could expect, though the westerners are never here as strong for absentees in the primary as in the general elections.

Of the 25 voting against the motion to table, equivalent to supporting the bill, fifteen were from the east and ten from the west. Of the 19 who voted to drop the matter seven were easterners, twelve from opposed abolition of the absentee ballot in primaries were Dudley Bagley, now head of the State Rural Electrification Authority; Carl Bailey, of Washington county, whose motion killed the McLendon recommendations at the Democratic State Committee meeting; prior to the 1937 legislature; Lloyd Griffin, now secretary of the State School Commission; S. Gilmer Spurge of Stokes, now chief lobbyist for the oil companies; and Capus Wayne, former Highway Commission chairman.

Voting for the absentee repeal were among others, J. Abner Barker, whose right to the fourth district solicitor's nomination is being challenged by Rivers Johnson of Warsaw; Allen H. Gwyn, who defeated Judge E. C. Bivins for nomination in the twenty-first judicial this year; and the late Angus Dru MacLean, of Beaufort, who died last year.

Only one senator who will be a member of the 1939 upper house voted to table. The veteran W. G. (Cousin Willie) Clark of Edgecombe voted that way.

Two who will be back in 1939 were for the bill and against tabling—A. B. Corey, of Pitt, and Dr. T. W. M. Long, of Halifax.

One senator who voted for repeal will be a 1939 House member—Crayon C. Efrid, of Stanly county.

After its stormy passage through the Senate, the McNeill bill met a very peaceful death in the House Election Law Committee platoon hole, from which it never emerged for a vote on the floor.

State Seeks $2,000,000 For Schools and Rutherford counties as among them.

Mr. Erwin has been getting in contact with county school officials all over the state, this summer urging them to take advantage of PWA grants to do whatever school construction is needed at this time. He made it clear that his department is not urging any county or city to build school buildings just because about 45 per cent of the cost can be secured from the Federal treasury, but he has urged that wherever building is necessary that the authorities apply at once to PWA for assistance.

He pointed out that North Carolina citizens will do their part of paying the taxes from which PWA money is derived by the Federal government and said there is good reason for the State and its local units to take advantage of the grants whenever it is possible to do so.

"After going practically all over the State to look into the situation, I am of the opinion that there will be about $5,000,000 of school construction in the State, which the local units will get at a cost of $3,000,000 by taking advantage of PWA aid," Mr. Erwin said.

True democracy is the assumption on the part of each and every individual citizen of responsibility for the welfare of his city, state and country.
